HIGHER EDUCATION AMENDMENTS OF 2007

NOVEMBER 15, 2007.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. KENNEDY, from the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, submitted the following

REPORT

[To accompany S. 1642]

The Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, to which was referred the bill (S. 1642) to extend the authorization of programs under the Higher Education Act of 1965, and for other purposes, having considered the same, reports favorably thereon with an amendment in the nature of a substitute and recommends that the bill (as amended) do pass.

I. PURPOSE AND SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

The purpose of S. 1642, the Higher Education Amendments of 2007, is to reauthorize and improve the Federal student financial aid programs and other higher education programs established under the Higher Education Act of 1965. The bill also reauthorizes and amends the Education of the Deaf Act of 1986, the United States Institute of Peace Act, the Tribally Controlled College or University Assistance Act of 1978, and the Navajo Community College Act.

S. 1642 is the product of an extensive bipartisan effort that included over 100 hours of bipartisan meetings and input from the major stakeholders in higher education.

This legislation amends the Higher Education Act of 1965, the Higher Education Amendments Act of 1998, and the Higher Education Amendments of 1992 by making the changes identified below.

Title I—General Provisions

This title makes several conforming changes to the Higher Education Act of 1965, authorizes programs and updates terms and provisions. Both the general definition of an institution of higher education and the definition of an institution for purposes of title

IV aid are expanded to include those that admit students who are beyond compulsory school age or who are dually or concurrently enrolled in the institution and a secondary school. A Sense of the Senate regarding student free speech is included. This title also replaces the National Advisory Committee on Institutional Quality and Integrity with an Accreditation and Institutional Quality and Integrity Advisory Committee in the Department of Education to assess the process of accreditation and the institutional eligibility and certification of institutions of higher education under title IV. Additional reporting requirements are required under the Drug Abuse Prevention Grant program. The information the Secretary makes available to the public on an annual basis regarding financial aid, college costs, and academic programs is expanded but a Federal database of personally identifiable information on students is prohibited from being developed. The functions of the Performance-Based Organization (PBO) in the Department of Education are amended. Additional reporting requirements are added for covered institutions that enter into educational loan arrangements.

Title II—Teacher Quality Enhancement

The legislation replaces Teacher Quality Enhancement Grants for States and Partnerships with Teacher Quality Partnership Grants to improve student achievement and the quality of the Nation's teaching force by holding higher education institutions accountable for preparing teachers and promoting strategies to recruit and prepare qualified individuals. Under this Title, the Secretary is authorized to award competitive Teacher Quality Partnership Grants to eligible partnerships to carry out a teacher preparation program for bachelor's degree students, a teaching residency program, or both. Teacher preparation programs shall include educational reforms, pre-service clinical experience and interaction, induction programs that provide new teachers with mentoring and support for at least their first 2 years of teaching, support and preparation for early childhood educators, if applicable, and effective mechanisms to recruit qualified individuals to become highly qualified teachers. Teaching residency programs shall consist of prospective teachers working alongside mentor teachers, earning a master's degree and State teacher certification or licensure, and fulfilling eligibility requirements to be considered a highly qualified teacher under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. Partnership grants are provided under a 1:1 formula and a priority is given to broad-based partnerships that include business and community organizations and to partnerships that will ensure an equitable distribution of grants among urban and rural areas. All institutions that conduct teacher preparation programs and enroll students receiving title IV assistance must report data on their programs to the State in which the institution is located and the general public. States that receive funds under this act must provide State report cards on the quality of teacher preparation programs in their State.

Title III—Institutional Aid

This title reauthorizes programs to support Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian-

Serving Institutions, Tribal Colleges and Universities, and professional or graduate programs for minority students. S. 1642 expands allowable uses of grant funds for minority-serving institutions to include acquiring property adjacent to the institution, education or counseling services designed to improve financial literacy of students or their parents, and developing or improving distance learning or internet facilities and capabilities. It is established that the Secretary may reserve 30 percent of a fiscal year's appropriated funds to award at least $1 million for maintenance and renovation at institutions under this title, with a priority given to a tribally controlled college or university that has not received an award under section 316 in the past. Remaining appropriated funds would be used to award grants to institutions on a formula basis, with a priority to institutions with a high population of Indian students. Seven new minority-serving institutions that have established qualified graduate programs since the Higher Education Amendments of 1998 have been added to the list of eligible professional and graduate programs. A new program for Native American-serving, nontribal institutions is established to improve and expand their capacity to serve Native American students.

Title IV—Student Assistance

Part A—Grants to students in attendance at institutions of higher education

Pell grants

The legislation establishes the maximum authorized Pell award at $5,400 for academic year 2008–09 and increases the authorization to $6,300 over the next 4 years. The minimum Pell grant award is changed from $400 to 10 percent of the maximum authorized for a given year. The “tuition sensitivity” provision, which can negatively affect award amounts for students attending low-cost institutions such as community colleges, has been eliminated. The legislation requires the Secretary to allow students who are enrolled at least on a half-time basis in a 2- or 4-year program of instruction and for more than 1 academic year to receive up to two Pell grants in 1 award year. After many years of having no time limitation on the receipt of Pell grant funds, the committee establishes a time limit of 18 semesters or an equivalent period of time.

TRIO programs

The Federal TRIO programs, including Talent Search, Upward Bound, Student Support Services, Postbaccalaureate Achievement, and Educational Opportunity Centers programs, which provide assistance for first generation and low-income students, have been reauthorized and strengthened. The legislation adds meaningful accountability that will ensure programs maintain high quality services to students. S. 1642 also expands the list of required and permissible services for TRIO programs, in part, to include improving student or parent financial and economic literacy and programs for students with disabilities and those who are homeless or in foster care.

GEAR UP

The GEAR UP program provides assistance for States or partnerships to help low-income students in 7th grade through high school prepare for college. This legislation maintains the requirement that States provide scholarships for students. Activities are expanded beyond early intervention programs to include those designed to improve high school and postsecondary graduation rates.

Leveraging Education Assistance Partnership (LEAP)

The LEAP program is reauthorized, but the Special LEAP program is replaced by the Grants for Access and Persistence program, which is designed to improve the ability of the Federal Government to leverage funds for student need-based grant aid through State and private funds.

Migrant and seasonal programs

The migrant and seasonal program is reauthorized and services provided by the college assistance migrant program are expanded to include internships, transportation, and child care. Changes to the program mirror language in the Senate Workforce Investment Act reauthorization bill, in that families of migrant workers are made eligible for services.

Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship Program

The Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship Program is reauthorized without change.

Part B—Federal Family Education Loan Program

S. 1642 sunsets the school as lender program as of June 30, 2012. Consumer information requirements with respect to lending generally, and consolidation lending specifically, are increased. S. 1642 prohibits guaranty agencies from offering inducements to institutions of higher education or their employees or any lender for the purpose of securing benefits, including applicants for loans, and prohibits unsolicited mailings of student loan application forms and fraudulent or misleading advertising of loan availability, terms, or conditions. Lenders are required to provide borrower repayment information to all major credit bureaus. Financial literacy is added to allowable default reduction activities. The definition of disabled borrowers whose loans can be discharged is expanded.

Part C—Federal Work-Study Program

The Secretary may waive the community service requirement for institutions under this part if they can certify that at least 15 percent of their student enrollment participates in community service, tutoring or literacy activities. No more than 10 percent, or $75,000, of an institution's work-study allotment may be used to establish or expand programs that locate and develop jobs for its students. This legislation also emphasizes the importance of service in work-colleges by changing references in the statute to "work colleges" to "comprehensive work-learning programs" and "comprehensive work-learning-service programs."

Part D—Federal Perkins loans

The Perkins loan program, through which institutions are permitted to operate revolving loan funds, is reauthorized. Four new categories of individuals eligible for loan cancellation are added, and one is expanded under this part: full-time staff members in a pre-Kindergarten or child care program that is licensed or regulated by the State (in addition to Head Start), full-time faculty members at Tribal Colleges and Universities, librarians who are employed in schools with a high population of low-income students, and speech and language pathologists working with students with disabilities in such schools will be eligible for Perkins loan forgiveness. The maximum amount of Perkins Loan forgiveness for members of the Armed Forces is expanded from 50 percent to 100 percent.

Part E—Need analysis

S. 1642 excludes the value of on-base military housing or the value of basic allowance for housing in the financial aid needs analysis calculation, but clarifies that such students' expenses reasonably incurred for board (not for room) may be considered for the purpose of determining financial aid.

Part F—General provisions relating to student assistance

The Advisory Committee for Student Financial Assistance is reauthorized. In addition to its other assignments and activities, the Advisory Committee is required to carry out a review and analysis of title IV regulations and conduct a study of innovative pathways to baccalaureate degree attainment.

The Secretary is required to simplify the financial aid process, develop a simplified paper "EZ FAFSA," and conduct early financial aid awareness activities. S. 1642 allows students to apply for and receive an estimate of Federal financial aid earlier than the year prior to enrollment. An early application and award demonstration program is established that will serve to determine the feasibility of implementing a comprehensive early financial aid application and notification system for all dependent students and to measure the benefits and costs of such a system.

S. 1642 also allows students with intellectual disabilities to be eligible for Federal student financial assistance even if they are enrolled in non-degree higher education programs.

Institutions must provide additional information on their student body diversity, disaggregated graduation rates, student financial assistance and the procedures for applying for such assistance, the cost of attending the institution, general information about the academic and non-academic aspects of the school programs, policies and sanctions regarding copyright infringement, campus policies regarding immediate emergency procedures, student loan information for borrowers during entrance and exit counseling, and transfer-of-credit policies. Institutions must also publish an annual fire safety report on on-campus student housing. In addition, institutions must provide a list of institutions with which they have established articulation agreements for the transfer of credits.

The Secretary is required to provide institutions participating in Federal student aid programs with a calendar of reporting and disclosure requirements indicating both when certain information is due and the required recipients. As a condition of participation, proprietary institutions of higher education must derive at least 10 percent of their revenues from sources other than title IV programs. In addition, S. 1642 establishes guidelines for the Secretary to administer the National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS) in an effort to ensure the security and efficient operation of the NSLDS.

S. 1642 requires that institutions establish, enforce and follow a code of conduct regarding student loans that prohibits institutions and its employees from receiving anything of value from any lender in exchange for an advantage in securing student loans. A number of requirements are placed on institutions of higher education that choose to maintain a preferred lender list recommending certain lenders to students.

Part G—Program integrity

The criteria that accrediting agencies must consider when evaluating institutions of higher education is expanded. Accrediting agencies are required to have expanded due process procedures in place to resolve disputes over adverse action. The bill updates accreditation processes with respect to online or distance education in recognition of current trends. The bill ensures that institutional missions are considered during the accreditation process. Accrediting agencies are also required to confirm as part of their accreditation process that an institution publicly discloses its transfer of credit policies. The Secretary is required to provide information to schools undergoing a program review and give those institutions an opportunity to review and respond to that information before a final determination is made.

Lenders of title IV guaranteed loans are required to provide all borrowers with clear, conspicuous, timely information on the history of their loan payments and total charges, repayment options, and default information.

S. 1642 establishes that the Comptroller General shall evaluate a pilot program for the auction of Federal PLUS loans, once such a pilot is established.

Title V—Developing Institutions

The bill expands the allowable uses of grants to support Hispanic-Serving Institutions, similar to the existing program for Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and creates a new grant program for eligible Hispanic-serving institutions that offer graduate programs.

Title VI—International Education

The international education programs are reauthorized and strengthened to address the need for American expertise and knowledge about a greater diversity of less commonly taught languages and nations of the world. An interagency group to determine the priorities for international education programs is established.

Title VII—Graduate and Postsecondary Improvement Programs

Graduate education programs under this title are reauthorized. Areas of professional workforce shortages are included as areas of national need in determining priority for grants. The disability demonstration program is reauthorized, and a new grant program is established to encourage the formation of special programs for institutions of higher education to serve students with intellectual disabilities. Eligibility for the Thurgood Marshall Legal Opportunity Program is expanded.

The Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education is reauthorized and new authorizations are established for: a scholarship program for family members of veterans and members of the military; support for consortia of institutions to offer courses focused on poverty and human capability; support for a program that improves secondary school graduation, college attendance; and college completion rates among at-risk students; the creation of a center for best practices for single parent students in higher education; and assistance to institutions in understanding Federal education regulations.

Title VIII—Miscellaneous

Grant programs are established to: States to award scholarships of up to $1,000 to students who have completed a rigorous math or science secondary school curriculum; contract with an independent organization to complete an assessment of the factors associated with cost of tuition; help institutions of higher education and local Workforce Investment Boards develop new curriculum and services related to high skill, high growth occupations; support registered nursing programs; establish or strengthen postsecondary academic programs or centers that promote the teaching of traditional American history; support the Teach for America program; assist highly qualified minorities and women to acquire the highest degree available in underrepresented academic areas; contract with a not-for-profit organization to make available year-to-year college enrollment rate trends by secondary schools; establish a new grant program supporting Predominantly Black Institutions; establish State Early Childhood Education Professional Development and Career System Task Forces; expand programs for the development of science, technology, engineering or mathematics professionals from elementary schools through college, with a focus on Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian students; establish a pilot program to increase student persistence at community colleges; and create a new grant program for institutions of higher education to develop and improve their campus safety and emergency response systems.

Title IX—Amendments to Other Laws

EDUCATION OF THE DEAF ACT

The Federal grant program for Gallaudet University and other institutions serving deaf students at the secondary and postsecondary levels is reauthorized.

UNITED STATES INSTITUTE OF PEACE ACT

The legislation reauthorizes the U.S. Institute of Peace and provides for the Institute's authorization to be automatically extended for 1 year, if necessary, similar to other Federal education programs. In addition, the legislation clarifies that the term of members begins on the date of their confirmation and swearing-in.

TRIBALLY CONTROLLED COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY ASSISTANCE ACT AND THE NAVAJO COMMUNITY COLLEGE ACT

Two programs that provide funding for tribally controlled institutions of higher education are reauthorized.

II. BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The current authorization of the Higher Education Act expires at the end of March 2008. The Federal Government must renew its commitment to ensuring access to higher education through the reauthorization of this vital legislation. When Congress first passed the Higher Education Act more than 40 years ago, it was guided by the principle that no qualified student should be denied the opportunity to attend college because of cost. In 1965, and again in 1972 when the Pell Grant was established, Congress recognized that access to a college education is a vital gateway to helping citizens achieve the American dream.

Today, Americans are facing rapid changes in the global economy. Wages have declined, the cost of living has risen, and fewer jobs that pay good wages are available to our citizens. Today, 60 percent of new jobs require some post-secondary education, compared to just 15 percent of new jobs half a century ago. In the face of these challenges, a college education is more important than ever. However, college has never been more difficult to afford. The cost of college has more than tripled over the last 20 years. Today, average tuition, fees and room and board at our public colleges is more than $13,500, and it totals more than $32,000 at private colleges. Each year, more than 400,000 talented, qualified students do not attend a 4-year college because they cannot afford it. At the same time, the buying power of the Pell Grant—the lifeline to college for low-income students—has shrunk dramatically. Twenty years ago, the maximum Pell Grant covered 55 percent of costs at a public 4-year college. Today, it covers about 32 percent of those costs.

As a result, students are sinking deeper and deeper into student loan debt. In 1993, fewer than half of all students took out loans to finance their education. Today, more than two-thirds of students borrow for college. Currently, the typical student leaves college with more than $19,000 in student loan debt. This mountain of debt is distorting countless Americans' basic life choices. It is causing them to delay getting married, buying a home, and starting a family. It is also discouraging many young people from entering occupations such as teaching, social work and law enforcement—the low-paying but vital jobs that bring large rewards for our society.

S. 1642 addresses important concerns related to the practices of some lenders and college officials with respect to the Federal student loan programs. As investigations by the Chairman of the HELP Committee and the New York Attorney General have found, some lenders have offered gifts to college and university employees in order to secure their students' loan business, and others have been involved in similar unethical practices. S. 1642 restricts these practices and protects students by ensuring that when a college recommends a lender, the college's recommendation is based on the best interest of students.

The Higher Education Amendments of 2007 also simplifies the overly-complex Federal financial aid application process for students and families, holds colleges accountable for college costs, improves training programs for K-12 teachers, strengthens many key higher education programs, such as TRIO, and creates a new student safety grant program to help colleges and universities improve their campus safety and emergency response systems.

III. LEGISLATIVE HISTORY AND COMMITTEE ACTION

There have been nine extensions of the Higher Education Act Amendments of 1998 since it expired in September 2003. In the 109th Congress, the committee unanimously passed S. 1614, the Higher Education Act Amendments of 2005, the first bill that reauthorized and made major changes to programs in the Higher Education Act since 1998. Congress has also acted through the Higher Education Reconciliation Act (P.L. 109-171) and the College Cost Reduction and Access Act (P.L. 110-84) to make additional changes to the Higher Education Act.

During the 109th and 110th Congresses, the committee held six hearings and one roundtable discussion before the introduction of the Higher Education Amendments of 2007.

A. Committee Mark-up

On June 20, 2007, the committee met to consider S. 1642. The committee took action on four amendments, including the unanimous adoption of a manager's amendment offered by Senator Kennedy that made technical changes. Three additional amendments were offered and adopted. The bill was approved by a rollcall vote of 20 yeas to 0 nays and ordered to be reported with amendments in the nature of a substitute.

2. Senator Burr also offered an amendment to provide stipends for mentors under teacher quality partnership grants which may include bonus, differential, incentive, merit, or performance pay.

3. Senator Brown offered an amendment that would strike the special rule regarding permissible priority for Federal TRIO programs.

IV. EXPLANATION OF BILL AND COMMITTEE VIEWS

Title I—General Provisions

In amending title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965, the committee intends to update the law to reflect the dramatic changes in the field of higher education over the past 10 years. With a growing proportion of students attending concurrent or dual enrollment programs, or through distance education programs, the committee amends the definitions of higher education to incorporate these larger trends. The committee also changes certain provisions to reduce the potential for fraud and abuse within the Federal higher education programs.

DUAL AND CONCURRENT ENROLLMENT

The committee recognizes the significant growth in dual and concurrent enrollment programs, which enable some secondary students to earn postsecondary credit in a program of study at an institution of higher education. According to data from the National Center for Education Statistics, in school year 2002–2003, 71 percent of high schools offered dual credit courses. In response to this trend, the committee clarifies that students in dual or concurrent enrollment programs may be admitted as regular students in institutions participating in programs authorized under the Higher Education Act of 1965.

FOREIGN MEDICAL SCHOOLS

In general, medical schools qualify to participate in the Federal Family Education Loan program if at least 60 percent of their student body is non-American and at least 60 percent of their students or graduates taking the examinations administered by the Educational Commission for Foreign Medical Graduates received a passing score. However, current law contains an exemption to this dual requirement for foreign medical schools that have a clinical training program that was approved by a State as of January 1, 1992. This condition is modified to specify that an institution that has or had a clinical training program that was approved by a State as of January 1, 1992, and has continuously operated an approved clinical training program in at least one State, qualifies for the exemption. This was done to enable an institution that has continually operated a State-approved clinical training program in at least one State to continue to meet the exemption in the event that the clinical training program that was approved by a State as of January 1, 1992 ceases to operate, or in the event that that institution opts to change the clinical training program affiliated with the institution.

PERFORMANCE-BASED ORGANIZATION (PBO) FOR FEDERAL STUDENT FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

The committee applauds the efforts since the last reauthorization to implement the PBO. Schools and individuals have benefited from improved efficiency in originating, servicing and processing grant and loan aid. The ombudsman has provided needed guidance to students struggling to navigate the complex system. There is strong support for continuation of these efforts to make further progress in the delivery of student financial aid.

COST OF HIGHER EDUCATION

The committee feels strongly that the rising cost of higher education is undermining the Federal commitment to making college accessible and affordable. Although Federal expenditures for higher education are at an all time high, the purchasing power of Federal programs has been losing ground as colleges and universities continue to increase tuition and fees at rates much higher than the rate of inflation.

The College Board, which produces a highly respected annual survey of college costs, reported in its 2007 report that the average tuition and fees for a public, 4-year institution of higher education had increased by 5.9 percent from the previous year. Even after adjusting for inflation, tuition and fees have increased by more than 44 percent in the 10 years preceding the 2007-08 academic year.

The rapid increase in college costs has negatively impacted the ability of students to afford a college education, for students and parents to save sufficiently to prepare for the costs of college, and has required an increasing number of students to borrow high-interest loans from non-Federal programs, adding significant debt burden to students and their parents.

Diverse explanations have been offered, but the consequences of these rapid increases have not been any less dramatic. In 1997, the maximum Pell grant award was $2,700. Since then, the maximum grant has increased to $4,310, yet many students still find themselves borrowing additional funds to meet the cost of attendance. While 92 percent of undergraduate students enrolled in public institutions pay tuition and fees of less than $15,000, only 16 percent of undergraduate students enrolled in private colleges (both proprietary and independent schools) pay tuition and fees of less than $15,000. Despite historic increases in Federal student assistance programs, cost is surpassing the ability of students to pay for their education, even while receiving the maximum Federal assistance available to them.

As a result, many parents and students who have saved for college find themselves borrowing additional funds to meet the costs of college. The Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance suggests that cost accounts for up to 48 percent of college-ready high school seniors not enrolling in a 4-year institution of higher education, and for 22 percent of college-ready seniors not enrolling in any postsecondary education at all.

To address this challenge, the committee includes several separate provisions intended to provide students and their parents with better information about the cost of college. The committee expects this information to help provide students and their parents with a realistic set of expectations about the cost of postsecondary education, as well as introduce some incentives for institutions to control the cost of attendance. The public availability of this information is expected to support institutions and States that are committed to maintaining access to affordable higher education.

The committee has taken several steps to ensure students and parents have access to information about the cost of college. The committee, requires the Bureau of Labor Statistics to create a higher education price index that tracks the affordability of higher education, and requires the Secretary of Education to publish annual "Higher Education Price Increase Watch Lists" that report all institutions of higher education whose tuition and fees outpace their applicable higher education price index in a given year. The Secretary is also required to publish annual reports comparing State appropriations to public institutions of higher education to the increase in tuition and fees at such institutions, and is required to create several "net price calculators" to help students and families determine the price of an institution of higher education after Federal aid is accounted for. The committee believes this additional information will help parents and students make well-informed decisions about postsecondary attendance, so the greatest number of students can attend and succeed in postsecondary education.

The committee recognizes that the development and implementation of the higher education price index will require appropriate time and resources. The committee expects the Commissioner of the Bureau Labor Statistics to have completed the initial development of the index within 1 year, it anticipates that the full-scale development and publication of the index may take 2 to 3 years. The committee intends to work with the Committee on Appropriations to secure the necessary funding for this effort.

While the committee recognizes that many private sector firms have produced high-quality informational products with respect to the cost of college, the committee believes the Department of Education can also provide added value in making better use of the information collected and made available through the college opportunities online (COOL) website. The committee requires the Secretary of Education to develop, for each institution of higher education, a model document known as the "University and College Accountability Network," which will report key data related to an institution's cost, academic programs, student outcomes, and availability of student aid, among other factors. The committee expects the added emphasis on the Department's Web site as a means for families and students to obtain information about postsecondary education will result in an effort to make such resources more user-friendly.

Title II—Teacher Quality Partnership Grants

With the passage of the No Child Left Behind Act, Congress took an important step to ensure that all of the Nation's children are taught by highly qualified teachers. The committee believes that improving teacher quality is an important and effective means by which student achievement is increased. By eliminating the existing State grant program in title II and focusing on the partnership grant program, the committee bill will strengthen programs that prepare prospective and new teachers with strong teaching skills and research capabilities. This preparation ensures that our Nation's educators receive the training and support they need to strengthen elementary and secondary school and early childhood programs. The committee expects activities under title II of this act will complement the larger teacher preparation efforts in Title II of the No Child Left Behind Act, as well as other relevant State efforts.

HIGH NEED ACADEMIC SUBJECT AREAS AND HIGH NEED AREAS

Throughout title II, the committee references high-need academic subject areas (such as reading, mathematics, science, and foreign languages) and high-need areas (such as special education, language instruction educational programs for limited English proficient students, and early childhood education). Studies indicate that a shortage of highly qualified teachers exists nationally in the specific subject areas and instructional areas indicated above. Nevertheless, it is not the committee's intent for teacher training, and professional development supported under this title to be limited to these subjects and instructional areas alone, since shortages in particular subject and instructional areas may vary from State to State, from district to district, or from school to school.

EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATOR

The committee recognizes that quality early childhood education programs are staffed by educators who are highly competent in all the essential domains of early childhood development including cognitive, social, emotional, and physical development. Given the great variation in the governance, funding, and standards of early childhood education programs including Head Start, Early Head Start, State pre-kindergarten programs, and local education agency pre-kindergarten, the committee provided a definition of a highly competent early childhood educator. However, it is the committee's intent that early childhood educators meet the standards and qualifications of the program in which they are teaching and that all early childhood education programs ensure that young children receive a comprehensive early childhood education that prepares them to succeed in early elementary education and beyond.

EARLY LITERACY AND PRE-NUMERACY

The committee believes quality early childhood education programs should be comprehensive programs that address children's social, emotional, and physical development, as well as their cognitive development. In particular, research has shown the critical importance of quality early childhood instruction that addresses language, early literacy, and pre-numeracy skills for school readiness and later academic achievement. Effective early reading and pre-numeracy programs delivered by highly competent early childhood educators are vital for later reading and mathematics proficiencies. Early childhood educators must be equipped with an understanding of how oral language, pre-reading, early literacy and pre-numeracy skills develop. These educators need professional development throughout their careers in order to strengthen their knowledge and skills for promoting children's cognitive abilities including language, pre-reading, and pre-numeracy.

ELIGIBLE PARTNERS

The committee bill focuses on teaching skills and learning strategies by including as eligible partners in the partnership grants academic departments such as psychology, human development, or other departments with comparable expertise in the disciplines of teaching, learning, and child and adolescent development. Other academic departments are also eligible to participate. Additional entities added as eligible partners include early childhood education programs; and educational service agencies; and consortia of local educational agencies.

It is the intent of the committee that community colleges and tribal colleges be eligible to participate in the Teacher Quality Partnership grants. These institutions provide a critical entry point for many teachers and every effort should be made to strengthen the programmatic ties to 4-year institutions of higher education.

INDUCTION

The committee intends the induction programs described in the bill to be formalized and comprehensive programs designed to provide support through not less than the first 2 years of teaching to beginning teachers in order to improve teaching skills and promote retention in the teaching field. Research consistently shows that induction programs reduce the number of teachers who leave their schools or the profession. Induction includes high quality mentoring by experienced and qualified mentors, structured collaboration time with teachers in the same department, grade, or field, structured meeting time with administrators, application of empirically based practice and scientifically valid research on instructional practice, assistance with understanding and using student achievement data, professional development activities, and regular evaluation of the new teacher. Induction programs may also provide reduced teaching loads, the support of a teaching aide, orientation seminars, and regular evaluation of the teacher inductee, the mentors, and the overall program.

TEACHER MENTORING

The committee recognizes the importance of teacher mentoring, for both new and prospective teachers. Teacher mentors must be well trained, and mentoring programs must match mentors by field, grade or subject. The committee believes that every effort should be made to ensure that rural teachers can fully participate in mentoring activities, including providing these opportunities through online or electronic technology.

TEACHER RESIDENCY PROGRAM

Teacher turnover regularly drains schools of their most important resource: qualified educators. It is critical for the committee to address persistent teacher attrition and to improve teacher retention in this bill. The committee supports the development of educators so they have not only the credentials but also the skills and training to be truly effective in the classroom.

This legislation allows partnerships to provide support for new teachers through comprehensive induction programs that include residency programs. Residency programs are school-based preparation programs that enable residents to teach alongside a mentor teacher for an entire academic year while earning a master's degree, teacher certificate or license, and becoming highly qualified. This can provide essential instructional leadership and classroom support for teachers during induction and beyond.

TEACHING SKILLS

Current law provides an allowable use of funds for the partnership grants to prepare teachers with the knowledge and skills to work with and involve parents in their children's education, as well as to provide instruction to diverse student populations, including students with disabilities and with limited English proficiency. The committee, however, believes that all teachers should be prepared to work with and involve parents, as well as provide instruction to diverse student populations, and that such preparation is paramount to effective teaching for all teachers. Accordingly, the committee has defined the term "teaching skills" to include the ability to communicate and work with parents, as well as the ability to increase student achievement, focus on identifying and tailoring academic instruction to students' specific learning needs, (particularly students with disabilities, students who are limited English proficient, gifted and talented students, and students with low literacy levels), use strategies based on empirically based practice and scientifically valid research, and manage a classroom effectively. Under this legislation, eligible partnerships must use title II funds to promote effective teaching skills.

TEACHING STUDENTS WITH SPECIFIC LEARNING NEEDS

The committee has made several improvements in title II to further the success of students with specific learning needs, including students with disabilities, students who are limited English proficient, students who are gifted and talented, students with low literacy and, as applicable, children in early childhood education programs, by focusing on the instruction the students receive in the classroom and on the instruction that teachers receive in their preparation program. The bill also encourages the preparation of teachers so they possess skills and an understanding of effective instructional strategies across all applicable content areas that enable them to differentiate instruction for all students, but specifically students with special needs.

TEACHER RECRUITMENT AND RETENTION

Teacher attrition undermines teacher quality and drives teacher shortages. According to the National Commission on Teaching and America's Future, one-third of beginning teachers leave the profession within 3 years, and nearly one-half leave within 5 years. In high-poverty schools, turnover rates are even worse—approximately one-third higher than the rate for all teachers. Research also shows that teachers who leave are likely to have greater skills than teachers with comparable time in the profession who stay.

The committee encourages and supports the training and development of our Nation's teachers, who are the most important in-school influence on student learning. Partnership grantees must develop and implement effective mechanisms to recruit qualified individuals to become highly qualified teachers through the partnership's programs. The grantees must also develop and improve a sustained pre-service clinical education program, designed to improve teaching skills and provide year-long opportunities for teachers to receive the support, mentoring, instruction, and other training needed to strengthen their capability.

NUMBER OF PARTNERSHIP AWARDS

As explained in section 203, an eligible partnership is limited to one partnership grant during a 5-year period. The committee does not intend, however, to preclude an individual partner in a funded partnership grant from entering into another eligible partnership consisting of new members during that same 5-year period. For example, a State university might partner with a group of local education agencies in one part of the State for one partnership grant and with another, different group of local education agencies in another part of the State for another partnership grant.

PROGRAM EFFECTIVENESS

The committee believes it is critical for States to evaluate the effectiveness of their teacher preparation programs, particularly the impact of such programs on students' academic achievement. Accordingly, the bill requires an annual report to the State and the general public from each institution of higher education that has a traditional teacher preparation program or alternative routes to certification or licensure program and that enrolls students who receive Federal student aid. The report must include the pass rates and scaled scores of students enrolled in the traditional teacher preparation program or alternative routes to State certification or licensure program, comparisons of the program's pass rates and scaled scores with the State averages, and other program information such as number of enrolled students, disaggregated by race and gender.

In addition, each State must submit to the Secretary a similar report on the quality of teacher preparation programs in the State, both for the traditional teacher preparation programs and for alternative routes to State certification or licensure programs. The report must include a description of the reliability and validity of the teacher certification and licensure assessments and how they are aligned with State academic content standards, percentage of students passing the assessments, percentage of students completing requisite coursework, percentage of students participating in alternative routes, admission criteria for the programs, the number of teachers prepared by these programs by academic major, area of licensure and subject area, activities to address shortage areas, and other information.

It is the clear intent of the committee that the Secretary not use any of this information to create a national list or ranking of States, institutions or schools. The Secretary must provide Congress with a report on the grantees under this section, as well as a report comparing States' and institutions' efforts to improve the quality of the current and future teaching force.

The bill also requires States to provide technical assistance to low-performing programs of teacher preparation. Levels of performance shall be solely determined by the States and may include criteria based on information collected to measure program performance and identify those at risk.

Title III—Institutional Aid

Institutions that serve students who historically have been denied access to postsecondary education because of race or national origin play an important role in higher education. They help preserve cultural traditions, prepare students for jobs and careers, and offer affordable, high quality college education to thousands of students. These institutions also provide crucial support services and add hope to communities that have high rates of poverty and unemployment. Recognizing the purpose and importance of these colleges and universities, it is the intent of the committee to reauthorize and strengthen programs supporting institutional aid for institutions with substantial percentages of high-need students, Tribal Colleges and Universities, Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian-Serving Institutions, Native American-Serving Institutions, and Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

AMERICAN INDIAN TRIBALLY CONTROLLED COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

There are 34 federally-supported Tribal Colleges and Universities (TCUs) in the United States. They educate over 30,000 students by offering associate's, bachelor's, and master's degrees as well as over 200 vocational certificate programs. Despite their significance, however, TCUs historically have possessed limited financial resources. This hinders their capacity to maintain and update facilities and instructional resources. In today's world, students' ability to receive a quality higher education depends on the availability of technology and resources available to students at their institution. The committee recognizes that TCUs do not have sufficient financial ability to provide these opportunities without Federal assistance.

To strengthen TCUs' capacity to offer quality educational opportunities to their students, the committee made changes to the way funding is distributed under this section. The committee gives the Secretary the authority to reserve up to 30 percent of awardable funds to address construction needs. If reserved, grants of not less than $1 million will be awarded to institutions for maintenance and renovation. The remaining money shall be awarded so that 60 percent will be distributed to eligible TCUs by formula using the Indian student count and 40 percent will be distributed in equal shares to those same institutions. The committee eliminates the wait-out period for these schools and establishes a minimum award of $500,000.

NATIVE AMERICAN-SERVING, NONTRIBAL INSTITUTIONS

The term "Native American" can be broad and encompassing. For the purposes of this legislation, the committee intends the term to mean a person having origins in any of the original peoples of North America and who maintains cultural identification through tribal affiliation or community recognition. This term may include Alaskan Natives and Native Hawaiians.

Native Americans are attending college at greater rates than ever and many of these students are attending nontribal institutions of higher education. In 2002, 42 public and private institutions of higher education served Native American student populations of 10 percent or greater. However, despite the increasing number of Native American students eligible for college enrollment, only 11 percent of the population graduates with a bachelor's degree or higher. Moreover, Native American students are disproportionately enrolled in 2-year colleges, and are much less likely to finish college than their non-Native American peers. Native American student educational attainment continues to lag far behind that of the total student population. Many Native American students come from families with low incomes, have parents with low levels of education, and are less likely to have completed a pre-college curriculum in high school.

With increasing enrollment, nontribal institutions of higher education that serve large populations of Native American students require resources to improve and expand their capacity to serve the unique and diverse needs of their Native American student population. To assist nontribal institutions of higher education better serve Native American students, the committee has established a competitive grant program for those institutions serving a Native American student population of 10 percent or greater. Grants will support curriculum development and academic instruction, faculty development, and student services such as academic tutoring and counseling. The committee recognizes that the grant program will improve the capacity of Native American-serving, nontribal institutions of higher education to provide quality educational opportunities for Native American students to narrow the educational attainment gap and to better prepare students to meet the demands of a competitive workforce.

HISTORICALLY BLACK COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

The committee believes there is great value in supporting programs for Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs). Although the Nation's HBCUs represent less than 5 percent of all the Nation's colleges and universities, they award almost 30 percent of all baccalaureate degrees received by African-Americans. Further, in some areas of science, math, and engineering, HBCUs account for more than half of all such degrees awarded to African-Americans. HBCUs also greatly contribute to the overall percentage of graduate and professional degrees earned by African-Americans. Nine of the top 10 colleges that graduate the most African-Americans who go on to earn Ph.D.s are HBCUs. Xavier University's graduate programs alone produce a quarter of the Nation's African-American pharmacists and send the largest number of African-American students on to medical schools. The list of historically black graduate and professional institutions with qualified programs eligible to receive grants was expanded to include: Alabama State University, Coppin State University, Prairie View A&M University, Fayetteville State University, Delaware State University, Langston University, and West Virginia State University.

Title IV—Student Assistance

PELL GRANTS

The committee recognizes that Pell grants are the foundation for all need-based aid. In the 2003–04 award year, the $12.7 billion investment in the Pell grant program funded 5.1 million students with average grants of $2,466. By making necessary changes to the program, it is the committee's intent to increase the utility of Pell grants in ensuring that more low-income students are successful in post-secondary education.

The committee heard testimony from both traditional students and students who are working adults who stated that they would like to attend school year-round so they can complete their education earlier. However, these students have been unable to accelerate their programs due to financial need, since current law allows them to receive only one scheduled Pell grant award during an award year. Although the Secretary is authorized to permit a student to receive two Pell grants during 1 award year on a case-by-case basis, the authority has not been exercised. The committee's intent is to ensure that students enrolled at least half-time in a 2-year or 4-year program leading to an associate's or bachelor's degree are able to receive up to two Pell grants in a single award year to enable them to accelerate completion of their educational programs.

The committee also limits eligibility for Pell grants for 18 semesters or an equivalent period of time if semesters are not used. The committee believes students should be able to complete an undergraduate degree in 18 semesters.

ACADEMIC COMPETITIVENESS AND SMART GRANTS

The committee is aware of concerns that have surfaced during the first-year implementation of the Academic Competitiveness Grant program, and has made several changes that will increase eligibility for the program and ensure that it is administered equitably among various groups of students. The limitation of eligibility for the grants to United States citizens is inconsistent with the eligibility requirements for other types of Federal student assistance and has been eliminated. In order to benefit working students and others who cannot attend college full-time, the committee extends eligibility for the grants to students who are enrolled in college on at least a half-time basis. In addition, the committee clarifies that students who are enrolled in 1- or 2-year certificate programs are eligible for Academic Competitiveness Grants. In light of the fact that many degree programs in science, technology and mathematics require 5 years of study rather than 4, the committee allows students in such programs who otherwise meet the requirements to receive SMART grants in their fifth year of college.

TRIO PROGRAMS

The committee respects the work of the TRIO programs and recognizes their critical contribution to the success of low-income, first generation students as they apply, attend and earn degrees from undergraduate and graduate institutions. To ensure that information about the effectiveness of these programs is publicly available, the committee requires each program to submit information on its outcomes to the Department of Education, and requires the Secretary to prepare and submit that information to the Congress, grantees and the public on an annual basis. In evaluating programs, the Secretary is required to identify practices that further the achievement of the outcome criteria in the law in order to promote promising practices in the field.

The committee recognizes the value of high quality programs and expects that in evaluating applications, the Secretary will award prior experience points only to those applicants that have administered programs that demonstrate the highest quality.

Controversy has arisen in recent competitions about applications that have been received from different campuses of the same institution of higher education, or multiple applications from one institution of higher education to serve distinct populations. It is the intent of the committee that a college or university with more than one campus be eligible to submit multiple applications and be considered for funding as long as its applications are meritorious. It is also the intent of the committee that an institution of higher education be permitted to submit more than one grant to meet the needs of particular populations within a program. Grantees may find that they need dedicated programs to serve students with disabilities or students with language needs; grantees should be given the opportunity to complete separate applications, each of which should be considered on its merits.

The committee has included as permissible services under the TRIO programs activities specially designed for homeless children and youth and for students who are in foster care or aging out of the foster care system. These provisions are intended to increase the availability of services that meet the unique needs of homeless students and students in foster care.

For the first time, the committee has directed that some activities become mandatory in the college access programs. For Upward Bound and Talent Search, each grantee will be required to provide tutoring, advisement in high school course selection and in post-secondary course selection where possible, assistance in preparing for admissions tests and applications, assistance in identifying financial aid opportunities (including resources for locating public and private scholarships), and services to improve financial literacy.

The committee understands that Talent Search programs often cannot offer direct tutoring to all participants. However, if a program does not provide tutoring, it should connect participating students with appropriate tutoring available directly in their high school or through community based organizations to ensure that Talent Search participants are making satisfactory progress in all academic subjects as they prepare to apply to college.

In the Student Support Services program, the committee changed “personal counseling” in current law to “consistent, individualized, personal, career and academic counseling provided by assigned counselors” under permissible activities, to encourage Student Support Services programs to link students with at least one adult with whom a student can establish a long-term relationship.

While having the same person manage cases in the Educational Opportunity Centers (EOCs) would be beneficial, the committee understands that both the numbers of those served and the types of services provided often do not allow for that consistency. The committee encourages EOCs to do all that they can to facilitate relationships that provide the maximum support to their clients.

The committee notes with concern the Secretary’s establishment of an absolute priority for the Upward Bound program grant competition in 2006–07. Some Members of the committee believe that in establishing the absolute priority, the Secretary contravened the provisions established by Congress regarding the program design and operation of the Upward Bound program. Other members of the committee agree with the intent of some of these provisions. In light of these views, the committee believes it is important to address the components of the absolute priority.

The committee agrees that priority should be given to Upward Bound projects that select not less than 30 percent of all first-time participants from students at high risk for academic failure. It now authorizes such priority legislatively. However, the committee does not believe that the Secretary should limit participation in an Upward Bound project only to students who enter such programs or projects in the 9th grade. While the committee notes the benefits of ensuring that students participate in an Upward Bound project for as long as possible, the committee notes that many Upward Bound projects currently serve, and have the capacity to serve, students who enter Upward Bound in the 10th, 11th, and 12th grades. The committee believes that these students should not be prevented from receiving Upward Bound services.

GAINING EARLY AWARENESS AND READINESS FOR UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS (GEAR UP)

Since its creation in 1998, the GEAR UP program has proved to be an impressive partner in improving access to postsecondary education for the neediest students. However, the committee has heard concerns that GEAR UP is difficult to administer. Therefore, the committee has changed some provisions to make the program more flexible for institutions and helpful to students, thereby enabling the program to further enhance students' access to postsecondary education.

The committee is concerned about the growing number of students requiring remedial courses in postsecondary education. One way to address this concern is to ensure that more students take rigorous and challenging coursework at the secondary school level. Accordingly, the legislation requires States and partnerships to encourage more students to enroll in a rigorous and challenging curriculum. It is the hope of the committee that appropriate academic support provided in pre-collegiate programs, along with improved professional development opportunities, will minimize students' need for remedial education and encourage timely progression toward college degrees.

The committee also includes, as optional activities for States, the use of GEAR UP funds in developing new secondary school models and personalized dropout recovery programs to improve secondary school completion and college success for grades 11–14. New secondary school models are coherent, whole-school designs that provide participating students with early exposure to college level courses and environments. Such models permit students to earn an associate's degree along with a high school diploma (or within the next year) or transferable credits toward a recognized postsecondary credential (such as an industry certificate or apprenticeship). Also critical are programs to help high school drop-outs gain access to college. These funds could also be used to develop personalized dropout recovery programs at community colleges that allow students to complete a regular high school diploma and begin college level work toward a recognized postsecondary degree. These State-level models will demonstrate ways to improve secondary school completion and postsecondary success for grades 11–14 that can be replicated in other States and districts.

The committee recognizes that homelessness puts students at high risk of academic failure and dropping out of school. Therefore, the bill gives priority status to homeless and foster students for the GEAR UP program. Furthermore, the committee intends that GEAR UP programs coordinate activities with school district liaisons designated under subtitle VII–B of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act. McKinney-Vento school district liaisons are well-positioned to assist the GEAR UP program with the identification, outreach, and recruitment of homeless students, and can help GEAR UP programs maximize available resources for these students.

Finally, the committee includes as permissible services under the GEAR UP program activities specially designed for homeless children and youth and for students who are in foster care or aging out of the foster care system. These provisions are intended to increase the availability of services that meet the unique needs of homeless students and students in foster care.

The committee makes it permissible for grantees to continue providing services to students who have completed secondary school and begun postsecondary education. The committee takes this step to enable GEAR UP programs to make it possible for students to receive ongoing, consistent support from the program that will enable them to succeed in college.

The scholarship is a key component of the program, not only because of the financial assistance it provides, but also because it serves as an incentive for the participating student to complete an academic program. The committee believes it is critical to the success of students served by the GEAR UP program, particularly State programs, that the scholarship funds be available to them upon completion of a secondary degree or its equivalent. To this end, the committee retains the requirement that State grantees dedicate a significant portion of grant funds for use in scholarship programs, which will be held in a separate trust for each cohort of students served by the State, or in the case of scholarships offered by partnership grantees, by the partnership.

It is the consensus of the committee that it is appropriate that students attending previous partnership schools may be served in future grants as long as the application demonstrates continued need for funding new activities. Therefore, subsequent applications from current grantees should be considered.

LEVERAGING EDUCATIONAL ASSISTANCE PARTNERSHIP (LEAP) PROGRAM

The committee believes that the changes made to LEAP—including providing students with information about their grants and implementing the Grants for Access and Persistence program—will strengthen LEAP by leveraging the financial assistance provided under this program in a way that is more effective for students, States, and the Federal Government. These improvements to LEAP will broaden participation to include all stakeholders working to increase the number of financially needy students who can access and succeed in college.

The committee replaces the Special Leveraging Educational Assistance Partnership authorized under the LEAP program with Grants for Access and Persistence (GAP). By so doing, the committee seeks to reinvigorate LEAP, the only program in which the Federal and State governments work together to extend higher education opportunities to financially needy students. Under the GAP program, for LEAP funds above $30 million, States will be rewarded, through higher levels of matching funds, for creating cohesive partnerships with colleges, foundations, businesses, and early intervention and mentoring programs. Access and persistence partnerships have three main purposes: to provide low-income students with adequate grant aid to ensure access to 4-year colleges and eliminate unmet need; to provide early notification to low-income students of their eligibility for financial aid; and to increase participation of low-income students in early information, intervention, mentoring, and outreach programs. Research on college access programs with such components has shown that participating students are more financially and academically prepared, and thus more likely to enroll in college and persist to degree completion.

The committee strongly encourages States to develop strong and broad partnerships that contain philanthropies and businesses, in addition to colleges and early intervention and mentoring programs. The committee also specifically gives States flexibility in undertaking the new responsibilities authorized under the GAP program, including the ability to tailor the partnerships in ways that meet each State's individual needs. The committee encourages the Secretary and States to coordinate the early notification components of the GAP program with other existing or new early financial aid information efforts in order to avoid duplication of services or information.

The committee encourages the Secretary to provide States with sufficient flexibility to implement the GAP program efficiently and to ensure that program regulations, such as those regarding the portability of grants, align with existing LEAP program regulations. In light of the changes to LEAP with the addition of the GAP program, the committee also encourages the Secretary to provide transition time to States to assure the success of this new initiative.

THE HIGH SCHOOL EQUIVALENCY PROGRAM AND COLLEGE ASSISTANCE MIGRANT PROGRAM

The committee recognizes that migrant students are among the most disadvantaged youth in this Nation. Current estimates place the dropout rate for migrant youth at between 50 and 60 percent. The High School Equivalency Program (HEP) and College Assistance Migrant Program (CAMP) have been successful in helping migrant students become productive members of society.

HEP provides intensive GED instruction and support services to migrant students who have not completed high school. HEP provides personal, academic and vocational counseling, health services, stipends, and housing for residential programs. CAMP grantees provide intensive support services to help migrant students make the transition into college. CAMP offers academic support, personal and career counseling, stipends, scholarships, health services, and other supports necessary to ensure that migrant students are successful in college.

The committee expands and improves the current programs so that children of migrant and seasonal farmworkers can share in the American dream and become more productive members of society.

The Higher Education Amendments of 2007 Act expands eligibility for CAMP to include "immediate family members," including spouses and siblings who would benefit the large migrant community. The bill also expands the definition of allowable activities and support services to include programs that ensure that migrant students succeed in earning their GED and completing college, such as transportation, child care and follow up services for CAMP students. The bill also contains other important provisions including allowing for technical assistance support and an increase in the amount of minimum grants to ensure that programs receive sufficient funding to be effective.

CHILD CARE ACCESS MEANS PARENTS IN SCHOOL

Changes to the Child Care Access Means Parents in School (CCAMPIS) program reflect the committee's belief in the vital importance of promoting and expanding campus-based child care for low-income students to assist them in attending and completing postsecondary education. To help promote greater expansion of campus-based child care, the committee increased the minimum grant award from $10,000 to $30,000, to take effect when the amount appropriated for the program equals or exceeds $20,000,000. The committee believes that raising the minimum grant will increase the pool of institutions applying for and receiving grants, which will help to expand campus-based child care programs. Aligned with the committee's belief in the importance of increasing the number of institutions offering campus-based child care to low-income students, inclusion of a funding trigger for increasing the minimum grant award reflects the committee's aim of not wanting a reduction in the current number of grantees participating in the program. The committee also expands the definition of a low-income student to include individuals who are enrolled in a graduate or professional course or who are in the United States for a temporary period of time.

Continued support for this program demonstrates the committee's recognition of the benefits of campus-based childcare to parents enrolled in postsecondary education. These benefits include convenience of location, affordability, and high quality care. Despite the importance of campus-based child care, at current levels it is often not accessible to students, especially those who are low-income. The committee believes that support for campus-based child care services serves the central goal of Federal higher education policy of improving access to postsecondary education.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ON DEFERMENT AND FORBEARANCE

The committee heard testimony from witnesses about the need for more and better information on how to handle student loans in the repayment period. Borrowers need to understand the terms and conditions of their loans so they can act responsibly. One witness noted that many of the most serious problems former students face are generated by compounding interest that causes the payment obligations of borrowers under financial duress to increase dramatically. Therefore, the committee has expanded the information lenders must provide to all borrowers who are granted forbearance and to borrowers of unsubsidized loans who are granted a deferment to enable the borrowers to understand the impact of capitalization of interest on the loan principal and the total amount of interest to be paid during the life of the loan. The committee understands that the length of a deferment or forbearance is subject to change with a change in the borrower's circumstances. Therefore, lenders may provide borrowers with an estimate of interest that will be capitalized, and an estimate of total interest to be paid, using sample calculations.

RESTRICTIONS ON INDUCEMENTS AND PREFERRED LENDER LISTS

The committee believes strongly that lenders, guaranty agencies and institutions of higher education must act with honesty and integrity at all times to ensure that the financial aid programs under title IV serve the best interests of students. For this reason, the Higher Education Act has long restricted lenders and guaranty agencies from offering inducements to institutions of higher education. The act also requires institutions of higher education to enter program participation agreements that prevent institutions from accepting inducements or engaging in other activities that would compromise the integrity of the Federal student aid programs.

However, as an investigation by the HELP committee Chairman has documented, some lenders, guaranty agencies, and colleges participating in the title IV student loan programs have engaged in practices that violate the anti-inducement provisions of the Higher Education Act or otherwise contravene their intent. The committee believes strongly that abuses should be curtailed, and made an extensive bipartisan effort to strengthen the anti-inducement and program participation agreement provisions of the Higher Education Act in this bill.

To that end, Section 421 of the bill amends Section 428A of the Higher Education Act to specify that guaranty agencies participating in the FFEL program may not offer stock or other securities, prizes, travel, entertainment expenses, or tuition repayment to an institution of higher education or a lender, and may not perform or pay another party to perform any function under part B, D, or G of title IV that an institution of higher education is required to perform. Section 435 of the bill applies similar restrictions to FFEL lenders under Section 425 of the Higher Education Act, and further specifies that lenders may not offer technology equipment at below-market value, additional financial aid funds to an institution of higher education or its employees. This section also prohibits FFEL lenders from entering into consulting arrangements with or otherwise compensating a college employee who has responsibilities with respect to student loans and financial aid, except that a lender may reimburse such employee for reasonable expenses incurred in serving on a lender's advisory board. The committee also intends to prohibit unsolicited mailings of student loan applications by guaranty agencies and lenders, by any means of delivery.

Section 481 of the bill extends similar prohibitions against an institution of higher education accepting such inducements. It requires institutions to establish, follow, and enforce a code of conduct that, at a minimum, specifies that institutions and their employees are prohibited from: receiving anything from a lender in exchange for any advantage to the lender with respect to student loans; accepting any gift or trip of more than nominal value, except for reasonable expenses and domestic travel for professional development that will improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the title IV programs; or entering into a consulting contract with a lender or any other contract to provide services to a lender, in the case of an employee of the financial aid office or any other employee who has responsibility over student loans.

The committee emphasizes that these new restrictions are not meant to prohibit an institution of higher education from receiving a philanthropic contribution from a lender, such as support for an endowed professorship, as long as such contribution is not made in exchange for an advantage sought by the lender to make educational loans to students enrolled at the institution. The committee also does not intend for these restrictions to prohibit lenders, guaranty agencies, and institutions of higher education from participating in or supporting outside events designed to assist students in applying to college or completing the Federal financial aid process, such as College Goal Sunday.

Finally, the committee has included new requirements related to the "preferred lender lists" that many colleges use to recommend lenders to students and parents seeking FFEL loans. The committee understands that preferred lender lists can be a useful tool in helping students and families compare the terms and benefits that various lenders offer and decide which lender to obtain their student loans from. However, the committee is also aware of numerous instances in which colleges' preferred lender lists have contained only one or two lenders, and other instances in which the lists have been presented in such a way as to suggest that the student must borrow from a particular lender in order to secure a FFEL loan through the school. To address these concerns, the bill requires that preferred lender lists for FFEL loans include at least three non-affiliated lenders; disclose why the institution has identified the lender as preferred, especially with respect to the terms and conditions of the lender's loans; and a prominent statement that students and parents do not have to obtain FFEL loans through lenders on the preferred lender list.

INFORMATION ON CONSOLIDATION LOANS

To address concerns heard from borrowers and schools that some borrowers who consolidated their loans did not understand that by doing so, they were forgoing benefits, the committee expanded the information that lenders must provide to borrowers who apply to consolidate their loans. Key among the new provisions are the requirements that the information about the possible impact of loan consolidation must include the length of repayment of the consolidation loan, the total interest to be paid on the loan, whether consolidation would result in a loss of loan benefits under the FFEL or Direct Loan program and, in the case of a borrower who plans to include a Perkins Loan, the fact that the borrower will lose all interest-free periods and cancellations for which the borrower would have qualified under the Perkins program; Borrowers must also be advised that they may change repayment plans and that they may pre-pay their consolidation loan or pay on a shorter schedule.

LOAN BENEFIT DISCLOSURES

It is the opinion of the committee that borrowers and potential borrowers should be provided full disclosure on benefits and repayment options. This should include, but not be limited to, information on reductions in interest rates by repaying a title IV loan by automatic payroll or checking account deduction or by completing a program of on-time repayment. Information should include any limitations on such plans, explicit information on the reasons a borrower may lose eligibility, and a description of the number or percentage of borrowers who successfully participate in such benefit programs.

Definition of eligible lender

The committee recognizes that a State agency lender may be charged by the State legislature with providing effective and efficient services to that State's students. While the committee expects that all lenders and university financial aid personnel will adhere to a rigorous code of ethics, the committee does not intend that this legislation will preclude one State agency from working efficiently and effectively with another State agency to provide student services, including in the delivery of State education loan and grant programs funded and administered by the State. Nothing in this section is intended by the committee to prohibit a State agency that is a student loan lender from entering into a cooperative effort with another State agency, a State postsecondary institution, a secondary school, an early intervention and outreach program, or other similar entity to provide a comprehensive system of early financial aid information or other information designed to increase the number of students who enroll and persist in postsecondary education. Specifically, this section is not intended to prevent a State agency lender from entering into cooperative agreements with the State university system or other State agency or non-profit entity to fulfill the allowable activities of the College Access Partnership Grant Program provided for under P.L. 110-84, the College Cost Reduction and Access Act.

FEDERAL WORK-STUDY

The committee recognizes the commitment of many colleges to integrate community service into their curriculum and into their institutional mission. In this reauthorization, the committee maintains the 7 percent mandatory spending of Work-Study funds on community service related jobs, but now gives institutions the option of meeting the community service requirement by providing a Statement that says that 15 percent of their entire student body is involved in community service. In addition, the committee recognizes the effort involved in connecting students with jobs and has increased the job location and development dollar amount from $50,000 to $75,000 on each campus.

Work colleges

The bill includes language that encourages new models of student organized volunteer service projects. The committee believes that providing students the opportunity to participate in volunteer service projects associated with institutions of higher education is an excellent way to develop leadership and civic engagement.

PERKINS LOAN PROGRAM

The committee extends the authority of the Perkins Loan Program and the benefit extended through these loans to needy students and encourages institutions to continue to participate in this program.

The committee includes language that adds staff members working full time in a pre-K or child care program licensed or regulated by the State to the list of individuals eligible for Perkins loan cancellation. Inclusion of these individuals for loan forgiveness is meant to create an incentive for entry and retention of highly-trained staff into State licensed or regulated pre-K or child care programs. Today, more than 11 million children receive care outside of the home before kindergarten. For millions of children, child care is their early learning setting in addition to their homes. Given that current Federal initiatives require State child care plans to develop a professional development system for child care providers, the committee believes it is important to fulfill this goal by helping to provide such early educators with the assistance they need to get a degree and to remain in the field.

The committee also recognized the needs of Tribally Controlled Colleges in recruiting faculty and added those faculty members to the population who are eligible for loan cancellation.

Finally, the committee chose to add speech and language therapists and librarians, with a master's degree, who work in a title I eligible elementary or secondary school or, in the case of librarians, in a public library in a geographic area that contains one or more eligible schools, to the population of those eligible for Perkins Loan cancellation.

NEED ANALYSIS

Verification

While the bill would significantly simplify the financial aid application process for students, the verification process remains burdensome for students and institutions. The committee therefore strongly encourages the Secretary to take steps necessary to simplify the verification process and increase the use of technology in verification.

GENERAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO STUDENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

In an effort to ensure that the financial aid system overseen by the Department of Education operates as smoothly as possible, the committee clarifies that the compliance calendar should provide all users with due dates for all reports and disclosures to be submitted, clearly defining the recipients and required method of transmittal and any other relevant information.

FAFSA

The committee believes that the application process for Federal student assistance is unduly burdensome for many students and families, and that steps should be taken to dramatically simplify the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, the form students and families complete to apply for Federal aid. The committee bill creates a new, highly simplified paper form, the EZ FAFSA, for low-income students who are eligible for the automatic zero Expected Family Contribution (EFC). The committee bill also phases out the full paper FAFSA and requires the Secretary to use savings from doing so to increase access for low-income students to electronic forms on the Department of Education's Web site for the FAFSA, currently known as FAFSA on the Web. It is the intent of the committee that the Secretary will field- and pilot-test the EZ FAFSA prior to full implementation, and that the paper EZ FAFSA will be appropriately phased in as the full paper FAFSA is phased out. In addition, the committee expects the Secretary to maintain an easily downloadable and printable version of the full paper FAFSA, to the extent feasible, that would allow students who may not have adequate access to the Internet to download, print, and submit such forms for full processing. To otherwise help students eligible for the auto-zero gain access to the simplified forms, the committee authorizes a free telefile system for students without Internet access that the committee encourages the Secretary to quickly test and implement, if feasible.

The committee bill also creates highly simplified electronic application forms to enable all students to answer the minimum number of questions necessary, including only those required by their State of residence. In addition, the committee strongly encourages more States to accept the two simplified need analysis formulas, the automatic zero EFC (auto-zero) and the Simplified Needs Test (SNT), and to annually communicate with the Secretary regarding their data requirements and use of simplified formulas. It is also the intent of the committee to request a study by the Government Accountability Office regarding the benefits and costs to States of increasing their acceptance of the auto-zero and SNT. In addition, the committee intends to further simplify eligibility for the auto-zero and SNT by aligning eligibility for these formulas with current or past participation in Federal means-tested benefit programs. The committee bill also allows students to apply for financial aid earlier and to complete the FAFSA at any time in order to receive early, nonbinding estimates of their EFC. Finally, the committee bill protects students by strengthening provisions regarding the prohibition of charges for FAFSA completion.

Beyond simplifying the FAFSA itself, the committee also believes that other approaches to simplify the Federal student aid determination process should be tested for possible adoption in future reauthorizations. To that end, the committee has authorized an early application and award demonstration program, which will allow students to receive a Federal aid determination in their junior year of high school, and a study to develop alternative approaches for calculating the expected family contribution that use substantially less income and asset data, including an approach that would allow the Department of Education to pre-populate the FAFSA using individuals' tax form data, provided by the Internal Revenue Service.

Early awareness of financial aid eligibility

The committee bill creates a comprehensive system to provide students and families as early as middle school, as well as adult learners, with better information regarding financial aid and early estimates of their aid eligibility. It is the intent of the committee for students and parents to receive adequate estimates of their eligibility for aid from multiple sources, including State and institutional aid, as early as possible to encourage students and families to prepare and plan for college. In addition, the committee encourages the Secretary to conduct a feasibility study to determine the practicability of allowing dependent students to apply for financial aid in their junior year using prior year income data.

Expanded entrance and exit counseling

The committee is concerned that borrowers either do not receive sufficient information about their student loans, or do not receive appropriate information on provisions of their loans at the right time, to enable them to make informed decisions. Some borrowers do not know that they can change their repayment plans or can request deferment or forbearance of repayment if they meet certain conditions. Other borrowers have requested loan deferment or forbearance but have not understood the impact of capitalization of interest on the amount they will owe. In other cases, borrowers who have consolidated their loans have given up benefits on their underlying loans, including loan deferments and cancellations, without understanding the consequences. To address these concerns, the committee has expanded entrance and exit counseling requirements for lenders and institutions of higher education so borrowers receive comprehensive information on their loans both when they receive them and when the borrowers leave school.

Institutional information

In addition to the information on college costs, the committee also believes it is important for students and their parents to have access to information regarding the transfer of credit, employment and graduate education outcomes. The committee includes these provisions in the list of information that must be made readily available to prospective and enrolled students. However, the committee recognizes the efforts of many institutions of higher education to provide data on these outcomes already, and encourages the Secretary to consider these efforts when implementing this section, in order to ensure these requirements do not become an onerous requirement for institutions.

The committee notes that the Executive committee of the State Higher Education Executive Officers (SHEEO) has directed its staff to explore means of promoting the further development and voluntary coordination of student record systems among the States. The SHEEO Executive committee action was based on the recognition that, in varying degrees of comprehensiveness, 39 States already implement student unit record systems that enable States to inform public policies by examining information on college attendance patterns, completion rates, actual costs, and the availability of financial assistance for all students.

The SHEEO Executive committee action reflected the following purposes and principles: SHEEO should examine existing State data systems and encourage the coordination and consistent development of such systems to improve the accuracy and validity of policy information and facilitate the development of information-sharing systems to monitor postsecondary participation, costs, and student success. Such systems ideally should include information on: (1) Student characteristics (demographic data); (2) Student enrollment; (3) Costs and financial assistance; and (4) Degree or certificate completion.

The committee encourages those 11 States that do not currently have an effective State data system to develop such a system. However, the committee includes in this reauthorization bill a provision that would prohibit the Department of Education from establishing a national unit record data system.

All State data systems should continue to maintain fail-safe safeguards to protect the privacy of individuals. All data analysis should be used exclusively for policy research on groups of students, with no disclosure or reporting of data on individuals or small groups that might involve violating the privacy of individuals. The committee supports research and discussion to foster improved policy data systems, involving and informing all sectors of higher education, policymakers, and others seeking to improve educational attainment in the United States.

Institutions are now required to report disaggregated information on the student body by gender, major racial or ethnic groups and Pell-eligibility status. In reporting graduation rates, institutions are allowed to take into consideration service in the armed forces, religious missions, or Government foreign service when calculating time to degree.

The committee includes language regarding the transfer of credit based on the findings of a GAO study, issued in October of 2005, that indicates many institutions do not have a formal transfer of credit policy, and that many institutions do not accept credits from institutions accredited by certain accrediting bodies or associations. Institutions are required to have a clearly stated public disclosure of their transfer of credit policies, including a statement of whether the institution denies transfer of credit solely on the basis of the accrediting agency or association that accredited the institution from which the student is transferring. This provision is intended to make sure that students have the best information possible when considering transferring from one institution to another. The committee does not expect this provision to impinge on the ability of institutions to develop articulation agreements with other institutions within the State or outside of the State, nor does the committee expect this provision to limit the ability of institutions to develop transfer of credit policies that take into account other factors, such as the quality, rigor, or relevance of the transferring students' previous coursework.

National Student Loan Data System

The committee establishes principles for administering the National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS) and adds requirements to address the committee's concern that the Secretary does not have guidelines either for restricting access to NSLDS or restoring access to NSLDS after it has been restricted. The committee intends for the Secretary to manage NSLDS in compliance with the intent and requirements of the Federal Information Security Management Act. Also, the committee intends that the Secretary take steps to ensure that borrowers are informed of the need for their data to be included in NSLDS and of the measures taken by the Secretary to protect their information, and that borrowers understand who will be able to access their information. The Secretary is required to provide an annual report to Congress that includes a description of the effectiveness of existing privacy safeguards in protecting student and parent information in NSLDS and information on the success of any new protocols in more effectively preventing abuse of the data system and the ability of the Secretary to monitor how the system is being used.

Experimental sites

The committee retains experimental sites and suggests that in addition to the list of suggested areas of experimentation, new or existing sites may want to look at the use of modular or compressed coursework as a way to expedite degree completion.

Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance

The Advisory Committee is charged with conducting a review and analysis of title IV regulations. It is the intent of the committee that the review and analysis of regulations will not take the place of the Advisory Committee's other ongoing charges from Congress, including those related to access and persistence for low- and middle-income students. The committee intends for the Advisory Committee to conduct the regulatory review and analysis while also fulfilling its existing responsibilities and its additional new charge to conduct a study on innovative pathways to degree attainment, including pathways for adults and out-of-school youth. It is also the intent of the committee for the Secretary to provide the Advisory Committee with the necessary resources to be able to conduct the review and analysis of regulations while fulfilling its other responsibilities to Congress.

ACCREDITATION

Accrediting agencies or associations recognized by the Department of Education are invested with a public trust and perform an important public function. Congress expects that those receiving Department recognition will perform those functions with the same diligence and competence as would be provided by any public body and that their procedures will be conducted with the same level of transparency, due process, and accountability that would apply to the Department if it performed this function itself.

The new language requiring accrediting agencies or associations to apply and enforce their standards in a manner that respects the missions of institutions of higher education, including religious missions, reflects these goals. It is not intended to allow an institution to deny a person participation in, the benefits of, or to subject a person to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance under existing laws, including those with respect to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, or disability; or because the person has not complied with a standard of the institution that requires the person to discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, or disability.

Due process

The committee is concerned that institutions of higher education do not currently receive appropriate minimum due process protections when undergoing accreditation evaluations. Accordingly, the committee has added a new section which provides that, prior to any final action, an adversely affected institution may submit a written response to be included in the record of such decision and, further, that this institution may seek an appeal before a panel comprised only of members that did not participate in the underlying adverse decision and do not otherwise possess any conflict of interest.

With respect to the awarding of accreditation or reaccreditation of an institution, the word “finding” is included in the committee bill. The word finding means a substantive conclusion related to the agency’s standards or the Secretary’s criteria that is reached in connection with a decision.

TIMELY INFORMATION ABOUT LOANS

The committee has specified that lenders must include certain, borrower-specific information when billing a borrower. However, this requirement should not be construed to require a lender to mail the required information required to the borrower. Some lenders provide online accounts, which they update regularly with borrower-specific information, and which borrowers access to schedule payments, check account status, and generally manage their student loan accounts. Lenders may use this type of notification platform or any other electronic format to provide the information required by this section

AUCTION EVALUATION AND REPORT

The committee intends for the Government Accountability Office (GAO) to conduct a study of the pilot program established for the auction of Federal PLUS Loans under P.L. 110–84, the College Cost Reduction and Access Act. GAO’s evaluation should cover at least five topic areas. First, GAO should determine the extent of any savings to the Federal Government that are generated through the pilot program, compared to the cost the Federal Government would have incurred in operating the program in the absence of a pilot program. This should include a description of any administrative costs to the Department in coordinating the auctions, and an analysis of how the costs of administering the auction compare to the savings, if any, realized by the auction.

Second, GAO should determine the number of lenders participating in the pilot program, and the extent to which the program generated competition among lenders. GAO should include in its review a description of how many unaffiliated financial institutions submitted bids for the right to originate FFEL Parent PLUS loans nationwide; a description of how many unaffiliated financial institutions originated FFEL Parent PLUS loans; an analysis of the national average special allowance payment (SAP) on new FFEL Parent PLUS loans determined by the auction; and an analysis of the range in SAP levels across the country.

Third, GAO should determine the impact of the transition to, and operation of, the auction on the ability of lenders and institutions of higher education to disburse loans made through the pilot program smoothly and efficiently; the ability of parents to obtain loans made through the pilot program in a timely and efficient manner; and the ability of borrowers to consolidate their loans. The GAO should also include in its review an analysis of the ability of the Department to effectively plan, implement and administer the auction; any additional regulatory burdens that may have emerged in the process of implementing and conducting the auctions; and the ability of the Department to guard against collusion in the bidding process.

Fourth, GAO should review the differential impact, if any, of the auction among the States, including between rural and non-rural States. GAO should include in its review a description of what States are served at each SAP level; which lenders are submitting bids for which States; whether similar lenders are bidding on States with similar characteristics (such as numbers of students or the rural vs. urban setting of the campuses); which States are being served by a lender of last resort; and which lenders are bidding on multiple States.

Fifth, GAO should assess the feasibility of using the mechanism piloted under this section to operate other Federal higher education loan programs. This assessment should include a description of the types of lenders who are the winning bidders; a description of the total volume of new FFEL Parent PLUS loans under the pilot, relative to volume of pre-auction years; a description of the total volume of new DL Parent PLUS loans under the pilot, relative to volume of pre-auction years; and an analysis of whether there have been changes in the number or type of concerns, questions or complaints received by the Federal Student Aid Ombudsman concerning FFEL Parent PLUS loans. Also, GAO should include an analysis of whether there have been changes in the quality of customer service being provided to FFEL Parent PLUS borrowers; an analysis of whether borrowers in some States are being offered benefits that are not being offered to borrowers in other States; a description of to what extent borrowers are taking out more than one FFEL Parent PLUS loan, and doing so with multiple lenders; and an analysis of whether borrowers or institutions of higher education have experienced any shortfalls in FFEL lender capacity, relative to pre-auction years.

GAO should report preliminary findings to the Chairman and Ranking Member of the committee no later than September 1, 2010; provide an interim report on September 1, 2012; and issue a final report on September 1, 2014.

Title V—Developing Institutions

According to Census Bureau data, the Hispanic population in the United States grew by 25.7 million between 1970 and 2000. The most recent data indicate that the Hispanic population represents approximately 14 percent of the U.S. population, making it the Nation's largest minority group. Further, while the overall labor force is projected to slow down over the next decades as an increasing number of workers reach retirement age, the Hispanic labor force is expected to continue growing at a fast pace. It will expand by nearly 10 million workers between now and 2020. Estimates project that by the year 2050, one in four Americans will be of Hispanic origin. The committee recognizes that the Nation's economic and social success rests, in large part, on the level of skills and knowledge attained by our Hispanic population. Hispanic-serving institutions play a critical role in the attainment of such skills and knowledge.

Hispanic Americans face challenges in enrolling in and graduating from institutions of higher education. Hispanic-serving institutions provide a significant proportion of postsecondary opportunities for Hispanic students despite having limited resources and capacity. The purpose of this title is to expand educational opportunities for Hispanic students by enhancing academic offerings and resources of colleges and universities that educate the majority of these students.

Hispanic-serving institutions (HSIs) have a record of increasing the number of Hispanic students enrolling in and graduating from college. Although HSIs account for only 5 percent of all institutions of higher education in the United States, HSIs enroll over half (51 percent) of all Hispanics pursuing higher education degrees in the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. Despite this progress, Hispanics still lag behind their non-Hispanic peers in postsecondary school enrollment. In 2000, only 21.7 percent of all Hispanics ages 18 through 24 were enrolled in postsecondary degree-granting institutions in the United States. Moreover, Hispanic students are disproportionately enrolled in 2-year colleges, and are much less likely to finish college than their non-Hispanic peers. According to the Department of Education, in 2000, Hispanics earned only 6 percent of all bachelor's degrees awarded, 4 percent of all master's degrees, and only 3 percent of all doctorates.

Therefore, the capacity of institutions of higher education to serve the increasing number of Hispanic students must be expanded and improved. Building on previous success, this bill strengthens HSIs by establishing a competitive grant program to expand post-baccalaureate degree opportunities at HSIs. Current law provides support only for 2-year and 4-year institutions; this bill establishes support for graduate programs at HSIs. Grants will support graduate fellowships and support services for graduate students, as well as supporting facilities improvement, faculty development, technology and distance education, and collaborative arrangements with other institutions.

It is the committee's intent to increase educational opportunities for all students, and particularly Hispanic students, and accordingly, to eliminate barriers that limit access. The bill facilitates the transition of Hispanic students from 2-year colleges to 4-year colleges, including courses designed to retain students through program completion. As noted earlier, Hispanics are disproportionately enrolled in 2-year colleges as compared to their non-Hispanic peers. To encourage and support these students' continued education, this bill adds, as an authorized activity, programs that assist a student's transfer from a 2-year institution to a 4-year institution.

With these provisions, the committee provides institutions of higher education with the resources and flexibility they need to build capacity and serve the increasing Hispanic student population.

Title VI—International Education Programs

For more than four decades, title VI international education programs have served the Nation in developing and maintaining today's national higher education infrastructure for the study of more than 220 foreign languages, foreign cultures, and international business. As witnessed in recent years, foreign language and cultural knowledge needs have significantly increased throughout the Federal Government due to a wider range of security threats, the emergence of new nation states, and the globalization of the United States economy. Likewise, American business and education increasingly need internationally experienced employees to compete in the global economy, to manage a culturally diverse workforce, and to impart international skills and understanding to our citizens. In a time of heightened security needs, when our economy demands that we enter new markets, and when the world requires us to engage in diplomacy in more thoughtful and considered ways, it is vital that we have at our disposal a multilingual, multicultural, internationally experienced workforce and citizenry. To help meet these challenges, the committee updated and strengthened several title VI programs.

DIVERSITY OF VIEWS AND RESOLUTION OF DISPUTES

The committee is concerned about reports of bias in some title VI funded activities and programs. The committee believes that students' interests are best served when they are exposed to a variety of perspectives on topics under consideration, particularly those that are controversial. Accordingly, under some grant programs, the committee now requires grant applicants to describe in their applications how activities will reflect diverse perspectives and how each grantee will address potential disputes concerning the extent to which diverse perspectives are reflected. While it is the committee's intent that such disputes be resolved at the campus level, if such complaints are not resolved under the process outlined in a grantee's application and such complaint is then filed with the Department, the Secretary shall review the request and take into account the outcomes of such proceedings when determining the renewal of grants.

INTERNATIONAL AND FOREIGN LANGUAGE STUDIES

Consultation

The committee recognizes that programs and grants under this title focus on a variety of world regions, foreign languages, and international subjects. To ensure that grants are appropriately focusing on areas of national need, the Secretary is directed to consult with and receive recommendations from the Secretary or designees of a wide range of Federal agencies, such as the National Security Council, the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Defense, the Department of State, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Department of Labor, the Department of Commerce and the Director of National Intelligence, on what these areas of national need should be. These entities are also required to inform the Secretary of how they utilize the expertise and resources provided by grantees under this title. The Secretary must take such recommendations and information into account when requesting applications for funding, and make available to applicants a list of areas identified as areas of national need. The committee believes such consultation and information sharing is particularly important in light of the war on terror, the growing range of security threats, increasing global economic competition, the recently documented shortages of individuals proficient in critical foreign languages across public and private sectors and the need for greater mutual understanding between the U.S. and other nations and cultures.

Survey

To better gauge the impact of programs funded under this title in meeting national needs for expertise in foreign languages and world regions in various sectors, the committee directs the Secretary to assist relevant grantees in developing a survey to administer as appropriate to students who have participated in Title VI programs to determine post-graduation placement. The committee wishes to determine the number of students pursuing public service, including government service, health careers, careers in international organizations, businesses or nonprofits, and careers in research, as well as advanced education or other activities. The committee is particularly interested in determining the extent to which students utilize the knowledge and skills gained through participation in title VI programs in ways that contribute to meeting national needs.

Graduate and Undergraduate Language and Area Centers and Programs

The committee has made several improvements to strengthen the Graduate and Undergraduate Language and Area Centers and Programs. Authority is added clarifying that the National Language and Area Resource Centers may use title VI funds for the purpose of hiring instructors of less commonly taught languages. This change addresses the increased demand for courses offering rare languages related to national security interests and for which faculty may not be readily available. Revisions to current law also permit additional grants to the National Language and Area Resource Centers to strengthen outreach to State and local school districts. The committee has restored eligibility of undergraduate students to receive Foreign Language and Areas Studies (FLAS) fellowships. Permitting undergraduate students to receive these fellowships serves the national interest by supporting early language and world area study to help individuals achieve high levels of proficiency in the less commonly taught languages. The committee intends that undergraduate students be allowed to use FLAS fellowships in the United States and abroad for intermediate or advanced study of the less commonly taught languages and of foreign cultures. The committee recognizes that foreign immersion experiences are critical for achieving high levels of proficiency in the less commonly taught languages, which are important to the Nation's national security interests.

Undergraduate International Studies and Foreign Language Programs

The committee modified the Undergraduate International Studies and Foreign Language Programs to increase the cap on funding for this section to 20 percent. Institutional grants for enhancing the international dimension of undergraduate education are critical to increasing the number of Americans in the pipeline to foreign language fluency and international knowledge. Given current shortages of such personnel throughout government, education and the professions, the committee believes increased funding should be permitted to respond to rising demand. The committee urges the Department of Education to encourage the development of programs that stress the teaching of foreign languages for practical and professional use, including programs that promote foreign language education across the curriculum. Additionally, the committee revised current law to allow up to 10 percent of a project's funds to be used for sending undergraduate students on educational programs abroad that are closely linked to the project's goals and have the purpose of enhancing foreign language proficiency and deepening cultural knowledge.

Research and studies

The committee recognizes that international and foreign language education represents an evolving field in the United States, one with increasing importance for the national interest. The Research and Studies program plays an important role in enhancing international and foreign language education. The committee urges the Secretary to engage in data collection and analysis of international education and foreign language needs and outputs on an ongoing and systematic basis, and to regularly make the results publicly available. The committee also encourages the Secretary to consider projects that assess the impact of student learning abroad, develop proficiency assessments for the less commonly taught languages where not in existence, assess the relationship between gains in foreign language proficiency and cultural learning, and assess the use of technology for language acquisition and proficiency.

Technological Innovation and Cooperation for Foreign Information Access

The committee updated and strengthened the Technological Innovation and Cooperation for Foreign Information Access program. The committee added nonprofit educational organizations as eligible grant recipients in consortia with institutions of higher education and/or public or private non-profit libraries. The committee also clarified that funds may be used for the acquisition of printed materials from abroad for the purposes of this section. Currently authorized activities, such as applying new technologies to indexing, cataloging, preserving, disseminating, and providing access to foreign materials, require that the materials be available. The committee added new authorized activities for establishing linkages with institutions abroad that facilitate access to foreign information and provide the Department of Education flexibility to establish new activities deemed useful for carrying out the purposes of the section.

BUSINESS AND INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAMS

No alterations were made to the Business and International Education Programs. The main purpose of the business and international education grants has been to support programs of local and State scope.

Institute for International Public Policy

The changes to the Institute for International Public Policy (IIPP) grant program reflect the committee's belief in the continued importance of increasing the number of African-Americans and other underrepresented minorities in the international service.

Minority Foreign Service Professional Development Program

The committee included language that permits the Secretary of Education to waive or reduce the non-Federal matching share requirement of the eligible recipient. This will permit the successful grantee to implement all of the objectives set forth in part C with both federally appropriated funds and private in-kind and cash contributions in a post-9/11 world.

Institutional development

The committee added language to clarify that the academic programs intended to receive support through the grants awarded by the Institute are international affairs, international business, and foreign language study programs. In an era of globalization where public policy is often driven by private sector considerations, it is important that IIPP's program of training and capacity building encompass the fullest range of issues and subject matter.

Advanced degree in international relations

The committee wishes to allow eligible students to earn a doctoral degree, where appropriate, instead of the master's degree mandated by current law. The current program limitation to offering master's degrees may not be appropriate for some students in certain fields of study. The addition of the doctoral degree will not only increase the number of minority Ph.D. experts, especially in areas relating to national security, it will increase the depth and breadth of national security and international affairs expertise from which the Nation can benefit.

Financial assistance

To support the goal of increasing the representation of African-Americans and other underrepresented minorities in international service, the committee included provisions relating to financial support for students. Under the new provisions, students will be eligible to receive summer stipends to help defray costs for participation in the summer institute funded under this part. The committee also authorized a Ralph Bunche scholarship to help finance the education of students enrolled in programs funded under this part. The scholarship honors the life and career of Ambassador Ralph Bunche, who became the first person of color to receive the Nobel Peace Prize in 1950. The committee finds it fitting that a scholarship to foster greater participation in international service by African-American and other underrepresented students of color should be named after Mr. Bunche.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

The committee added new sections to the General Provisions to allow the Department of Education discretionary funding (up to 1 percent of title VI appropriations) for evaluation, national outreach, and information dissemination. The committee urges the Department to increase outreach to the higher education community about the funding opportunities available under title VI, as well as to find new ways to provide greater national accessibility to and awareness of the expertise and knowledge that these programs produce.

Title VII—Graduate and Postsecondary Improvement Programs

GRADUATE EDUCATION PROGRAMS

Graduate and professional education programs in the United States are respected and emulated worldwide. They attract and educate the best and brightest domestic and international students. Our unique system of combining graduate education with teaching and research strengthens the American education system, while producing highly educated individuals who will become the next generation's leaders in education, government, medicine, and industries vital to our Nation's competitiveness, economy, security, and well-being.

Unlike graduate education programs in other Federal agencies, the Department of Education's programs provide support for the entire range of academic disciplines, including the sciences, arts, social sciences, and the humanities. The Department currently administers two graduate programs: Graduate Assistance in Areas of National Need (GAANN) and Jacob K. Javits Fellowships. GAANN provides traineeships to students of superior academic ability in academic departments at universities that offer a course of study that leads to a doctoral degree in an area of national need designated by the Secretary of Education. The Javits program competitively awards portable fellowships to top graduate students pursuing a doctoral or the highest degree possible in the arts, humanities or social sciences.

The committee endorses the goals and success of the GAANN and Javits programs and seeks to further strengthen their achievement and purpose. It is the intent of the committee to make additional changes to Javits to ensure the diversity of its Fellowship Board in terms of institution type, range of disciplines, minority status and geographic location. The committee also seeks to establish parity between the GAANN and Javits award amounts and the National Science Foundation's Graduate Research Fellowship Program.

In determining current and future areas of national need, the committee directs the Secretary to consult with various Federal and nonprofit agencies and organizations. The committee instructs the Secretary to also give serious consideration to employment projections by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics in assessing current and future professional workforce needs, and to designate fields experiencing significant shortages, such as registered nursing and elementary and secondary education, as areas of national need. In addition, the committee directs the Secretary to establish a priority for grants in those areas of national need where there are significant professional workforce shortages.

FUND FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF POSTSECONDARY EDUCATION

There are a variety of issues and problems impacting postsecondary education. The Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education (FIPSE) was created to identify new ideas and practices to address these concerns. The FIPSE program awards grants designed to support innovative reform projects to resolve relevant issues and problems impacting postsecondary education. Since its inception in 1973, FIPSE has provided grants to some of the boldest innovators in education. The committee supports the mission and purpose of FIPSE and expands several of its provisions, including the areas of national need under special projects.

The committee anticipates that one of the new activities provided through special project grants will improve secondary school graduation and college attendance and completion rates for disadvantaged students. While there are many secondary school reform models that could meet this eligibility requirement, the committee would like to make note of one particular model program called Project GRAD. Project GRAD is a comprehensive, cost-effective program with a record of improving the academic achievement and college access of students from low-income backgrounds. Project GRAD's integrated approach to teaching and learning includes working with an entire feeder system in a school district, the local non-profit Project GRAD organization, community involvement and collaboration, and existing assets. Project GRAD delivers a comprehensive set of research-based programs in reading, mathematics, classroom management, social services/parent involvement, and college preparation. In addition, Project GRAD provides a 4-year college scholarship to all students who qualify. It is this unique structural approach that contributes to higher academic standards and offers the dream of graduation and college to all the students within a feeder system, or even an entire district.

Members of the committee are also aware of the special project grant awarded to the Shepherd Program at Washington and Lee University and support its efforts to coordinate and expand its activities, through the Shepherd Consortium of colleges and universities, to provide an integrated curricular and co-curricular interdisciplinary study focusing on poverty and human capability for university and law students with internships in non-profit agencies in disadvantaged communities. The Consortium will include, among others, Georgetown University, Vanderbilt University, Berea College, Morehouse College, Spelman College, Middlebury College, Morgan State University, the University of Arkansas at Little Rock, and the University of Richmond. The Secretary is authorized to make grants under FIPSE for the Shepherd Consortium. Members of the committee envisioned, in the development of this provision, the Shepherd Consortium's combined approach of core academic curricula with service learning internships, as a means to assist those in disadvantaged communities.

Similarly, Members are aware of the Single Parent Program at Endicott College, which has worked for many years to improve higher education access and completion rates for single parents. The committee believes Endicott is singularly well-suited to organize and implement the center for best practices to support single parent college students authorized under FIPSE.

The committee recognizes the significant impact that Federal regulations across the government have on the smooth operation of institutions of higher education. In order to help institutions of higher education be better informed and understand their legal obligations and the scope and potential impact of Federal regulations on the institutions, the committee includes an authorization for a competitive grant or contract to an institution of higher education to maintain a comprehensive Web site that describes and explains the impact of Federal regulations, and notices of proposed rule-making, on institutions of higher education.

DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS TO ENSURE STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES
RECEIVE A QUALITY HIGHER EDUCATION

Students with disabilities struggle to access and persist through higher education. Students with disabilities are 10 percent less likely to enroll in some form of postsecondary education compared to students without disabilities. They are much less likely to be qualified to enroll in postsecondary education than their counterparts without disabilities. Similarly, those students who enroll in postsecondary education are less likely than their counterparts without disabilities to stay enrolled in or earn a postsecondary degree or credential. Despite these shortcomings, those who do graduate go on to be quite successful in the workforce.

The committee recognizes the unique challenges students with disabilities face when trying to access higher education and their overall significance to our Nation's workforce. It is for this reason that the committee encourages institutions of higher education to decrease barriers to higher education for students with disabilities. The bill amends the authorized activities under part D by adding several provisions in which institutions of higher education may engage to accomplish this goal. The bill requires that the academic and programmatic needs of students with disabilities must be met as part of the development of innovative, effective, and efficient teaching strategies. The committee recognizes that the retention and completion rates of postsecondary programs for students with disabilities is quite poor, and added this provision in an attempt to improve such rates. The committee added language to address the insufficient postsecondary education and employment outcomes for students with disabilities by including the development of teaching strategies to ensure the successful transition of students with disabilities from secondary to postsecondary education, and aligned them with the new transition requirements in the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and the Workforce Investment Act.

The committee also added a new data collection requirement. This provision, collecting data on employment outcomes of students with disabilities after the receipt of postsecondary education, was added to gain information on the employment outcomes of such education for students with disabilities. The committee intends that such research, information, and data will be made broadly accessible through means such as web-based clearinghouses, portals or other means of cataloging and making available collected information. The committee recognizes that the use and accessibility of technology can be a barrier to students with disabilities accessing distance learning courses.

The Disability Career Pathways activity was included to recognize the importance of developing the next generation of professionals to work with individuals with disabilities. It provides training for postsecondary staff to enable them to educate young people about disability related fields of study. As a result, it is expected that more individuals will pursue careers in these fields. The committee intends that activities authorized under this section will focus on making postsecondary education more accessible to students with disabilities through curriculum development. The Secretary of Education is required to review and disseminate a report of the demonstration project activities funded under this section to provide guidance and recommendations to all institutions of higher education on how successful projects can be replicated.

Students with intellectual disabilities face even greater challenges entering postsecondary education programs than students with other disabilities. At the same time, the number of students with intellectual disabilities who are seeking to enter such programs is rising, and there is a need to expand the number of college- and university-based programs that are equipped to serve this special population of students. The committee notes that presently, only around 100 postsecondary education institutions offer programs that are geared toward students with intellectual disabilities. While a number of institutions have expressed an interest in developing such programs, these institutions require appropriate financial and technical support to do so. To that end, the committee has authorized the Secretary to award grants to institutions of higher education to create and expand high-quality, comprehensive transition and postsecondary programs for students with intellectual disabilities. The committee also authorizes the establishment of a coordinating center that will help institutions of higher education improve existing programs for students with intellectual disabilities, facilitate the development of new programs, and ensure that all such programs are high-quality. It is the committee's hope that these measures will result in a marked increase in the number of students with intellectual disabilities entering higher education, as well as an increase in these students' successful transition into the workforce.

Title VIII—Miscellaneous

MATHEMATICS AND SCIENCE SCHOLARS PROGRAM

This initiative is designed to encourage more high school students to take a rigorous secondary curriculum in math and science. The committee believes that this effort is necessary to encourage more students to become interested in these areas to continue to allow the United States to remain competitive internationally. The fields of math and science are critical to the economic growth and national security of the United States. Our economy today is more reliant on workers with greater quantitative skills, scientific knowledge and technological expertise. Unfortunately, the supply of these qualified workers here in the United States is not keeping up with business demand, forcing American industries to rely on foreign talent to fill the gaps.

According the National Center for Education Statistics, U.S. 4th graders score well in math and science against international competition, but they fall near the bottom by 12th grade in these subject areas. This may be due in part to the small number of high school students taking advanced math or science courses. A report from the Task Force on Mathematics and Science Achievement suggests that most U.S. high school students take no advanced science courses, with only one-quarter enrolling in physics and one-half in chemistry. In addition, while most countries introduce algebra and geometry in the middle grades, only one in four U.S. students take algebra before high school. Further, approximately 90 percent of U.S. high school students stop taking math before getting to calculus.

With limited Federal resources, it is imperative that we make wise investments and target funding to those areas that are critical to our Nation's future. The committee believes the new Math and Science Scholars Program is one such wise investment. It is a competitive grant program to award merit-based scholarships to eligible students who complete a rigorous high school curriculum in mathematics and science. Students are eligible to receive a scholarship of up to $1,000 per year for up to 2 years of undergraduate study. Eligible students must be in their first or second year to receive a scholarship.

The committee also believes that State involvement in this new program is critical to its success. States will be required to match at least 50 percent of the Federal funds to participate. The committee believes that States should also be given flexibility in tailoring the scholarship program to State standards or needs. Participating States, not the Federal Government, will determine what constitutes a rigorous high school curriculum in math and science. States may also set a priority in awarding these grants to eligible students, but such a priority is not required. Such priority could be to respond to specific needs in areas of the State or to address attracting students from groups underrepresented in the math and science fields. These provisions are designed to require participating States to make the commitment to a strong math and science curriculum at the secondary level and ultimately attract more students to pursue these fields.

POSTSECONDARY EDUCATION ASSESSMENT

There has been ongoing debate about the spiraling cost of college and the appropriate Federal role in addressing it. The purpose of this study is to give the public and the Congress an independent assessment of the financial factors associated with postsecondary tuition costs. The assessment will examine the key elements linked with the cost of tuition and identify and evaluate effective measures that may be utilized to control future postsecondary education costs. To carry out this study, the committee directs the Secretary to enter into a contract with an independent, bipartisan organization that has specific expertise in public administration and financial management, such as the National Academy of Public Administration. The results of this study will inform future discussion on college tuition and help future congresses examine this complicated issue with greater clarity.

JOB SKILL TRAINING IN HIGH-GROWTH OCCUPATIONS OR INDUSTRIES

The needs of today's workforce have created an increased demand on colleges to respond quickly to the education and specific skills training needs of businesses. These competitive grants will allow institutions of higher education that offer a 1- or 2-year program leading to a degree or certificate to work with local workforce boards to create innovative programs to respond to high-growth industries. Colleges could develop curricula or customize programs to match workers with the skills in demand in particular industries.

ADDITIONAL CAPACITY FOR R.N. STUDENTS OR GRADUATE-LEVEL NURSING STUDENTS

The United States is currently experiencing a health care crisis. There is a great shortage of Registered Nurses (R.N.s) in U.S. hospitals, yet nursing schools turn away 150,000 well-qualified applicants each year due to high education costs and a shortage of R.N. trainers. The committee believes that the solution is to educate and train more nurses. This new program will increase capacity for R.N. students through grants to colleges and universities to increase enrollment. Nursing programs will receive $3,000 per additional student to defray the increased costs required to admit and train that student. The committee expects that within 4 years, these grants will aid the graduation of over 10,000 additional nurses each year and increase the pool of teachers for R.N. education programs. The grants will address the serious nursing shortage in the U.S. by increasing the pipeline of nursing education programs.

AMERICAN HISTORY FOR FREEDOM

The American History for Freedom program will make competitive grants available to institutions of higher education for the purpose of establishing or strengthening programming in Traditional American History, Western Civilization, or Free Institutions. The program will help ensure that more postsecondary students have the opportunity to participate in courses of study and activities focused on these critical subjects, and that prospective teachers have access to a solid foundation of content knowledge.

The committee believes that it is important to preserve and defend our common heritage of freedom and civilization, and to ensure that future generations of Americans understand the importance of traditional American history and the principles upon which this Nation was founded and on which it continues to rely. In a time when our values and ideals are questioned, it is also important to develop an understanding of the nature of free institutions, of the events and principles that brought them into existence, and of how they have been defended in the past.

TEACH FOR AMERICA

The committee establishes and authorizes grants for Teach for America, a national program that recruits recent successful college graduates to teach for up to 2 years in underserved communities in the United States. These funds will be used to recruit, select, train and support these graduates so they can be placed through an agreement in schools in districts with which there are agreements. In addition, these funds will support a study to assess the quality of the Teach for America participants.

PATSY T. MINK FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

The committee bill includes authorization for a Federal fellowship program linked to service in the higher education professoriate. The Patsy T. Mink Fellowship program honors Congresswoman Patsy Mink of Hawaii, who served in the House of Representatives for more than 27 years. She was a faithful and dedicated member of the House Education and Labor Committee and the Committee on Education and the Workforce during her service in the House. In addition to her role as a driving force and the author of Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, which created equity in scholastics and in athletics for women and girls, including at colleges and universities, Mrs. Mink worked hard to expand educational opportunities at all levels for low-income, minority, educationally-disadvantaged, first-generation, and disabled students.

The committee believes that it is fitting that a program designed to enhance the presence of minorities and women in the higher education professoriate should bear Mrs. Mink's name. A recent Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation report, Diversity and the PhD: A Review of Efforts to Broaden Race and Ethnicity in U.S. Doctoral Education, documents the under-representation of minorities receiving doctorates. The Mink Fellowship program will not only contribute to student persistence in obtaining the doctorate, but also will encourage students to continue in the professoriate beyond the service requirement mandated by law.

IMPROVING COLLEGE ENROLLMENT BY SECONDARY SCHOOLS

The committee recommends that the Department collect, in full compliance with FERPA, college enrollment by secondary institution and graduation year from postsecondary institutions via the Integrated Postsecondary Education System (IPEDS), and diploma recipients by secondary institution and graduation year from States via the Common Core of Data (CCD), both of which are existing data-collection systems within the National Center for Education Statistics.

The committee intends for these data to be used purely as a tool for secondary institution leaders to measure the success of their initiatives and innovations aimed at increasing college enrollment. Data provided under this provision are not intended to be used by Federal, State, or local governments to hold schools, their administrators, teachers or staff, accountable or suffer any repercussions as a result of the data. The committee specifically opted to make trend data rather than absolute numbers available to allow for examination of progress over time rather than comparisons between schools.

The committee recommends that the Department contract with College Summit, Inc. to calculate and make publicly available year-to-year college enrollment rate trends by secondary institution because College Summit is the preeminent national non-profit organization concentrating on increasing college enrollment rates in low-income communities, working both multi-state and schoolwide.

PREDOMINANTLY BLACK INSTITUTIONS

Many higher education institutions have been ineligible for Federal grants to enhance college access for low-income and minority students because they are not Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) established prior to 1965. The committee finds that at least 75 more institutions, serving 265,000 students, would be eligible for these monies if this issue were addressed. As such, the bill extends the college access grants to Predominantly Black Institutions (PBIs). The allocation formula will be similar to the Title III, Part B HBCU institutions. Awards will be based on the percentage of Pell Grant recipients, students graduating within a specified period of time, and students progressing to degree programs at the next academic level. The PBI grant program will increase college access for the growing number of urban and rural minority students whose family and financial situations limit their college attendance.

EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT AND CAREER TASK FORCE

To ensure that our students are prepared to meet the challenges of our world economy, we must improve the quality of education at all levels. This begins with early education. The committee recognizes that investing in early education will have compounding benefits for students in subsequent years of schooling. To do this we must address the serious teacher training and retention problem in early education.

This bill authorizes the Secretary to award State grants to improve the quality of the early education workforce by creating a statewide early childhood education professional development and career task force. State task forces will conduct a review of the opportunities for and barriers to higher education degree programs and develop a comprehensive statewide professional development and career system for individuals working in childhood education programs. The committee believes that these task forces will be integral to improving early childhood educator training, compensation, and retention.

IMPROVING SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY, ENGINEERING, AND MATHEMATICS EDUCATION WITH A FOCUS ON ALASKA NATIVE AND NATIVE HAWAIIAN STUDENTS

The committee notes the lack of Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian professionals in the fields of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics and the under representation of Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian students in programs designed to increase competitiveness in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) fields. The committee has, therefore, included an authorization for an initiative to provide academic and other supports to assist students, from early grades through college graduation, to be prepared to enter STEM professions. The committee intends that this new initiative will further develop or expand existing programs which are specifically designed to develop Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian professionals in the STEM fields.

PILOT PROGRAM TO INCREASE PERSISTENCE IN COMMUNITY COLLEGES

Unfortunately, many high school graduates with young families live below 200 percent of the poverty line and struggle to afford, attend, and graduate from college. Nearly half of the students who begin their postsecondary education at a community college do not obtain a degree and are not enrolled in any institution of higher education 6 years later. Many community college students have poor academic preparation, have difficulty paying for college and feel unsupported on campus. At least one study has shown that changes in institutional practices can lead to better student outcomes. This pilot program, modeled after recent studies at some community colleges, will provide scholarship funds ($1,000 a semester, up to two semesters) and dedicated counseling services to eligible students at community colleges. Participating institutions will conduct random assignment evaluations and the Secretary will make best practices lessons learned information available to the public. The committee expects that the incentive-based scholarship program and supplemental counseling services will boost persistence rates for this disadvantaged population.

STUDENT SAFETY AND CAMPUS EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT

Recent events such as the tragedy at Virginia Tech and Hurricane Katrina highlight the important role that colleges and universities have in protecting students from safety and security risks. The committee believes that it is the responsibility of the Federal Government to provide colleges and universities with the help and support they need to try to prevent such tragedies where possible, and to protect their students in the event a tragedy does occur. The new program helps colleges improve campus safety by conducting security assessments and training security personnel, developing emergency communications and response systems, coordinating with local emergency response efforts, and ensuring students have access to adequate mental health services, including crisis response services.

Title IX—Amendments to Other Laws

EDUCATION OF THE DEAF ACT OF 1986

Coordination with the No Child Left Behind Act and accountability for student outcomes

The committee strengthens the accountability of Gallaudet's elementary and secondary schools by aligning such requirements with the accountability requirements in the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 (P.L. 107–110). Specifically, this provision requires Gallaudet to select the academic content, achievement, and assessment standards of a State approved by the Secretary of Education as its own, and implement such standards as its own by the 2008–2009 school year and determine whether such programs are making adequate yearly progress. The committee believes that allowing Gallaudet to choose the approved standards from a State will relieve the University of the expensive and time-consuming task of having to develop its own standards and assessments for one small school. This would provide a basis of comparison for the achievement of students in the Gallaudet program that would otherwise be lacking. Additionally, this requirement would make the State's definition of "adequate yearly progress" applicable to the University's K–12 education program. Again, the committee believes that this would ensure that the educational accountability provisions applicable to that program reflect the No Child Left Behind Act's principle that children with disabilities should be held to the same academic expectations as all other children.

Naming the Rochester Institute of Technology in the act

Because of the longstanding relationship between the Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT) and the National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID), the committee names RIT as the entity the Secretary enters into or continues an agreement with for the establishment and operation of NTID. Furthermore, the committee permits the Secretary to enter into an agreement with another institution of higher education if the Secretary or RIT terminates the agreement. However, it is the intent of the committee that the Secretary will not terminate the agreement with RIT without just cause.

Cultural experience grants

The committee has authorized funding for grants to nonprofit organizations in order to enrich the cultural experiences for deaf and hard of hearing children and adults through exposure and access to professional theatre. The committee believes that nationally recognized programs such as Deaf West Theatre and the National Theater of the Deaf have a long history of providing such programming to these audiences, and would be appropriate recipients for these grant funds.

Audit reporting

The committee amends current law to ensure that the Department of Education receives an independent financial and compliance audit of the National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID). In order for the audit to be meaningful and useful to the Department, it is necessary to have the audit follow the cycle of the Federal fiscal year. The bill ensures the audit period and the fiscal year are the same.

Outcome reporting

The committee believes that modifying Gallaudet's reporting requirements on the disposition of secondary school and university graduates from "upon graduation/completion" to "approximately one year after graduation" will provide a clearer picture of outcomes for students. Additionally, changing the timeline of the reporting requirements will make the reporting language for the audit the same for Gallaudet and NTID.

Surcharges for international students

The committee acknowledges that Gallaudet University and NTID are the only liberal arts universities in the world designed exclusively for deaf and hard of hearing students, and that the 100 percent surcharge for such students is a barrier to attendance for international students. Although Gallaudet and NTID have the capacity to serve additional international students, the committee also recognizes its commitment to students from the United States who are deaf, and assuring that United States tax dollars are spent on providing educational opportunities for United States citizens first. Therefore, the committee authorizes Gallaudet and NTID to create a fee system in which students from non-developing countries must pay the 100 percent surcharge. However, if such a student can demonstrate need, he or she may have the surcharge reduced by up to 50 percent. Furthermore, a student from a developing country must pay a 50 percent surcharge. If such a student can demonstrate need, he or she may have the surcharge reduced by 50 percent, but must pay a minimum surcharge of 25 percent.

Because of the initial costs associated with developing a distance learning course, international students living outside of the United States would not have to pay a surcharge nor count toward the enrollment cap for international students.

UNITED STATES INSTITUTE OF PEACE

Board of directors

The committee clarifies that the term of a board member begins when the member is confirmed by the Senate and sworn in, not when the board member's nomination is made public. Confusion over the interpretation of this provision had led to vacancies on the Institute's board, and also unnecessarily shortened the term of service of some board members. The committee expects this clarification to resolve any outstanding concerns over board appointments, and that it be applied retroactively to board members sworn-in in 2007.

Application of GEPA

The committee clarifies that certain provisions under the General Education Provisions Act (GEPA) apply to the United States Institute of Peace, allowing the Institute to continue to receive appropriations for 1 fiscal year after the expiration of the authorization, pursuant to the authority provided under the GEPA for Federal education programs.

INDIAN EDUCATION

Tribally Controlled Colleges and Universities Act

In response to the concerns of many tribes, the committee makes several changes to improve the consistency among the many different Federal programs providing assistance to tribally controlled colleges and universities. The committee recognizes the challenges created for these institutions by having several different Federal programs provide assistance, each with a slightly different set of definitions. The Committee expects these amendments to improve the coordination between Federal programs and help tribally controlled institutions spend more time serving students, and less time navigating complex Federal requirements.

Diné College

The committee recognizes the longstanding relationship between the Federal Government and the Navajo Nation. Legislation enacted in 1971 established a dedicated discretionary grant stream for the Navajo Community College, which has been renamed Diné College. In reauthorizing this program, the committee finds that the Treaty of 1868 between the United States of America and the Navajo Tribe of Indians provides for the education of the citizens of the Navajo Nation.

In 1968, the Navajo Nation created and chartered the Navajo Community College by Resolution CN-95-68 as a wholly owned educational entity of the Navajo Nation. In 1971, Congress enacted the Navajo Community College Act (Public Law 92-189; 25 U.S.C. 640a et seq.). In 1997, the Navajo Nation officially changed the name of the Navajo Community College to Diné College by Resolution CAP-35-97.

The purpose of Diné College is to provide educational opportunities to the Navajo people and others in areas important to the economic and social development of the Navajo Nation. The mission of Diné College is to apply the principles of Sa'ah Naaghái Bik'eh Hózhóón (Diné Philosophy) to advance quality student learning through training of the mind and heart—(1) through Nitsáhákees (Thinking), Nahatá (Planning), Iná (Living), and Sihasin (Assurance); (2) in study of the Diné language, history, philosophy, and culture; (3) in preparation for further studies and employment in a multicultural and technological world; and (4) in fostering social responsibility, community service, and scholarly research that contribute to the social, economic, and cultural well-being of the Navajo Nation.

The United States has a trust and treaty responsibility to the Navajo Nation to provide for the educational opportunities for Navajo people. Significant portions of the College's infrastructure are dilapidated and pose a serious health and safety risk to students, employees and the public.

For these reasons, the committee amends the Navajo Community College Act, and renames it after the college, now known as Diné College. The committee also updates references to the Navajo Indian Tribe and instead replaces it with the appropriate term "Navajo Nation."

The committee also updates a study of the facilities needs of the college that was last commissioned in 1979, and authorizes a separate set of uses of funds related to the construction of buildings, water and sewer facilities, roads, information technology and telecommunications infrastructure, classrooms and external structures.

The committee also clarifies that funds made available through this act may be used for improving and expanding the college, including by providing—for the Navajo people and others in the community—higher education programs; vocational and technical education; activities relating to the preservation and protection of the Navajo language, philosophy, and culture; employment and training opportunities; economic development and community outreach; and a safe learning, working, and living environment.

V. COST ESTIMATE

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, November 14, 2007.

Hon. EDWARD M. KENNEDY,
Chairman, Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for S. 1642, the Higher Education Amendments of 2007.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Jessica Sherry.

Sincerely,

PETER R. ORSZAG,
Director.

Enclosure

S. 1642—Higher Education Amendments of 2007

Summary: S. 1642 would reauthorize and amend most postsecondary education programs under the Higher Education Act of 1965 through 2013. Under the General Education Provisions Act, those authorizations would automatically be extended through 2014. The bill also would create several new programs and amend several other acts, including the Education of the Deaf Act of 1986 and the United States Institute of Peace Act. The bill would authorize the appropriation of such sums as may be necessary to carry out those programs.

CBO estimates that enacting S. 1642 would increase direct spending by $75 million in 2008 and would have a negligible effect on such spending over the 2008–12 and 2008–17 periods. Assuming the appropriation of the necessary funds, CBO estimates that implementing S. 1642 would increase discretionary outlays by $1.9 billion in 2008 and $53.2 billion over the 2008–12 period.

S. 1642 contains an intergovernmental mandate as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) because it would preempt certain State contract laws as they apply to Perkins educational loans. CBO estimates that the costs, if any, to State governments to comply with the preemption would be minimal and would not exceed the annual threshold established in UMRA ($66 million in 2007, adjusted annually for inflation). The bill contains no private-sector mandates, as defined in UMRA.

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budgetary impact of S. 1642 is shown in Table 1. The costs of this legislation fall within budget function 500 (education, training, employment, and social services).

¹ In addition, S. 1642 would affect direct spending by less than $500,000 over the 2008–2017 period.
Note:—* =between $500,000 and $500,000; components may not sum to totals because of rounding.

Basis of estimate: For this estimate, CBO assumes that S. 1642 will be enacted by the end of calendar year 2007 and that sufficient funds will be appropriated for each program. For current programs that would be reauthorized in their current form, CBO assumes continued funding at their 2007 levels and adjusts for inflation in future years.

Direct spending

The bill would make several changes to eligibility rules for the Academic Competitiveness and SMART Grant programs, and to the calculations of the needs analysis and rules for student and institutional eligibility for the federal student loan programs. For both the Academic Competitiveness Grant and SMART Grant Programs, the bill would adjust how a student's academic year is determined and expand eligibility to part-time students. Currently, only full-time students are eligible for grants. Appropriations for those programs are capped at specified amounts and the Secretary has the authority to reduce award levels to stay within the appropriation. CBO estimates these changes would increase outlays by $75 million in fiscal year 2008 and would reduce outlays by the same amount in future years. There would be no net impact on Federal spending over the 2008–17 period. All other changes to direct spending programs would have a negligible effect on outlays.

The changes to eligibility also would affect discretionary spending in the Pell Grant program but those changes would affect discretionary spending. (If appropriations for the Department of Education for fiscal year 2008 are enacted prior to the enactment of S. 1642, any changes to the Pell Grant program for 2008 would result in direct spending in 2008.)

Spending subject to appropriation

The bill would reauthorize and amend many of the discretionary programs previously authorized by the Higher Education Act of 1965 and would create a number of new discretionary programs. For most of those programs, the bill would authorize the appropriation of such sums as may be necessary for each year through 2013. However, authorizations would automatically be extended through 2014 based on rules set forth in the General Education Provisions Act. S. 1642 also would introduce several new programs and amend several other acts, including the Education of the Deaf Act of 1986 and the United States Institute of Peace Act. In total, CBO estimates that implementing this legislation would increase outlays by $1.9 billion in 2008 and $53.2 billion over the 2008–12 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Title I: General Provisions. Title I would create several programs designed to provide grants to institutions for the development of information systems. CBO estimates that providing those grants would increase outlays by $1 million in 2008 and $11 million over the 2008–12 period, assuming the availability of appropriated funds.

Title II: Teacher Quality Enhancement. Title II would reauthorize and amend a program that provides grants to eligible partnerships of State and local educational agencies, schools, businesses, and nonprofit education organizations for teacher recruitment and professional development. CBO estimates that reauthorizing title II would increase outlays by $4 million in 2008 and $346 million over the 2008–12 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Title III: Institutional Aid. The bill would reauthorize and amend institutional aid programs and would create several new programs that would offer further institutional aid. Title III programs are designed to give financial assistance to institutions of higher education that serve a high percentage of minority students with low income and to help those institutions develop and improve the quality of education they offer students. Implementing title III would increase outlays by $23 million in 2008 and $1.8 billion over the 2008–12 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Title IV: Student Assistance. S. 1642 would reauthorize and revise the current student assistance programs, including Pell Grants, and also would create new student assistance programs to provide financial assistance to specific populations of students pursuing higher education. The estimated costs for Pell Grants are based on current law including recent changes under Public Law 110–84, which was enacted on September 27, 2007. CBO estimates that reauthorizing title IV would increase outlays by $1.5 billion in 2008 and $46.2 billion over the 2008–12 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Title V: Developing Institutions. Title V would reauthorize the Developing Institutions program, which provides grants to institutions that serve Hispanic students to help those institutions expand and improve educational opportunities for Hispanic Americans. CBO estimates that reauthorizing title V would increase outlays by $6 million in 2008 and $445 million over the 2008–12 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Title VI: International Education Programs. Title VI would reauthorize and revise the international education programs. Those programs provide for the development of programs, centers, fellowships, and research projects that allow more citizens to gain knowledge about other world regions and expertise in foreign languages and international affairs. CBO estimates that reauthorizing those programs would increase outlays by $6 million in 2008 and $500 million over the 2008–12 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Title VII: Graduate and Postsecondary Improvement Programs. Title VII would reauthorize and amend programs that would establish national graduate fellowships that are designed to attract students to complete advanced degrees in areas of national need. CBO estimates that reauthorizing this title would increase outlays by $8 million in 2008 and $611 million over the 2008–12 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Title VIII: Miscellaneous. S. 1642 would add title VIII to the Higher Education Act of 1965. New programs under that title would provide financial assistance to institutions of higher education to develop their capacity to serve specific populations of students, organizations working to expand their educational programs, and students pursuing certain areas of study. CBO estimates that implementing title VIII would increase outlays by $17 million in 2008 and $1.4 billion over the 2008–12 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Title IX: Amendments to Other Laws. Title IX would make amendments to laws other than the Higher Education Act of 1965. The amendments would affect the Education of the Deaf Act of 1986, the United States Institute of Peace Act, the Higher Education Act of 1998, and the Indian Postsecondary Education programs run by the Bureau of Indian Affairs. CBO estimates that implementing Title IX would increase outlays by $282 million in 2008 and $1.9 billion over the 2008–12 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts.

Intergovernmental and private-sector impact: S. 1642 contains an intergovernmental mandate as defined in UMRA because it would preempt certain State contract laws as they apply to Perkins educational loans. Some States allow loan repayment agreements and other contracts to be broken if the borrower was a minor when the contract was signed. This defense has been used by some borrowers of education loans. If this bill is enacted, those State laws would no longer apply to contracts for Perkins loans. CBO estimates that the costs, if any, to State governments to comply with that preemption would be minimal and would not exceed the annual threshold established in UMRA ($66 million in 2007, adjusted annually for inflation). The provision would benefit public and private colleges and universities that are trying to collect repayments on loans that would otherwise be disputed under State law.

In general, State, local, and tribal governments would benefit from the continuation and expansion of existing programs and the creation of new programs that provide Federal assistance for higher education programs. The bill contains no private-sector mandates, as defined in UMRA.

Comparison with S. 1642 as passed by the Senate: S. 1642 as passed by the Senate on July 24, 2007, includes several amendments made to the version of bill as reported on July 10, 2007. The amendments would make changes to programs under title I and title IV and add new programs under title VIII and title IX. Assuming appropriation of the estimated amounts, CBO estimates that S. 1642 as passed by the Senate would increase discretionary outlays by an additional $16 million in 2008 and by $1.3 billion over the 2008–12 period, as shown in Table 2. The amendments in the version passed by the Senate would have a negligible effect on direct spending and would not affect revenues.

VI. APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

Section 102(b)(3) of Public Law 104–1, the Congressional Accountability Act (CAA), requires a description of the application of this bill to the legislative branch. S. 1614 does not amend any act that applies to the legislative branch.

VII. REGULATORY IMPACT STATEMENT

The committee has determined that the bill may result in some additional paperwork, time, and costs to the Department of Education, which would be entrusted with implementation and enforcement of the act. It is difficult to estimate the volume of additional paperwork necessity by the bill, but the committee does not believe it will be significant. Pursuant to the requirements of paragraph 11(b) of rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, the committee has determined that the bill will not have a significant regulatory impact.

VIII. SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Title I—General Provisions

Section 101. Additional definitions

Section 101 defines or redefines a series of terms. The term “authorizing Committees” means the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate and the Education and Labor Committee of the House of Representatives. References to the “Chairman” or “Chairmen” now read “Chairpersons of the authorizing committees.”

The term “critical foreign language” is defined as each of the languages contained in the list of critical languages compiled by the Secretary in the August 2, 1985 Federal Register, except that with respect to a specific title, the Secretary may set priorities according to the purpose of such title and the national security, economic competitive, and educational needs of the United States.

The term “distance education” is defined as a course or program that uses one or more kinds of technology to deliver instruction to students that are separated from the instructor, or to support interaction between the students and the instructor. Appropriate kinds of technology include the internet, one-way and two-way transmissions through open broadcasts, closed circuit, cable, broadband, fiber optics, or wireless communication devices, as well as video cassettes, DVDs, and CD-ROMs, as long as the video cassettes, DVDs, and CD-ROMs are used in conjunction with one of the previously-mentioned technologies.

Section 102. General definition of institution of higher education

Section 102 expands the definition of an institution of higher education to include institutions that award degrees that are acceptable for admission to graduate or professional degree programs, subject to the review and approval of the Secretary of Education. It also expands the definition of an institution of higher education to include a public or nonprofit private educational institution that admits as regular students those who are dually or concurrently enrolled in the institution and a secondary school.

Section 103. Definition of institution of higher education for purposes of title IV programs

Section 103 expands the definitions of “proprietary institution” and “postsecondary vocational institutions” to allow them to enroll persons who are dually or concurrently enrolled in the institution and a secondary school. This section also states that a graduate medical school located outside the United States that is considered an institution of higher education for purposes of title IV because it has or had a clinical training program that was approved by a State as of January 1, 1992, must have continuously operated such a program in at least one state that is approved by such state.

Section 104. Protection of student speech and association rights

Section 104 includes a Sense of Congress with regards to the following: diversity of institutions is a key strength of higher education; individual colleges and universities have different missions and each should design its academic program in accordance with its educational goals; colleges should facilitate free and open exchange of ideas; students should not be intimidated, harassed, discouraged from speaking out, or discriminated against; and students should be treated equally and fairly.

This section clarifies that this new language should not be construed to modify or infringe upon any constitutionally protected religious liberty, freedom, expression, or association; nor should it be construed to discourage the imposition of an official sanction on a student that has willfully disrupted a lecture, class, speech, presentation, or performance scheduled or made under the auspices of the institution, provided that the imposition of the sanction is objective and fair.

Section 105. Accreditation and institutional quality and integrity advisory committee

Section 105 replaces the National Advisory Committee on Institutional Quality and Integrity with an Accreditation and Institutional Quality and Integrity Advisory Committee in the Department of Education to assess the process of accreditation and the institutional eligibility and certification of institutions of higher education under title IV. The committee shall advise the Secretary regarding the establishment and enforcement of the standards of accrediting agencies, recognition of a specific accrediting agency, the eligibility and certification process for institutions of higher education under title IV, recommendations to improve the process, and various other issues. The 15 members of the committee shall represent all sectors and types of institutions, and shall be appointed on the basis of the individuals' experience, technical qualifications, professional standing, integrity and impartiality. Five of the members shall be selected by the Secretary of Education; five shall be selected by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, upon recommendation by the majority and minority leaders of the House; and five shall be selected by the president pro tempore of the Senate, upon the recommendation of the majority and minority leaders of the Senate. The committee shall meet at least twice per year.

Section 106. Drug and alcohol abuse prevention

Section 106 establishes that in addition to current requirements that institutions of higher education must meet in order to be eligible for Federal funds or participation in title IV programs such institutions must also, as part of their biennial review of their program, determine the number of drug and alcohol-related incidents and fatalities that occur on the institution's property and are reported to the institution, and determine the number and type of sanctions that are imposed on students and employees as a result of drug- and alcohol-related incidents and fatalities that occur on the institution's property or as a part of any of the institution's activities.

Section 107. Prior rights and obligations

Section 107 extends the authorization of appropriations under Section 121 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 for fiscal year 2008 and succeeding fiscal years.

Section 108. Transparency in college tuition for consumers

Section 108 expands the information that the Secretary will make available to the public on an annual basis regarding college costs and academic programs. This section directs that the Bureau of Labor Statistics, in consultation with the Commissioner of Education Statistics and representatives of institutions of higher education, develop higher education price indices that accurately reflect annual changes in tuition/fees for undergraduate students attending various types of institutions. Indices shall be created for each type of institution described below, as well as for institutions as a whole.

The categories to be used for the indices are: all institutions of higher education; 4-year public degree-granting institutions; 2-year public degree-granting institutions; 4-year private degree-granting institutions; 2-year private degree-granting institutions; and less than 2-year institutions.

The Secretary shall annually report in both national lists and in separate lists for each State, a ranking of institutions of higher education according to the institutions' change in tuition and fees over the preceding 2 years, broken down by type of institution. The following categories of institutions are to be used for the report: 4-year public; 4-year private, non-profit; 4-year private, for-profit; 2-year public; 2-year private, nonprofit; 2-year private, for-profit; less than 2-year public; less than 2-year private, nonprofit; and less than 2-year private, for-profit. The Secretary shall compile separate lists for each category of institution: one based on the percentage change in tuition and fees over the preceding 2 years, and one based on the dollar change in tuition and fees over the preceding 2 years.

The Secretary shall also create, on an annual basis, Higher Education Price Increase Watch Lists, which shall include a ranking of each institution of higher education whose tuition and fees outpace the applicable price index for the type of institution as developed under this section. The Secretary shall compile such lists on a national basis and for each State. The lists will be compiled into a public document that will be widely disseminated in paper form and through the Department's website.

The Secretary shall also produce higher education appropriations charts for each State, which will show a comparison of the percentage change in State appropriations per enrolled student in a public institution of higher education, as compared to the percentage change in tuition and fees for each public institution of higher education in the State for each of the previous 5 years. The Secretary shall also report on the total amount of need- and merit-based aid provided by the State to students enrolled in public institutions of higher education in the state.

The Secretary shall work with institutions to develop several model net price calculators to help students, families and consumers determine the net price of an institution of higher education, which institutions shall use, or create their own. Universities that receive Federal funding shall include in their application materials the most recent information about net price of the institution calculated for each quartile of students, based on the income of the student's parents or, in the case of independent students, on the income of the students.

The Secretary shall contract with an independent organization with demonstrated experience in creating consumer-friendly websites to improve the Department of Education's College Opportunities On-Line website.

The Secretary shall develop a model document, to be known as the "University and College Accountability Network" (UCAN), to annually report basic information about each institution that chooses to participate, to be posted on the college information website and made available to institutions of higher education, students, families, and other consumers. The document shall include the following information about the institution in a consumer-friendly manner: specified demographic and enrollment information on students enrolled at the institution; specified information on the degrees awarded by the institution; specified information about the faculty of the institution; specified information about the cost of attending the institution, the financial aid received by and available to the students at the institution; and other specified information that would be helpful to prospective students and students at the institution.

Section 109. Databases of student information prohibited

Section 109 clarifies that nothing in the Act authorizes the development, implementation, or maintenance of a Federal database of personally identifiable information on individuals receiving assistance under this act or attending institutions receiving assistance under this act, such as a student unit record system, an education bar code system, or any other system that tracks individual students over time.

This does not prohibit States or consortiums of States from developing, implementing or maintaining State-developed databases that track individuals over time, including student unit record data systems.

Section 110. Clear and easy-to-find information on student financial aid

This section ensures that the Department of Education homepage contains a prominently displayed link to current student financial aid information. It requires the Secretary to improve the usefulness and accessibility of college financial planning and student financial aid information available on the website, and to conduct a major media campaign to publicize the availability of this information.

Section 111. Performance-based organization for the delivery of federal student financial assistance

Section 111 establishes that the functions of the Performance-Based Organization (PBO) in the Department of Education are now referred to as “administrative and oversight” functions, and not “operational.” The Secretary will assist the Chief Operating Officer in identifying goals for administration of the systems used to administer the student aid programs and for updating such systems to current technology.

The PBO will be responsible for the administration of Federal student financial assistance programs, including the collection, processing and transmission of data to students, institutions, lenders, State agencies, and other authorized parties, and the design and technical specifications for software development and procurement for systems supporting the students financial assistance programs of title IV. The PBO will also be responsible for ensuring the integrity of the student assistance programs authorized under title IV.

The PBO will be responsible for developing an annual budget for its activities and functions. The Chief Operating Officer will now consult with students, in addition to other stakeholders including but not limited to borrowers, institutions, lenders, guaranty agencies, and secondary markets. The Chief Operating Officer is no longer limited to appointing 25 technical and professional employees to administer the functions of the PBO.

Finally, the Chief Operating Officer will provide an annual briefing to the members of the authorizing committees on the steps the PBO has taken and is taking to ensure that lenders are providing required information on capitalization of interest with respect to student loans that are in forbearance and unsubsidized Stafford loans that are in deferment and on the benefits a Perkins borrower loses when a Perkins loan is included in a consolidation loan.

Section 112. Procurement flexibility

Section 112 directs that the PBO, through the Chief Operating Officer, utilize procurement systems that streamline operations, improve internal controls, and enhance management. The PBO shall also assess the efficiency of such systems and the systems' ability to meet PBO requirements.

This section also renames contracts awarded on a "sole-source basis" as contracts awarded on a "single-source basis." Such contracts are defined as those awarded to a source after soliciting an offer or offers from, and negotiating with, only that single source (although such source is not the only source in the marketplace capable of meeting the need), because such source is the most advantageous source for purposes of the award.

Section 113. Institution and lender reporting and disclosure requirements

Section 113 adds a new part on institution and lender reporting and disclosure requirements relating to educational loans to Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

This section defines "covered institution" as any educational institution that offers a postsecondary educational degree, certificate, or program of study, and receives any Federal funding or assistance; the term shall include any employee or agent of such an institution, or any affiliated organization or entity. The term "educational loan" is defined to include loans made, insured, or guaranteed under Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965. An "educational loan arrangement" shall include an arrangement or agreement between a lender and a covered institution under which a lender provides or issues educational loans to the institution's students, and which relates to the institution recommending, promoting, endorsing, or using educational loans of the lender, and involves the payment of any fee or provision of other material benefit by the lender to the institution or its students. The term "lender" includes any lender of a loan made, insured, or guaranteed under part B of title IV that is a financial institution under section 509 of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act; the Secretary, in the case of a Direct Loan; and any individual, group, or entity acting on behalf of a lender in connection with an educational loan. The term "officer" includes a director or trustee of an institution.

This section requires that a covered institution that enters into an educational loan arrangement disclose the name of the lender in all documentation related to loans provided under such arrangement.

This section also requires that a lender must provide a student with a specific set of disclosures, in writing, before the lender may provide a student with an educational loan. Such disclosures shall include clear statements of the interest rates of the educational loan being offered; sample educational loan costs, disaggregated by type, and for each type of loan being offered, the types of repayment plans that are available; and further information about terms and conditions of each loan, lender practices in cases of default, and possible benefits of each loan and the percentage of borrowers who received such benefits in the preceding academic year, among other information, as well as any additional information the Secretary may require in regulations.

Lenders are also required to report to the Secretary on an annual basis any reasonable expenses paid to specified employees of an institution under Sections 435 or 487 of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended by this Act (such as expenses paid for advisory board participation or professional development sponsored by lenders), including the amount of each instance in which the lender provided such reimbursement, the name of the recipient, the activity for which the reimbursement was made, and the dates of such activity. The Secretary shall annually report such information to Congress.

Finally, this section requires the Secretary to prepare a report on the adequacy of the information provided to students and their parents about educational loans. In preparing such report, the Secretary shall consult with students, representatives of covered institutions, lenders, loan servicers, and guaranty agencies. Such report shall include a consumer-friendly model format to be used by lenders and covered institutions that provides information on the applicable interest rates and other terms and conditions of the educational loans provided by a lender to students attending the institution or their parents, disaggregated by each type of educational loans provided to such students or parents by the lender. Lenders shall be required to provide annually the information included in such model report to the Secretary and the covered institution for each type of educational loan provided by the lender. Institutions shall submit to the Secretary an annual report that includes, for each lender that has an educational loan arrangement with the covered institution and that has submitted to the institution the information required under subsection, the information included on the model format for each type of educational loan provided by the lender, and a detailed explanation of why the covered institution believes the terms and conditions of each type of educational loan provided pursuant to the agreement are beneficial for students attending the covered institution, or the parents of such students. The institution shall ensure such report is made available to the public and provided to students attending or planning to attend the covered institution, and the parents of such students, in time for the student or parent to take such information into account before applying for or selecting a loan. The Secretary shall encourage lenders and covered institutions to use the model format in preparing these reports.

Title II—Teacher Quality Enhancement

Part A—Teacher quality partnership grants

The purpose of title II is to improve student achievement and the quality of the Nation's teaching force by holding higher education institutions accountable for preparing teachers and promoting strategies to recruit and prepare qualified individuals.

Section 201. Teacher quality partnership grants

Section 201 limits the teacher quality grants in Part A of Title II of the Higher Education Act of 1965 to teacher quality partnership grants, eliminating state grants, and changes the terms of the grants as follows.

This section defines the term “induction program” as a formalized program for new teachers during at least the teachers’ first 2 years of teaching that is designed to provide support for, improve the professional performance of, and increase retention of beginning teachers. Such programs shall promote effective teaching skills and shall include high-quality teacher mentoring, periodic and structured time for collaboration with teachers in the same department or field, the application of empirically based practice and scientifically valid research on instructional practices, development of skills in instructional and behavioral interventions derived from empirically based practice and, where applicable, scientifically valid research, assistance with the understanding of data, particularly student achievement data and the data’s applicability in classroom instruction, and regular evaluations of the new teacher.

The term “teaching residency program” means a school-based teacher preparation program in which a prospective teacher teaches alongside a mentor teacher for 1 academic year; receives concurrent instruction from the partner institution; acquires effective teaching skills; and earns a master’s degree, attains full State teacher certification or licensure, and becomes highly qualified.

This section defines “principles of scientific research” as research that applies rigorous, systematic and objective methodology to obtain reliable and valid knowledge relevant to education activities and programs; presents findings supported by the methods used; and includes other methods or elements as appropriate for the research being conducted. This section also defines “scientifically valid research” as applied, basic and field-initiated research in which the rationale, design and interpretation are soundly developed in accordance with accepted principles of scientific research.

Section 202. Partnership grants

Section 202 authorizes the Secretary to award competitive grants to eligible partnerships. Each application must contain a needs assessment of all the partners and a description of the extent to which the teacher preparation program prepares new teachers, including how to understand and use research and data in the classroom, and how the partnership would coordinate with other programs. Applications must also include a resource assessment of the resources available to the eligible partnership and an evaluation plan. In addition, applications must describe how the partnership would: align the teacher preparation program with academic achievement, early learning, and content standards; connect faculty at partner institutions with teachers and their classrooms in the high-need local educational agency included in the partnership to provide professional development opportunities; design, implement or enhance a yearlong rigorous and enriching pre-service clinical program; and collect, analyze, and disseminate data on teacher retention.

Eligible partnerships that receive grants under this part shall use grant funds to carry out a program for the pre-baccalaureate preparation of teachers, a teaching residency program, or both.

Programs for the pre-baccalaureate preparation of teachers shall be held accountable for promoting strong teaching skills, as well as preparing current or prospective teachers to be highly qualified, to understand evidence-based research on teaching and learning and its applicability to the classroom, and to use technology effectively. Required reforms shall include changing teacher preparation curriculum to improve, evaluate and assess how new and prospective teachers develop teaching skills; using evidence-based knowledge about teaching and learning to improve the preparation of teachers; ensuring new teachers receive training in both teaching and content areas; and developing and implementing an induction program, among other requirements. Such programs shall also include clinical experience and interaction, through the development and improvement of sustained and high-quality preservice clinical education programs, to further develop the teaching skills of all prospective educators. Such programs shall also create induction programs for new teachers. Such programs must also provide support and training for participating individuals, such as release time, course workload credit, and a stipend for mentors, which may include bonus, differential or merit or performance-based pay.

Teaching residency programs shall be based on models of successful teaching residencies, and shall include: the integration of pedagogy, classroom practice, and teacher mentoring; engagement of participants in rigorous coursework to obtain a master's degree while undertaking a guided teaching apprenticeship; experience and learning opportunities alongside an experienced mentor teacher, including the establishment of clear criteria for the selection of mentor teachers based on measures of teacher effectiveness and subject area knowledge; grouping of teacher candidates in cohorts to facilitate professional collaboration among residents; development of admissions goals and priorities aligned with the hiring objectives of the local education agency; support for residents, once they are teachers, through an induction program; and continued provision of professional development and networking opportunities to support residents through at least their first 2 years of teaching. Teaching residency programs shall provide 1-year living stipend or salary to teaching residents during the 1-year residency. As a condition of receiving such a stipend, a teacher resident shall agree to teach in a high-need school served by the high-need local educational agency involved in the partnership for 3 or more years after completing the residency.

Section 203. Administrative provisions

Section 203 provides that grants available under this section shall be for 5-year periods, and that a partnership is eligible to receive only one grant during a 5-year period. However, individual members within a partnership are eligible to receive another grant during this period by participating in other partnerships with different members.

Applications shall be submitted to a peer review panel for evaluation, and the Secretary shall select grant recipients on the basis of the peer review process. Priority shall be given to applications from broad-based partnerships that include business and community organizations and to partnerships that will ensure an equitable distribution of grants among urban and rural areas. Each partnership receiving a grant under this section is required to provide an amount equal to 100 percent of the amount of the grant in cash or in kind from non-Federal sources. The Secretary may waive the matching requirement for any partnership for any year if it would impose a serious hardship.

Section 204. Accountability and evaluation

Section 204 requires that partnership evaluation plans include objectives and measures for increasing student achievement, teacher retention, improvements in pass rates on State certification and licensure, and the percentage of highly qualified teachers hired by the high-need local educational agencies, including the percentage of highly qualified teachers working within the various targeted demographics.

Section 205. Accountability for programs that prepare teachers

Section 205 requires that all institutions of higher education that conduct a traditional teacher preparation program or alternative route to State certification and licensure, and that enroll students receiving Federal assistance under this Act, shall report the progress made towards specific measures for both their traditional teacher preparation programs and alternative routes.

States must annually submit a report card on the quality of teacher preparation to the Secretary of Education. The Secretary may not create a national list or ranking of States or schools based on these reports. The Secretary must provide Congress with a report card, which must be widely published, on teacher qualifications and preparation in the United States. The Secretary must also submit a report to Congress that contains a comparison of States' and eligible partnerships' efforts to improve the quality of the teaching force.

Section 206. State functions

Section 206 requires that States receiving funds under this section must have in place a procedure to identify and assist low-performing teacher preparation programs. If a State terminates financial support for a teacher preparation program due to low performance, the program must provide transitional support for students enrolled at the institution at the time of the termination.

Section 207. General provisions

Section 207 requires the Secretary to ensure that States and institutions of higher education use fair and equitable methods in reporting and that the reporting methods do not allow for identification of individuals.

Section 208. Authorization of appropriations

Section 208 authorizes such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2008 and the 5 succeeding fiscal years.

Title III—Institutional Aid

Section 301. Program purpose

Section 301 states that special consideration for awarding grants under this section shall be given to grant applications that include support services for the education of special populations. Allowable uses of grant funds are expanded to include using grant aid for education or counseling services designed to improve the financial literacy of students or their parents.

Section 302. Definitions; eligibility

Section 302 makes a technical change to existing law.

Section 303. American Indian tribally controlled colleges and universities

Section 303 amends the definition of a “Tribal College or University” to include institutions identified in the Tribally Controlled College or University Assistance Act of 1978, the Navajo Community College Assistance Act of 1978, or cited in Section 532 of the Equity in Educational Land Grant Status Act of 1994.

Allowable uses of grant funds are also expanded. Institutions may now use grant aid to acquire real property adjacent to the institution, for education or counseling services designed to improve financial literacy of students or their parents, or to develop or improve distance learning or internet facilities and capabilities.

The Secretary of Education may reserve 30 percent of a fiscal year’s appropriated funds to award at least $1 million for maintenance and renovation at eligible institutions. Preference is given to a tribally controlled college or university that has never received an award under section 316.

The Secretary of Education would use the remaining appropriated funds to award grants on a formula basis, with no such grant in an amount less than $500,000. Sixty percent of these funds would be awarded proportionally, based on the number of Indian students enrolled at these colleges and universities. The remaining 40 percent would be distributed equally among all eligible schools.

Colleges or universities that are eligible for and receive funds under section 316 would not be eligible to receive any additional funding, concurrently, under part A or B of title III. Eligible institutions would not be subject to the wait-out period with respect to new funding under section 316.

Section 304. Alaska native and native Hawaiian-serving institutions

Section 304 states that institutions may use grant aid for education or counseling services designed to improve financial literacy of students or their parents.

Section 305. Native American-serving, nontribal institutions

Section 305 authorizes a new grant program specifically for Native American-serving, nontribal colleges or universities. The Secretary of Education must provide grants of at least $200,000 for schools to improve their capacity to serve Native Americans. Grants may be used to fund the following types of activities: purchasing scientific or laboratory equipment, books, and other educational material; renovating classrooms, libraries, or other instructional facilities; and supporting faculty and curriculum development, tutoring and other student support services.

In order to be eligible for a grant, the institution may not be a tribal college or university and at least 10 percent of the undergraduate enrollment must be composed of Native American students. Additionally, institutions that are eligible for or receive funds under section 318 would not be eligible to receive any additional funding, concurrently, under part A or part B of title III. This section waives the requirement in section 313(d), allowing eligible institutions to apply for new funding once the grant expires.

Section 306. Part B definitions

Section 306 adds the Commissioner for Education Statistics to the entities determining the “professional and academic areas in which Blacks are underrepresented.”

Section 307. Grants to institutions

Section 307 expands the allowable uses of funds under this section, stating that institutions may be able to use grant aid for education or counseling services designed to improve financial literacy of students or their parents.

Section 308. Allotments to institutions

Section 308 establishes that in order to receive an allotment of funds, eligible historically black colleges and universities must provide institutional data on the number of enrolled Pell grant recipients and graduates from the past academic year as well as the number of graduates in the past 5 years who enrolled in a graduate or professional school.

Section 309. Professional or graduate institutions

Section 309 establishes that institutions may use grant aid for education or counseling services designed to improve financial literacy of students or their parents or for various academic student support services. Funds may also be used to acquire and develop property adjacent to colleges and universities.

The following seven universities are added to the list of qualified graduate programs: Alabama State University, Coppin State University, Prairie View A&M University, Fayetteville State University, Delaware State University, Langston University, and West Virginia State University.

The following two programs of instruction are added to the list of qualified graduate programs of instruction: law and psychometrics.

In determining awards, the Secretary shall consider the amount of non-Federal funds that come from the institution’s own resources as well as private donors, State allocations and the amount of institutional funds designated for Federal matching dollars. In addition, the Secretary would determine funding based on the percentage that the number of the institution’s Black American and minority students who receive their first graduate or professional degree represents of the total number of Black American and minority students in the United States who earn their first graduate or professional degree.

Section 310. Authority of the Secretary

Section 310 requires the Secretary to submit to the authorizing committees within 1 year a report on the progress of the Department in implementing the Government Accountability Office's recommendations for improving the Historically Black College and Universities Capital Financing Program.

Section 311. Authorization of appropriations

Section 311 authorizes such sums as may be necessary for all programs under Title III of the Higher Education Act of 1965 for fiscal year 2008 and the 5 succeeding fiscal years.

Section 312. Technical corrections

Section 312 makes technical and conforming changes throughout title III.

Title IV—Student Assistance

Part A—Grants to Students in Attendance at Institutions of Higher Education

The purpose of part A is to increase participation of eligible students in higher education with grants for student financial assistance, State assistance and programs, special programs and projects, and institutions of higher education.

Section 401. Federal Pell grants

Section 401 raises the authorized level for a maximum Federal Pell grant for eligible students to $5,400 for academic year 2008–09; $5,700 for academic year 2009–10; $6,000 for academic year 2010–11; and $6,300 for academic year 2011–12. This section revises the minimum grant award from $400 to 10 percent of the maximum authorized award for an award year. Students eligible for an award less than 10 percent of the maximum award but more than 5 percent of the maximum award would receive an award equal to 10 percent of the maximum award.

The Secretary of Education shall allow eligible students seeking to enroll in additional academic sessions (e.g., year-round coursework or summer semester in addition to fall and winter semesters) to receive up to two Pell grants in a single award year. Students would need to be enrolled at least on a half-time basis in a 2- or 4-year program of instruction and for more than 1 academic year in order to be eligible to receive a second Pell grant. The total monetary amount of the two awards combined may exceed the maximum grant level specified in the Appropriations Act for that given award year. The period of time during which a student may receive Pell grants may not exceed 18 semesters or an equivalent period of time as determined by the Secretary.

Section 402. Academic competitiveness grants

Section 402 makes a series of changes to the eligibility requirements for Academic Competitiveness Grants (ACG) and National Science and Mathematics Access to Retain Talent (SMART) grants. It expands eligibility for such grants to students who are in school on at least a half-time basis. It clarifies that eligible students enrolled in certificate programs of at least one year at 2- and 4-year degree granting institutions are eligible for ACGs. It also expands eligibility for National Science and Mathematics Access to Retain Talent (SMART) grants to third and fourth year students who are enrolled at institutions that do not offer degrees in the subjects required to be eligible for a SMART grant (physical, life, or computer sciences, math, technology, engineering, or critical foreign language), but who have taken the required number of classes to gain such a degree at an institution that does grant degrees in eligible subject areas; and to fifth year students in programs that require 5 years to complete undergraduate degrees in the physical, life, or computer sciences, mathematics, technology, or engineering. It eliminates the citizenship requirement for grants under this section, thus enabling Pell-eligible non-citizens to receive ACG and SMART grants. Finally, it makes a series of changes to the process by which such grants are awarded.

Section 403. Federal TRIO programs

Section 403 establishes that awarded grants or contracts may be provided for a 5-year period, but grants identified specifically for staff training and development may only be for a 2-year period. The duration of a grant for evaluation and assessment of a program is to be determined by the Secretary of Education. All awards for an individual grant would be at least $200,000, except for staff training and development programs. For these particular programs awards would be at least $170,000.

The Secretary must establish outcome criteria for measuring the quality and effectiveness of the Talent Search, Upward Bound, Student Support Services, Postbaccalaureate Achievement, and Educational Opportunity Centers programs. The Secretary is required to measure the program's delivery of services and secondary school enrollment and completion, postsecondary enrollment, academic performance, and completion outcomes for students served by the grant programs. Outcome criteria must be disaggregated by low-income, first generation, and individuals with disabilities within each school or institution served by the grant program. Programs would be assessed on how they meet or exceed their various objectives, measured against an eligible entity's stated target outcomes established in their program application.

Talent Search

Talent Search programs must provide the following activities: academic tutoring; assistance in selecting secondary courses and applying for college; information on and assistance in completing financial aid forms; guidance to high school drop outs; and services designed to improve student or parent financial and economic literacy. The section also expands the permissible services component to include programs for students with disabilities and those who are homeless or in foster care.

Upward Bound

The amendments alter and strengthen the required services component for Upward Bound programs. Upward Bound programs must provide the following activities: academic tutoring; assistance in selecting secondary courses and applying for college; information on and assistance in completing financial aid forms; guidance to high school drop outs; and services designed to improve student or parent financial and economic literacy. In addition to those with limited English proficiency, the permissible services component is expanded to include programs for students with disabilities and those who are homeless or in foster care. Priority is given to Upward Bound projects that select at least 30 percent of all first time participants from students who have a high risk of academic failure. The language also states that the Secretary may not deny participation in Upward Bound to a student who enters the program for the first time after the ninth grade.

Student Support Services

The purpose of Student Support Services is expanded to include improving students' financial and economic literacy, such as personal income and financial planning. In addition to creating a supportive institutional climate for low-income and first generation college students as well as individuals with disabilities, this program may also support students with limited English proficiency and those who are homeless or in foster care.

Student Support Services programs must provide the following activities: academic tutoring; assistance in selecting postsecondary courses, transferring from a 2-year to a 4-year program, or enrolling in graduate programs; information on and assistance in completing financial aid forms; and services designed to improve student or parent financial and economic literacy. The permissible services may include securing temporary housing during school breaks for students who are homeless or in foster care.

Postbaccalaureate Achievement Program Authority

Activities under this program may include education or counseling services, mentoring programs, and exposure to cultural events and academic programs.

Educational Opportunity Centers

The purpose of Educational Opportunity Centers is expanded to include improving student or parent financial and economic literacy, such as personal income and financial planning. Funds could be used for education or counseling designed to improve students' financial and economic literacy as well as personal, career, and academic counseling. In addition to those with limited English proficiency, funds may be used to assist students with disabilities and those who are homeless or in foster care.

Reports, evaluations, and grants for project improvement and dissemination

The title of section 402H would change from "Evaluations and Grants for Project Improvement and Dissemination Partnership Projects" to "Reports, Evaluations, and Grants for Project Improvement and Dissemination." The Secretary of Education must submit a report annually, and not later than 2 years after the participating entities submit their report to the Secretary, documenting the outcome data on the program's delivery of services, participating students' secondary and postsecondary school enrollment and completion, and academic performance. Reported data will be aggregated by individual project performance, include when appropriate descriptive, longitudinal, and multi-cohort data, and comparable data on the national population of low-income, first generation students and students with disabilities. Reports will provide national performance data with the primary purpose of identifying and highlighting best practices for increasing college access and persistence through implementation of the programs. This section also specifies that the Secretary may not require an eligible entity that applies for assistance under this chapter to recruit students to serve as a control group in an evaluation.

Section 404. Gaining early awareness and readiness for undergraduate programs (GEAR UP)

Section 404 eliminates the current law priority for eligible entities that had previously carried out programs under chapter 2 prior to the Higher Education Amendments of 1998.

This section requires the Secretary of Education to consider the geographic distribution of awards and the distribution of awards between urban and rural applicants.

Section 404 also removes the current law limitation on the amount of funds used specifically for early intervention. The section shifts requirements that activities not displace other employees and that grantees have adequate coordinating staff into the list of information that must be provided as part of the grantee's application. Entities must ensure that grants awarded would be used to supplement and not supplant Federal, State and other local funds used for similar activities and programming.

The title of section 404C is changed from "Eligible Entity Plans" to "Applications." The contents of an application for a grant must include: description of how the entity meets the scholarship requirements; demonstration of adequate staffing for coordinating activities; assurance that activities would not displace employees or eliminate positions at schools; description of how the entity defines the targeted cohort and serves the cohort through grade 12; description of program coordination with existing Federal, State, and local projects; and required activities.

The title of section 404D is changed from "Early Intervention" to "Activities." Grantees are required to carry out the following activities: provide information on financial aid to the cohorts; encourage student enrollment in challenging secondary coursework; support activities designed to lead to students graduating from high school and enrolling in institutions of higher education; and provide scholarships. Grantees may also use funds for tutoring, mentors, outreach, secondary and postsecondary support services, development or implementation of rigorous secondary curricula, dual enrollment, college visits, extended school day programs, or scholarships. States would be given the option to promote additional activities, such as technical assistance to middle or secondary schools, professional development opportunities, strategies to increase postsecondary enrollment and graduation rates, alignment of secondary and postsecondary curricula and standards, alternatives to the traditional secondary school that provide a stronger link between high school and postsecondary options, drop out recovery programs, and dissemination of best practices.

States receiving grant funds under this chapter must use at least 25 percent and no more than 50 percent of funds for early intervention activities described in section 404D. Remaining funds would be used for scholarships for eligible students. Grantees could use more than 50 percent of their funds for these activities if they have other means of providing financial assistance.

Entities must notify students when they enter the programs of the eligibility requirements to receive a scholarship. Each grantee must create or organize a trust for each cohort of students. The trust must provide each student in the cohort with, at a minimum, an amount equal to the minimum Pell grant award described in section 401. Funds in a trust would become available to a student once he or she graduated from high school or the equivalent and enrolled in a 2- or 4-year institution. Students could use funds for qualifying educational expenses, including tuition, fees, books, supplies, equipment, and designated special needs.

Trust funds not used within 6 years of the student's expected date of completion from secondary school could be redistributed to other eligible students. Excess or unused funds by an entity would be returned to the Secretary of Education. The Secretary would then redistribute the funds to other grantee entities.

Section 404F of the existing law, 21st Century Scholarship Certificates, is repealed. Sections 404G and 404H are redesignated as sections 404F and 404G.

Section 403 authorizes such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2008 and 5 succeeding fiscal years.

Section 405. Academic achievement incentive scholarships

Section 405 repeals this program.

Section 406. Federal supplemental educational opportunity grants

Section 406 increases the allowance of books and supplies used to compute the average cost of attendance from $450 to $600.

Section 407. Leveraging educational assistance partnership program

Applications for Leveraging Educational Assistance Partnership Programs. The monetary amount allocated by States for an individual student grant increased from a maximum of $5,000 per academic year to either a maximum of $12,500 per academic year or the student's cost of attendance, whichever is less. States must notify eligible students that aid is from Leveraging Educational Assistance Partnership grants and funded by the Federal Government, the States, and other contributing partners.

The title for section 415E, "Special Leveraging Educational Assistance Partnership Program" would be changed to "Grants for Access and Persistence." The purpose of this section is expanded to increase college access and persistence by making State allotments to: expand and enhance partnerships with institutions of higher education and private organizations in order to provide additional need-based grants to eligible low-income students; provide early notification of eligibility for financial aid; and encourage participation in early information, intervention, and other outreach programs.

States desiring an allotment must submit an application to the Secretary of Education. The application must describe the State's plan for using the funds and the organizational structure to administer the various activities and assure that the State provides the non-Federal share and that early information, intervention, and other outreach programs exist. An application must also explain the State's methods for identifying and awarding grants to eligible students. State agencies must apply for an allotment in partnership with the following organizations or entities: at least one private and one public college or university located in the State, if applicable; early information, intervention, and other outreach State programs; and at least one State philanthropic organization or private corporation.

The Secretary makes an allotment to States to pay the Federal share of the cost of carrying out the various authorized activities. The amount of the Federal share is determined by the percentage of full-time students enrolled in the State's partnership colleges and universities in comparison to the total number of students attending institutions of higher education in the State. The Federal share is 50 percent if enrollment in the State's partnership schools represents less than a majority of all students attending colleges and universities. The Federal share is 57 percent if enrollment in the State's partnership schools represents a majority of all students attending colleges and universities.

Each State receiving an allotment must use funds toward the overall partnership to award grants for eligible low-income students. If the State's partnership is with institutions serving less than a majority of students in the State, the monetary amount of an individual student grant would be at least equal to the average undergraduate tuition and mandatory fees at 4-year public institutions. If the State's partnership is with institutions serving a majority of students in the State, the monetary amount of an individual student grant would be no more than equal to the average cost of attendance at 4-year public institutions.

States must annually notify low-income students in grades 7 through 12 of their potential eligibility for financial assistance. To be eligible to receive a grant, students must meet at least two of the following criteria: have an expected family contribution of zero; qualify for a free or reduced lunch; qualify for the State's maximum undergraduate award; or participate in early information, intervention, or other outreach programs. Students would receive a grant for each year of their undergraduate education, as long as they remained financially eligible and meet the State's degree completion time limits.

The State agency receiving an allotment must annually report to the Secretary on the partnership's progress in meeting identified goals and objectives. Within 3 years of the enactment of the Higher Education Amendments of 2007 and annually thereafter, the Secretary must submit a report to Congress describing activities and the impact of the partnerships.

Section 408. Special programs for students whose families are engaged immigrant and seasonal farmwork

Section 408 expands the services provided by the college assistance migrant program to include internships, transportation, and child care. Program follow-up services with students, after they complete their first year of college, may include encouraging students to transfer from 2-year to 4-year institutions of higher education. This section also expands eligibility for the recruitment services authorized under this program to children who have immediate family members who have spent at least 75 days over the past 24 months in migrant and seasonal farmwork; current law only covers children who themselves or whose parents have spent such time in migrant and seasonal farmwork.

This section also requires the Commissioner of Education Statistics to annually collect data about persons receiving services under this part, including rates of secondary school graduation, entrance into postsecondary education, and completion of postsecondary education. At least every 2 years, the Commissioner shall prepare and submit a report containing this data, which shall be made available to the public.

This program is reauthorized for such sums as may be necessary in fiscal year 2008 and the 5 succeeding fiscal years. The Secretary of Education shall allocate an amount no greater than $180,000 for each project under the high school equivalency program or the college assistance migrant program. No more than .5 percent of funds made available for the projects may be used for outreach activities, technical assistance, and professional development programs.

Section 409. Robert C. Byrd honors scholarship program

Section 409 reauthorizes this program for such sums as may be necessary in fiscal year 2008 and the 5 succeeding fiscal years.

Section 410. Child care access means parents in school

Section 410 sets the minimum grant level at $10,000 and $30,000 when the amount appropriated for activities under this section is equal to or greater than $20 million.

The definition of a “low-income student” is expanded to include a person who would be eligible to receive a Pell grant except that the student is enrolled in a graduate or professional course or is in the United States for a temporary period of time.

Section 411. Learning anytime anywhere partnerships

Section 411 repeals this entire chapter, including sections 420D, 420E, 420F, 420G, 420H, 420I, and 420J.

Part B—Federal Family Education Loan Program

Section 421. Federal payments to reduce student interest costs

Section 421 describes the process by which a lender shall determine a borrower’s eligibility for deferment of student loan interest. It adds to the requirements already in current law that the lender must confirm a borrower’s enrollment status through the National Student Loan Data System, if such confirmation is requested by the institution of higher education.

This section also places restrictions on the actions a guaranty agency may take under law. It prohibits guaranty agencies from offering, directly or indirectly, premiums, payments, stock or other securities, prizes, travel, entertainment expenses, tuition repayment, or other inducements to institutions of higher education or their employees to secure applicants for loans or to any lender or lender's agent, employee, or independent contractor, for the purpose of securing the designation of the guaranty agency as the insurer of loans. It also prohibits guaranty agencies from conducting unsolicited mailings of educational loan application forms to students or the parents of such students who have not previously received loans guaranteed by the specific guaranty agency; from performing for an institution or paying another to perform for an institution any function that the institution is required to perform under part B, D, or G of the Higher Education Act of 1965; and from conducting fraudulent or misleading advertising concerning loan availability, terms, or conditions.

Section 422. Federal consolidation loans

Section 422 requires lenders of consolidation loans to make a series of disclosures to borrowers who apply for consolidation loans. Lenders shall provide borrowers with information about the possible impact of consolidation, including the total interest and fees to be paid on the consolidation loan, and the length of repayment for the loan; whether consolidation would result in a loss of loan benefits; the ability of the borrower to prepay the consolidation loan, pay such loan on a shorter schedule, and to change repayment plans; that borrower benefit programs may vary among different lenders; the consequences of default on the consolidation loan; that by applying for a consolidation loan, the borrower is not obligated to agree to take the consolidation loan; and in the case of a borrower that plans to include a Federal Perkins Loan in the consolidation loan, that once the borrower adds the borrower's Federal Perkins Loan to a consolidation loan, the borrower will lose all interest-free periods that would have been available for such loan, and will no longer be eligible for cancellation of part or all of a Federal Perkins loan under section 465(a).

Section 423. Default reduction program

Section 423 requires guaranty agencies offering programs that allow borrowers with defaulted loans to renew eligibility on their loans after borrowers make six consecutive monthly payments to make available financial and economic educational materials before, during, or after rehabilitation of the loans.

Section 424. Reports to consumer reporting agencies and institutions of higher education

Section 424 changes the term "credit bureaus" in the section title to "consumer reporting agencies." This section also requires the Secretary of Education, guaranty agencies, eligible lenders, and holders to include information about the type of loan made, the repayment status of the loan, and any other information mandated by Federal law when providing information to consumer reporting agencies concerning student borrowers. The information must be provided to all nationwide consumer reporting agencies.

Section 425. Common forms and formats

Section 425 establishes that institutions may use master promissory notes for loans under this part and part D, unless otherwise noted.

Section 426. Student loan information by eligible lenders

Section 426 establishes that lenders, guaranty agencies, secondary markets, consumer reporting agencies, or loan servicers that are subject to Subtitle A of Title V of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act shall only use, release, sell, transfer, or give student information in accordance with the provisions of that subtitle. Each eligible lender, holder, or servicer must provide the borrower with information on loan benefit repayment options, including comprehensive information on reducing interest rates.

Section 427. Consumer education information

Section 427 requires guaranty agencies working with institutions of higher education to develop or use existing educational programs and materials to provide training for students in budgeting and financial management.

Section 428. Definition of eligible lender

Section 428 places a number of restrictions on the activities a lender may undertake to qualify as an eligible lender. It prohibits eligible lenders from offering, directly or indirectly, points, premiums, payments (including payments for referrals and for processing or finder fees), prizes, stock or other securities, travel, entertainment expenses, tuition repayment, the provision of information technology equipment at below-market value, additional financial aid funds, or other inducements to any institution of higher education or its employees in order to secure applicants for loans under this part; from conducting unsolicited mailings of student loan application forms to students or their parents, unless such students have previously received loans from such lender; from entering into any type of consulting arrangement, or other contract to provide services to a lender, with an employee of an institution with responsibilities with respect to student loans or financial aid; from compensating such an employee who is serving on an advisory board, commission, or group established by a lender or group of lenders for providing such service, except for reasonable expenses incurred in providing such service; or from performing for an institution of higher education or paying another to perform for an institution any function that the institution of higher education is required to carry out under part B, D, or G of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

This section also sunsets the authority provided under the Higher Education Act for a school to serve as an eligible lender, and for an eligible lender to serve as a trustee for an institution of higher education or an organization affiliated with an institution of higher education, as of June 30, 2012. Such an existing institutional lender shall not issue any new loans in such capacity under part B after June 30, 2012. Prior to June 30, 2012, such an institutional lender shall carry out the institution's responsibilities with respect to such loans; except that beginning on June 30, 2011, such an institutional lender may sell or otherwise dispose of such loans so long as all profits from such divestiture are directed to need-based aid.

Section 429. Discharge and cancellation rights in cases of disability

Section 429 expands the group of disabled borrowers for whom the Secretary will discharge their liability and repay their loans, to include a borrower who is unable to engage in substantial gainful activity due to a medically determinable physical or mental impairment that can be expected to result in death, has lasted for 5 years continuously, or can be expected to last for at least 5 years continuously. This change shall apply to borrowers of loans under part B, part D, and part E. This section also allows the Secretary to develop safeguards to prevent fraud and abuse in the discharge of liability under this subsection.

Section 430. Special allowances

Section 430 authorizes the Secretary to collect a loan fee on all consolidation loans of 1 percent of the principal.

Part C—Federal Work-Study Programs

The purpose of part C is to promote part-time employment of undergraduate and graduate students who need earnings to pursue their courses of study. Additionally, the goal of part C is to encourage students receiving Federal financial aid to participate in community service activities.

Section 441. Authorization of appropriations

Section 441 authorizes such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2008 and each of the 5 succeeding fiscal years.

Section 442. Allowance for books and supplies

Section 442 establishes that an institution's eligibility for funding under this part is equal to the sum of the self-help need of all the school's undergraduate and graduate students. The self-help of a student is calculated using a variety of factors, including an allowance for books and supplies. This allowance is increased from $450 to $600.

Section 443. Grants for federal work-study programs

Section 443 permits the Secretary to waive the community service requirement under this part if an institution certifies that at least 15 percent of its full-time student enrollment participates in community service or tutoring or literacy activities.

Section 444. Job location and development programs

Section 444 states that institutions may use no more than 10 percent, or $75,000, whichever is less, of their work-study allotments to establish or expand programs that locate and develop jobs including community service jobs for currently enrolled students.

Section 445. Work colleges

Section 445 emphasizes the importance of service in work-colleges. It amends the work-colleges section throughout to change comprehensive work-learning programs to comprehensive work-learning-service programs. Comprehensive work-learning-service programs are defined as student work-learning-service programs that, among other requirements, are an integral and stated part of the institution's educational philosophy and program; require participation of all resident students for enrollment and graduation; include learning objectives, evaluation, and a record of work performance as part of the student's college record; and includes consequences for non-performance or failure in the work-learning-service program similar to the consequences for failure in the regular academic program.

This section also adds to authorized activities under this section the support of existing and new model student volunteer community service projects associated with local institutions of higher education. It also limits the definition of work-colleges to 4-year, degree-granting institutions. Such schools must require all resident students, including at least 1/2 of resident students who are enrolled on a full-time basis, to participate in a comprehensive work-learning-service program for not less than 5 hours each week, or not less than 80 hours during each period of enrollment except summer school.

Part D—Federal Perkins Loans

Section 451. Program authority

This section authorizes such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2008 through 2012.

Section 451. Cancellation of loans for certain public service

Section 451 adds to the list of those service occupations eligible for Perkins loan cancellation: (1) full-time staff members in a pre-kindergarten or child care program that is licensed or regulated by the State (in addition to Head Start), (2) full-time faculty members at Tribal Colleges and Universities, (3) librarians with a master's degree in library science who are employed in an elementary or secondary school that is eligible for assistance under title I of ESEA or in a public school library that serves a geographic area that contains one or more title I eligible schools, and (4) speech language therapists with a master's degree working exclusively with schools that are eligible for assistance under title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Assistance Act.

This section also expands Perkins loan forgiveness for members of the Armed Forces from 50 percent to 100 percent, consistent with others types of loan cancellation in the section.

Part E—Need analysis

Section 461. Cost of attendance

Section 461 adds a provision to the list of costs that may be included in calculating a student's room and board allowance for the purpose of determining financial aid. For students who live in housing located on a military base or for which a basic allowance for housing is provided under section 403(b) of Title 37, United States Code, such student's room and board allowance shall be calculated based on the expenses reasonably incurred by such students for board, but not for room.

Section 462. Definitions

Section 462 amends the definition of untaxed income for the purpose of determining the expected family contribution to exclude the value of on-base military housing or the value of basic allowance for housing determined under section 403(b) of title 37, received by a student or his or her parents.

Part F—General provisions relating to student assistance

Section 471. Definitions

Section 471 makes a technical change to the definition of an academic year, specifying that to be eligible for a waiver of the 30-week requirement an institution may measure program length in credit hours or clock hours.

Section 472. Compliance calendar

Section 472 directs the Secretary to provide institutions of higher education a list of all reports and disclosures required under this act at the beginning of each award year. This information shall include the date each report is due, the required recipients, the method of transmission, references to the statutory authority, a description of the contents of the report and any other information that the Secretary may require.

Section 473. Forms and regulations

Section 473 establishes common financial aid forms and processing that are developed in cooperation with representatives of agencies and organizations involved in student financial assistance. These forms shall be produced, distributed and processed free of charge and made available to applicants in both paper and electronic formats and referred to as the “Free Application for Federal Student Aid” or “FAFSA”. The Secretary shall also develop, field test, and implement a simplified paper application form, to be known as the “EZ FAFSA” to be used by families who have a zero expected family contribution. The Secretary shall include on the EZ FAFSA any data that is required by States, provided the State permits its applicants to use the EZ FAFSA for State assistance, and publish annually in the Federal Register a request for States to inform the Secretary of questions they need on the FAFSA to gather information relevant to State programs. All information on the FAFSA shall be available to institutions of higher education, guaranty agencies, and States. The Secretary shall make all efforts to encourage all applicants to use the simplified electronic application that uses smart logic to tailor the questions to individual applicants. The Secretary shall use any realized savings from the phasing out of the paper form to improve access to the electronic form and make an annual report on progress in accessing and moving to the electronic form. The Secretary shall permit an electronic form to be submitted without a signature if a signature is subsequently submitted or if the applicant uses a personal identification number (PIN) provided by the Secretary. No later than 180 days after enactment of the Higher Education Amendments of 2007, the Secretary shall implement a real-time data match between the Social Security Administration and the Department to minimize the time required for an applicant to obtain a PIN. The Secretary shall also develop a streamlined reapplication form and process, including both paper and electronic versions for an applicant who applies for financial assistance in succeeding academic years. In the reapplication process, families determined to have a zero family contribution shall not be required to provide any financial data.

The Secretary shall permit an applicant to complete a FAFSA form in the years prior to postsecondary enrollment to obtain from the Secretary a non-binding estimate of the applicant's expected family contribution.

This section also authorizes an early application and award demonstration program, which shall serve to determine the feasibility of implementing a comprehensive early financial aid application and notification system for all dependent students and to measure the benefits and costs of such a system. This demonstration program shall enable dependent students who wish to participate to complete an application under this subsection during the academic year that is 2 years prior to the year such students plan to enroll in an institution of higher education, and based on this application, to obtain, at least 1 year prior to the year of the students' planned enrollment, information on eligibility for Federal Pell Grants, Federal student loans under title IV, and State and institutional financial aid for such students' first year of enrollment in an institution of higher education. The Secretary of Education shall conduct a rigorous evaluation of this demonstration program to measure the program's benefits and adverse effects. Such an evaluation shall include, among other factors, an identification of whether receiving financial aid awards or estimates 1 year prior to the year in which the student plans to enroll in an institution of higher education has a positive impact on the higher educational aspirations of the student; the extent to which using a student's income information from the year that is 2 years prior to the student's planned enrollment date had an impact on the ability of States and institutions to make financial aid awards and commitments; determine what operational changes or changes to Federal law that would be necessary to implement the program on a larger, permanent basis; and identify the benefits and adverse effects of providing early awards or estimates on program costs, program operations, program integrity, award amounts, distribution, and delivery of aid.

This section requires the Comptroller General and the Secretary of Education, in consultation with a study group made up of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Director of the Congressional Budget Office, and such other individuals as the Comptroller General and Secretary of Education may designate, to design and conduct a study to identify and evaluate the means of simplifying the process of applying for Federal financial aid under this title. The study shall focus on developing alternative approaches for calculating the expected family contribution that use substantially less income and asset data than the methodology currently used for determining the expected family contribution. The study must consider, among other information: how the expected family contribution of a student could be calculated using substantially less income and asset information than the approach currently used, which alternative approaches for calculating the expected family contribution shall, to the extent practicable, rely mainly on information available on the 1040, 1040A, and 1040EZ for students and parents who file tax returns, and shall include formulas for adjusting income or asset information to produce similar results to the existing approach with less data; how the Internal Revenue Service can provide income and other data needed to compute an expected family contribution for taxpayers and dependents of taxpayers to the Secretary; whether the data provided by the Internal Revenue Service could be used to prepopulate the electronic version of the FAFSA with student and parent taxpayer data, or generate an expected family contribution without additional action on the part of the student and taxpayer; the extent to which States and institutions would accept the data provided by the Internal Revenue Service data to prepopulate an electronic FAFSA in determining the distribution of State and institutional financial aid funds; additional steps that could be taken to simplify the financial aid process for students and parents who are not required to file a tax return for the previous year; and information on the State need for the full array of income, asset, and other information currently collected on the FAFSA. If the Secretary of Education, in a joint determination with the Secretary of the Treasury, determines that the use of Internal Revenue Service data to prepopulate the electronic version of the FAFSA will not significantly negatively impact students, institutions of higher education, States, or the Federal Government on a series of specified criteria, the Secretary may use such Internal Revenue Service data to prepopulate the electronic version of the FAFSA. The Secretary of Education and the Comptroller General shall prepare a report on the results of this study not later than 18 months after the enactment of this Act.

Section 474. Student eligibility

Section 474 specifies that in order to be eligible to receive aid under this title, a student must be a citizen or permanent resident enrolled in an eligible program, be making satisfactory progress in that program, not owe a refund or be in default of a previous loan and have filed a FAFSA for aid determination. An institution may determine that a student who has satisfactorily completed 6 credit hours (or the equivalent) applicable to a degree or certificate has the ability to benefit from the education or training offered by the institution.

Section 474 also specifies that students enrolled in programs that lead to a recognized certificate, or associate, baccalaureate, or graduate degrees, that are offered principally through distance education shall not be considered to be enrolled in correspondence courses.

Section 474 also expands the eligibility requirements for student financial assistance under title IV so students with intellectual disabilities shall be eligible for such assistance, even if they are enrolled in non-degree programs. To qualify for grants or work assistance under subparts 1 and 3 of part A and part C of title IV, such student shall be an individual with an intellectual disability whose significant cognitive impairment substantially impacts the individual's intellectual and cognitive functioning, who is eligible for assistance under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and has completed secondary school, among other requirements. Such individuals must be enrolled or accepted for enrollment in a comprehensive transition and postsecondary education program that is designed for students with an intellectual disability who are seeking to continue academic, vocational, and independent living instruction at the institution in order to prepare for gainful employment and independent living; includes an advising and curriculum structure; requires students to participate on at least a half-time basis; or includes regular enrollment in courses offered by the institution, auditing or participating in courses offered by the institution for which the student does not receive regular academic credit, enrollment in non-credit, non-degree courses or participation in internships. Such individual must also be maintaining satisfactory progress in the program as determined by the institution.

Section 475. Statute of limitations and State court judgments

Section 475 ensures that obligations to repay loans and grant overpayments are enforced. In collecting any obligation on Perkins loans, an institution of higher education shall not be denied payment due to a claim of infancy by the borrower. The section clarifies that payments are not due in the case of a student who is deceased, and that payments may not be required of a deceased student's estate.

Section 476. Institutional refunds

Section 476 establishes that if a recipient of aid under this title withdraws from an institution during a payment period or a period of enrollment due to illness, accident, grievous personal loss or other circumstances beyond the student's control, and does not notify the institution, the institution may determine the appropriate withdrawal date and may determine that the student does not need to repay title IV funds.

Section 477. Institutional and financial assistance for students

Section 477 adds to the information that institutions must disseminate to prospective and enrolled students an institution's policies and sanctions regarding copyright infringement. Such policies must inform students that unauthorized distribution of copyrighted material on the institution's information technology systems may subject students to civil and criminal penalties.

This section requires institutions to provide information on student body diversity, including the percentage of enrolled, full-time students who are male, female, from a low-income background, and a self-identified member of a major racial or ethnic group.

This section also requires that the completion and graduation rate data that is already required to be reported under current law, also be disaggregated by gender, major racial and ethnic subgroup, by recipients of a Federal Pell grant, by recipients of a loan made under part B or part D (other than an unsubsidized Stafford loan) who did not receive a Pell grant, and by recipients of neither a Federal Pell grant nor a loan made under this part or part D (other than an unsubsidized Stafford loan).

This section also requires that eligible institutions disseminate specific information to prospective and enrolled students. Each institution must disclose information on student financial assistance and the procedures for applying for such assistance, the cost of attending the institution and general information about the academic and non-academic aspects of the school programs. For the purposes of information on graduation rates, the institution may exclude information on students who leave school to serve in the Armed Forces, on official church missions, or with a recognized foreign aid service of the Federal Government or, if the students in that category exceed 20 percent of an institution's enrollment, include such students, but exclude the time period the students were not enrolled due to their service.

This section added an entrance counseling requirement for first-time Stafford and Grad PLUS borrowers to ensure that they receive comprehensive information on the terms and conditions of their loan and the responsibilities a borrower has with respect to his or her loan. Institutions are encouraged to use interactive programs that test the borrower's understanding of the provisions. The information provided needs to include the institution's definition of half-time enrollment, and the consequences of not maintaining half-time enrollment; an explanation of the importance of contacting the appropriate institutional offices if the borrower withdraws before completing his or her program of study; and the name of an individual the borrower may contact if the borrower has any question about rights and responsibilities.

Institutions must also provide an exit interview to borrowers of title IV loans which shall include information on loan repayment plans available, including a discussion of the different features of each plan and sample information showing the difference in interest paid and total payments under each plan; the average anticipated monthly repayments under the standard repayment plan and any other repayment plans for which the borrower is eligible, if the borrower so requests; debt and management strategies; an explanation that the borrower has the ability to prepay each such loan, pay the loan on a shorter schedule, and change repayment plans; the situations in which the student may obtain full or partial forgiveness or cancellation of principal or interest; the terms and conditions under which the student may defer repayment of principal or interest or be granted forbearance; the consequences of default on such loans; information on the effects of using a consolidation loan to discharge the borrower's loans; and a notice to borrowers about the availability of the National Student Loan Data System and how the system can be used by a borrower to obtain information on the status of the borrower's loans. Such exit interviews shall also include a clear and conspicuous notice describing the general effects of using a consolidation loan to discharge the borrower's student loans, including the effects of consolidation on total interest to be paid, fees to be paid, and length of repayment; the effects of consolidation on a borrower's underlying loan benefits, including loan forgiveness, cancellation, and deferment; the ability for the borrower to prepay the loan, pay on a shorter schedule, and to change repayment plans, and that borrower benefit programs may vary among different loan holders; a general description of the types of tax benefits which may be available to the borrower; and the consequences of default.

This section also requires institutions of higher education to publish and distribute on an annual basis on campus policies regarding immediate emergency procedures. Such policies shall include procedures to notify the campus community in a reasonable and timely manner in the event of a significant emergency or dangerous situation, procedures to publicize emergency response and evacuation procedures on an annual basis in a manner designed to reach students and staff; and procedures to test emergency response and evacuation procedures on an annual basis.

Each institution participating in title IV must also publicly disclose the institution's current transfer of credit policy that includes a statement that the institution shall disclose whether the institution denies transfer of credit based on the accreditation of the sending institution and a list of institutions with which the institution has established articulation agreements.

Finally, this section requires institutions of higher education annually to publish a fire safety report on on-campus student housing, and to submit such information to the Secretary on an annual basis. Such report shall include information with respect to campus fire and safety practices, including statistics concerning the number and cause of fires in each on-campus student housing facility, as well as the injuries related to such fires that result in medical treatment, the number of deaths related to a fire, and the value of property damage caused by a fire; a description of each on-campus student housing facility fire safety system; the number of regular mandatory supervised fire drills; policies or rules on procedures for evacuation, fire safety education and training programs, among other policies; and plans for future improvements in fire safety. The Secretary shall make these statistics available to the public. The Secretary shall also, in coordination with nationally recognized fire organizations and representatives of institutions of higher education, associations of institutions of higher education, and other relevant organizations, identify exemplary fire safety policies, procedures, programs, and practices, and make information concerning those policies, procedures, programs and practices that have been effective available to the public. This section also requires each institution of higher education to maintain a log regarding all fires in on-campus student housing facilities, and make annual reports to the campus community on such fires.

Section 478. National student loan data system

Section 478 establishes guidelines for the Secretary to administer the National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS) in an effort to maintain confidence in the NSLDS. This section requires the Secretary to ensure that the primary purpose of access to the data system by guaranty agencies, eligible lenders, and eligible institutions of higher education is for legitimate program operations. The Secretary shall prohibit nongovernmental researchers from accessing personally identifiable information. The Secretary shall also create a disclosure form for students and potential students that is distributed when such students complete the common financial reporting form and as a part of the exit counseling process under title IV. The disclosure form shall inform students about the NSLDS and its appropriate uses. The Secretary shall require guaranty agencies, lenders, and institutions of higher education that enter into an agreement with a borrower regarding a loan under title IV to inform the borrower that such loan will be submitted to the data system and will be accessible to certain entities. The Secretary is required to establish protocols for limiting and restoring access to the database in the event that the Secretary deems it necessary to restrict access to the NSLDS. Finally, the Secretary is required to regularly review the data system to ensure it is up to date and is not being exploited by inappropriate parties; and to develop standardized protocols for limiting access to the data system.

This section also requires the Secretary to report annually to Congress on the implementation of this section, including the effectiveness of the privacy safeguards in protecting student and parent information in the data system; the success of new safeguards; the Secretary's ability to monitor the use of the system; and any protocols developed during the year. It also requires the Secretary to conduct a study regarding available mechanisms for providing students and parents with the ability to opt in or opt out of allowing eligible lenders to access their records in the National Student Loan Data System, and appropriate protocols for limiting access to the data system.

Section 479. Early awareness of financial aid eligibility

Section 479 requires the Secretary to work with institutions of higher education and other agencies involved in college access to implement a system to provide students and families with early information about financial aid, and early estimates of students' eligibility for financial aid. The Secretary shall make a special effort to inform students who receive or are eligible to receive means-tested benefits that they are potentially eligible for a maximum Pell grant. The section specifies information on the availability of financial aid to be provided to students when they are middle or high school students and to adult learners. The Secretary, in coordination with States, institutions of higher education, and other agencies, shall provide the means for individuals to obtain nonbinding estimates of grant and loan aid the individuals may receive. These estimates should be as accurate as possible. In addition, not later than 2 years after the enactment of the Higher Education Amendments of 2007, the Secretary shall coordinate with relevant entities to implement a public awareness campaign on the availability of financial aid under this title.

Section 480. Program participation agreements

Section 480 adds several clauses to the program participation agreement that institutions must sign to participate in the student aid programs under this title. One new provision requires that institutions establish, enforce and follow a code of conduct regarding student loans. The code of conduct shall include a revenue sharing prohibition, that prohibits institutions from receiving anything of value from any lender in exchange for an advantage sought by the lender to make educational loans to a student associated with the institution. It also prohibits any employee who is employed by the financial aid office at an institution or who has other responsibilities with respect to educational loans, from taking from a lender a gift or trip worth more than nominal value, except for reasonable expenses associated with professional development; from entering into a consulting arrangement or other contract to provide services to a lender; and from receiving anything of value in exchange for serving on the advisory board, commission or group established by a lender or group of lenders, except for reasonable expenses incurred in serving on such board. The institution shall not refuse to certify, or delay certification of a loan based on the borrower's selection of a particular lender. Through a designated individual, the institution shall annually attest that the institution agrees to, and is in compliance with, the requirements of the code of conduct.

Section 480 also places a number of requirements on institutions of higher education that choose to maintain a preferred lender list to recommend specific lenders for loans made under part B of the Higher Education Act of 1965 to students. In establishing a preferred lender list, the institution must clearly and fully disclose why the institution has included each lender as a preferred lender, especially with respect to terms and conditions favorable to the borrower and that students attending the institution (and the parents of such students) do not have to borrow from a lender on the preferred lender list. The institution must also establish a process to ensure that lenders are placed upon the preferred lender list on the basis of the benefits provided to borrowers, including highly competitive interest rates, terms, or conditions for loans made under part B high-quality customer service for such loans, and additional benefits. Institutions must ensure that a preferred lender list includes at least three unaffiliated lenders.

Section 480 specifies that proprietary institutions of higher education must have not less than 10 percent of their revenues from sources other than funds provided under this title. In the calculation of the 10 percent, an institution may include funds from sources other than those received under this title, matching funds, student payments from eligible college savings plans established under section 529 of the IRS Code of 1986, funds paid by the student or on behalf of the student by a third party, institutional aid and funds generated by the institution from institutional activities that are necessary for the education and training of the institution's students. Failure to meet this requirement for 1 year may result in the institution being placed on provisional certification, and the Secretary may increase monitoring and reporting requirements. Failure to meet the requirements for 2 consecutive years shall mean that the institution is ineligible to participate in programs under this title until the Secretary is satisfied that it is in compliance with this section. The Secretary shall make available information regarding which institutions have failed to meet this requirement.

This section specifies that if an institution is subject to an emergency action or its title IV participation is limited, suspended or terminated, the Secretary shall require the institution to prepare a teach-out plan for submission to the institution's accrediting agency. The term "teach-out" plan shall mean a written plan that provides for the equitable treatment of students if an institution of higher education ceases to operate before all students have completed their program of study.

Section 481. Regulatory relief and improvement

Section 481 maintains the quality assurance programs and the experimental sites. The Secretary has the authority to establish additional experimental sites in addition to maintaining the existing sites if they wish to continue participation. This section requires the Secretary to review and submit a biennial report to the authorizing committees on the experience of institutions participating as experimental sites.

Section 482. Transfer of allotments

Section 482 allows institutions to transfer up to 25 percent of funds between its Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant and Federal Work-Study accounts.

Section 483. Purpose of administrative payment

Section 483 clarifies the sums paid under this part are to be used for administering the programs described.

Section 484. Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance

Section 484 adds to the purposes of the Advisory Committee by requiring it to provide knowledge and understanding of early intervention programs and to make recommendations that will result in early awareness for low- and moderate-income families of their eligibility for assistance under this title. It also authorizes the Advisory Committee to make recommendations that will expand partnerships among Federal and State Governments, institutions of higher education and the private sector.

This section charges the Advisory Committee with reviewing regulations under title IV of the Higher Education Act and making recommendations to the Secretary to minimize regulatory burdens for institutions of higher education. In the review of regulations, the Advisory Committee shall convene not less than two review panels of representatives of the relevant groups to determine the necessity of the regulations, and recommend to the Secretary the elimination of regulations that are duplicative, unnecessary, inconsistent with other Federal requirements or overly burdensome. The Advisory Committee shall submit recommendations to the authorizing committees and the Secretary not later than 2 years after the completion of negotiated rulemaking.

This section also charges the Advisory Committee with conducting a study of innovative pathways to baccalaureate degree attainment, such as dual enrollment, Pell grant program changes, simplification, compressed or modular scheduling, articulation agreements and programs that allow 2-year institutions to offer BA degrees.

Section 485. Regional meetings

Section 485 adds State student grant agencies groups whose input the Secretary shall seek in meetings and rulemaking under this section.

Section 486. Year 2000 Requirements at the Department

Section 486 repeals the language describing required preparations to ensure the year 2000 did not interrupt the Department's processes and services.

Part G—Program integrity

Section 491. Recognition of accrediting agency or association

Section 491 expands the criteria required for an accrediting agency to be determined reliable by the Secretary for those agencies or associations seeking to evaluate institutions or programs offering distance education, and changes the factors that an accrediting agency must consider in accrediting institutions of higher education offering distance education. This section also expands the criteria agencies must consider when evaluating institutions of higher education, requiring such agencies to consider student retention rates, course completion rates, program completion and graduation rates, and as appropriate, State licensing examinations, job placement rates, enrollment in graduate and professional programs, and other student performance information selected by the institution, particularly that information used by the institution to evaluate or strengthen its programs.

The agency or association must also demonstrate to the Secretary that it will apply review procedures throughout the accrediting process that comply with due process procedures, including an opportunity for written response prior to final action being taken, and the opportunity to appeal any adverse action taken. The appeals board must not include current members of the agency or association's underlying decisionmaking body that made the adverse decision and it must be subject to a conflict of interest policy. The agency must make available to the public and the State licensing or authorizing agency, and must submit to the Secretary, a summary of agency or association actions, including the accreditation or reaccreditation of an institution, including any final denial, withdrawal, suspension or termination of accreditation, or placement on probation of an institution, and any findings made in connection with those actions, together with the official comments of the affected institution.

This section also requires accrediting agencies to ensure that their onsite evaluation includes a review of the federally required information the institution or program provides to its current and prospective students, and they are monitoring the growth of programs at institutions experiencing significant growth. Agencies must also require institutions of higher education to submit a teach-out plan for approval to the agency when any of the following occur: the Department notifies the accrediting agency of an action against the institution pursuant to section 487(d); the accrediting agency acts to withdraw, terminate, or suspend the accreditation of an institution; or the institution notifies the accrediting agency that the institution intends to cease operations.

This section also requires that an agency or association must confirm as part of its accreditation process that an institution publicly discloses its transfer of credit policies, and whether the institution denies transfer of credit based solely on the accreditation of the sending institution.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to permit the Secretary to establish criteria that specify, define or prescribe the standards that accrediting agencies or associations shall use to assess an institution's success with respect to student achievement.

Section 492. Administrative capacity standard

Section 492 adds a subsection on the Treatment of Teach-Outs at Additional Locations. A location of a closed institution of higher education will be eligible as an additional location of an eligible institution of higher education for the purpose of a teach-out, if such teach-out has been approved by the institution's accrediting agency.

An institution of higher education that conducts a teach-out through the establishment of an additional location at a closed institution will be permitted to make that a permanent additional location without being required to assume the liabilities of the closed institution or be in existence for 2 years before establishing eligibility.

Section 493. Program review and data

Section 493 requires the Secretary to provide an institution with an adequate opportunity to review and respond to any program review report, and any relevant materials related to the report, before a final program review report is issued.

The Secretary will review and consider an institution's response in any final program review determination. The Secretary, at all times, will maintain and preserve the confidentiality of any program review report or determination until the requirements of paragraphs (6) and (7) are met, and until a final program review determination is issued, other than to the extent required to comply with paragraph (5), except that the Secretary will promptly disclose any and all program review reports to the institution of higher education under review.

Section 494. Timely information about loans

Section 494 requires lenders of loans made, insured or guaranteed under Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 to provide all borrowers with a bill each payment installment time period, that shall provide such borrower with clear and conspicuous notice of the borrower's principal borrowed, current balance, interest rate on each loan, the amount the borrower has already paid in interest, the total additional interest payments the borrower is expected to pay over the life of the loan, the total amount the borrower has paid for the loan, including the amount the borrower has paid in interest, the amount the borrower has paid in fees, and the amount the borrower has paid against the balance, in a brief, borrower-friendly manner, a description of each fee the borrower has been charged for the current payment period, the date by which the borrower needs to make a payment in order to avoid additional fees, the amount of such payment that will be applied to the interest, the balance, and any fees on the loan; and the lender's address and toll-free phone number for payment and billing error purposes.

Lenders must also provide borrowers with clear and conspicuous notice, at least 1 month prior to a loan entering repayment, of information regarding the borrower's options, including repayment plans, deferments, forbearances, and discharge options to which the borrower may be entitled; the conditions under which a borrower may be charged any fee, and the amount of such fee; the conditions under which a loan may default, and the consequences of default; resources, including nonprofit organizations, advocates, and counselors (including the Office of the Ombudsman at the Department), where borrowers can receive advice and assistance, if such resources exist.

If a borrower enters default, a lender must provide the borrower at least twice with a clear and conspicuous notice of not less than the following information: The options available to the borrower to be removed from default; the relevant fees and conditions associated with each option.

Section 495. Auction evaluation and report

Section 495 specifies that if Congress establishes a pilot program for the auction of Federal PLUS loans, the Comptroller General shall evaluate such a pilot program. The evaluation shall determine the extent of the savings to the Federal Government that are generated through the pilot program, compared to the cost the Federal Government would have incurred in operating the parent loan program under Section 428B of the Higher Education Act of 1965 in the absence of a pilot program; the number of lenders that participated in the pilot program, and the extent to which the pilot program generated competition among lenders to participate in the auctions under the pilot program; the effect of the transition to and operation of the pilot program on the ability of lenders participating in the pilot to originate loans made through the pilot smoothly and efficiently, the ability of institutions of higher education participating in the pilot program to disburse loans made through the program smoothly and efficiently, and the ability of parents to obtain loans made through the pilot program in a timely and efficient manner; the differential impact, if any, of the auction among the States, including between rural and non-rural States; and the feasibility of using the mechanism piloted to operate the other programs under Part B of Title IV of the Higher Education Act. The Comptroller General shall submit a preliminary report to the authorizing committees not later than September 1, 2010, with the information included in the evaluation; shall submit an interim report not later than September 1, 2012 regarding such findings; and shall submit a final report not later than September 1, 2014, regarding such findings.

Title V—Developing Institutions

Section 501. Authorized activities

Section 501 establishes that institutions may use grant aid for education or counseling services designed to improve financial literacy of students or their parents. Funds may be used to develop articulation agreements and facilitate the transfer of students from 2-year to 4-year institutions. Institutions may also utilize grant aid for customized remedial education and English language instruction courses designed to retain students and prepare students to enroll in core courses and successfully complete degree and major requirements.

Section 502. Postbaccalaureate opportunities for Hispanic Americans

Section 502 creates a new program that authorizes the Secretary of Education to award grants to eligible Hispanic-serving institutions that offer postbaccalaureate certificates or degree-granting programs.

Grant awards may be used to fund the following types of activities: purchasing scientific or laboratory equipment, books, and other educational material; constructing, maintaining or renovating classrooms, libraries, or other instructional facilities; supporting faculty and curriculum development, outreach, academic support services, mentoring and financial assistance; and collaborating with other colleges and universities to expand postbaccalaureate certificate opportunities or degree granting programs.

An application for a grant must explain how funds would be used to improve postbaccalaureate education opportunities for Hispanic and low-income students and would lead to students gaining greater financial independence. The Secretary of Education shall award grants to Hispanic-serving institutions for up to 5 years and colleges and universities are only to receive one award per fiscal year.

Section 503. Applications

Section 503 makes a technical change.

Section 504. Cooperative arrangements

Section 504 makes a technical change.

Section 505. Authorization of appropriations

Section 505 authorizes such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2008 and the 5 succeeding fiscal years.

Title VI—International Education Programs

Section 601. Findings

Section 601 revises the findings section to reflect changes in the world's geopolitical and economic landscapes that have created a need for American expertise and knowledge about a greater diversity of less commonly taught languages and nations of the world. This title supports centers, programs, and fellowships in American institutions of higher education, including programs partnering with overseas institutions, to increase the numbers of trained personnel and research in foreign language, area studies and other international studies. The Secretary shall consult with appropriate Federal agencies to determine national priorities in these areas and shall assist programs funded under this title to develop surveys of participants to determine placement after graduation.

Section 602. Graduate and undergraduate language and area centers and programs

Section 602 authorizes the Secretary to make grants to institutions of higher education to support comprehensive foreign language or area study centers, including a network of undergraduate programs. Grants may support teaching and research materials, curriculum planning and development, linkages with foreign institutions, instructors of less commonly taught languages, and activities to improve instruction. Fellowships support students at advanced study levels, including doctoral and post-doctoral candidates. Requires each applicant to explain how the activities funded by the grant will reflect diverse perspectives and a wide range of views.

Section 603. Undergraduate international studies and foreign language programs

Section 603 authorizes the Secretary to make grants under this section to establish, strengthen and operate national language resource and training centers at the undergraduate level. The funds from these grants may provide for the development of new teaching materials, the conducting or dissemination of research, the training of teachers or the expansion of experiences for students in foreign countries. In the application, in addition to program quality information, the applicant must include how the grantee will inform students about federally funded scholarship programs in related areas, and how the grantee will encourage service in areas of national need. Only 20 percent of funds may support undergraduate study, and only 10 percent of total awarded funds may be used for study abroad.

Section 604. Research; studies

Section 604 establishes that the Secretary may, directly or through grants or contracts, conduct research and studies that contribute to achieving the purposes of this part including comparative studies; research on instructional strategies; studies to assess the need for area studies and language instruction; evaluations of the extent to which programs funded under this title reflect diverse perspectives and generate debate on world regions and international affairs; and systematic collection, analysis and dissemination of data that contribute to the purposes of this title.

Section 605. Technological innovation and cooperation for foreign information access

Section 605 authorizes the Secretary to make grants to institutions of higher education, public or non-profit private libraries or consortia of such institutions or libraries to develop innovative ways to use electronic technologies to collect, organize, preserve, and widely disseminate information from foreign sources. Grants may be awarded to an institution of higher education, a public or non-profit private library, or a consortium of an institution of higher education plus another institution of higher education, or a library, or a non-profit educational organization.

Section 606. Selection of certain grant recipients

Section 606 provides that in considering grant applications under this title, the Secretary shall evaluate each application based on established criteria. The Secretary shall also consider the applicant's record of sending students into areas of national need.

Section 607. American overseas research centers

Section 607 authorizes the Secretary to make grants to and enter into contracts with any American overseas research center that is a consortium of institutions of higher education. Each center desiring a grant shall submit the required information. Grant funds may support faculty salaries, faculty and student travel, teaching and research material, conferences, and publications.

Section 608. Authorization of appropriations for international and foreign language studies

Section 608 authorizes such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2008 and the 5 succeeding fiscal years.

Section 609. Centers for international business education

Section 609 authorizes the Secretary to award grants to institutions of higher education to operate international centers for business education that will be national resources for improved business techniques. Such grants will require assurance that diverse perspectives will be made available to students in programs under this section.

An eligible entity that receives a grant under this section must match 50 percent of the amount received from the Federal grant with non-Federal sources in cash or in kind for each fiscal year. Funds under this section must supplement, not supplant, other Federal or State funds. The Secretary is required to report to Congress on the implementation of the grant program annually.

This part authorizes the Secretary to award grants to States on a competitive basis to enable a State to award scholarships of up to $1,000 to students within that State who have completed a rigorous secondary school curriculum in mathematics or science. States are required to meet a 50 percent match of the Federal funds.

The students are eligible for the scholarships for their first 2 years of college, and governors may set a priority for awarding these scholarships to attract students who are underrepresented in mathematics, engineering and science fields, students in high-need school districts, or students who attend school districts that do not meet or exceed State mathematics and science standards or districts in regions in the State that have particular need.

Part B—Postsecondary education assessment

This part authorizes the Secretary to enter into a contract with an independent, bipartisan organization with specific expertise in public administration to complete an assessment of the cost factors associated with cost of tuition at institutions of higher education. The contract will begin not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this act. This part authorizes the Secretary to award a non-competitive grant to Teach for America to conduct outreach activities to undergraduate and graduate students to attract them to participate in the Teach for America program. The program attracts college graduates to teach for up to 2 years in underserved schools. Grant funds will be used for recruitment, pre-service training and professional development during their first 2 years of teaching under this program. Teach for America shall submit an annual report and the Secretary shall conduct a study of the program outcomes.

The Secretary shall award grants to eligible institutions of higher education to enable such institutions to make fellowship awards to assist highly qualified minorities and women to acquire the highest degree available in academic areas where such individuals are underrepresented in the professoriate. The Secretary shall consider the representation of women and minority faculty members, the current and projected need for faculty and the need to prepare professors in areas of national need such as mathematics and science. In awarding grants, each institution shall award no less than 15 fellowships. Fellows shall sign an agreement to enter a contract to teach at an institution of higher education not later than 3 years after receiving the doctoral degree or highest possible degree available. Individuals who do not enter the professoriate shall repay the fellowship.

The Secretary shall also contract with such nonprofit organization to identify not less than 50 urban local educational agencies and 5 States with significant rural populations, each of which serves a significant number of low-income students, to carry out comprehensive needs assessments of the factors known to contribute to improved higher education enrollment rates, including factors such as evaluation of the local educational agency's and State's leadership strategies, the secondary school curriculum and class offerings of the local educational agency and State, the professional development used by the local educational agency and State to assist teachers, higher education counselors, and administrators in supporting the transition of secondary students into higher education, secondary school student attendance, the data systems used by the local educational agencies and the State to measure college enrollment rates and the incentives in place to motivate faculty and students to improve school-wide outcomes, and strategies to mobilize student leaders and build college bound culture.

The nonprofit shall also provide comprehensive services to improve school-wide higher education enrollments of each of at least 10 local educational agencies and States that participated in the comprehensive needs assessment and have demonstrated a willingness and commitment to improving the higher education enrollment rates of the local educational agency or State.

Part I—Predominantly Black Institutions

This part authorizes the Secretary to award grants under a new grant program to Predominantly Black Institutions. Grant funds shall be used to plan, develop, undertake and implement programs to enhance the institution's capacity to serve more low- and middle-income Black American students, to expand higher education opportunities for title IV eligible students by encouraging college preparation and student persistence in secondary school and postsecondary education, and to strengthen the ability of the Predominantly Black Institution to serve such students. Grant funds may be used for academic instruction in disciplines in which Black Americans are unrepresented, to establish or enhance a program of teacher education designed to qualify students to teach in a public elementary school or secondary school in the State, or to establish community outreach programs that will encourage elementary school and secondary school students to develop the academic skills and interest to pursue postsecondary education, among other uses. Up to 20 percent of each grant may also be used to establish or increase an endowment fund, in which case the institution must raise an equal amount from non-federal sources.

Priority for such grants shall be given to Predominantly Black Institutions with large numbers of needy or Black students. Grants shall not be less than $250,000.

They shall include at least five members representing specifically designated stakeholders, and shall carry out activities including conducting periodic needs assessments of the demographics of individuals working in early childhood education programs in the State and a review of opportunities for and barriers to high quality professional development and training in early childhood development and learning. The State Task Force shall develop a plan for a comprehensive state-wide career system, including methods of outreach to early childhood education program staff; developing a unified data collection and dissemination system for early childhood training, professional development, and higher education programs; providing resources for the costs of enrolling in and completing post-secondary education programs; developing mentoring and coaching programs to support new teachers in and directors of early childhood education programs; supporting professional development activities and a career lattice; supporting articulation agreements between 2- and 4-year institutions and other mechanisms to earn academic credit; providing career development advising with respect to the field of early childhood education; and providing a system of quality assurance with respect to the early childhood education professional development and career system, including standards or qualifications for individuals and entities who offer training and professional development in early childhood education.

The State Task Force shall hold public hearings and provide an opportunity for public comment on the contents of the State plan. The State Task Force shall meet periodically to review implementation of the plan and propose changes as needed.

Part K—Improving science, technology, engineering, and mathematics education with a focus on Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian students

Authorizes a grant to an eligible partnership to develop or expand programs for the development of science, technology, engineering or mathematics professionals from elementary schools through college, including existing programs for Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian students. Eligible partnerships shall be partnerships of one or more colleges or schools of engineering, one or more colleges or schools of science, engineering, or mathematics, one or more institutions of higher education that offer 2-year degrees, or one or more private entities that conduct career awareness activities showcasing local technology professionals, develop internships, apprenticeships and mentoring programs in partnership with relevant industries, and assist with the placement of interns and apprentices.

Grant funds shall be used to develop or implement cultural, social, or educational transition programs to assist students to transition into college life and academics in order to increase such students' retention rates in the fields of science, technology, engineering, or mathematics, with a focus on Alaska Native or Native Hawaiian students; development or implementation of academic support or supplemental educational programs to increase the graduation rates of students in the fields of science, technology, engineering, or mathematics, with a focus on Alaska Native or Native Hawaiian students; development or implementation of internship programs, carried out in coordination with educational institutions and private entities, to prepare students for careers in the fields of science, technology, engineering, or mathematics, with a focus on Alaska Native or Native Hawaiian students; or other activities consistent with the purposes of this section.

Section 901 names the Laurent Clerc National Deaf Education Center, as the entity to provide quality education for deaf individuals through its Clerc Center, and technical assistance, outreach and training programs for parents and teachers of children who are deaf. By no later than the beginning of the 2009–10 academic year, the elementary and secondary programs at the Center shall adopt and implement standards and assessments pursuant to Section 1111(b) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, subject to approval by the Secretary. The University shall determine whether the Clerc programs are making adequate yearly progress and publicly report the findings, as required by the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Section 902. Agreement with Gallaudet University

Section 902 updates the reference to the Davis-Bacon Act in this language.

Section 903. Agreement for the National Technical Institute for the Deaf

Section 903 names the Rochester Institute of Technology as the partner institution for the establishment and operation, including construction and equipment, of a National Technical Institute for the Deaf. Specifies that if the Secretary or Rochester Institute terminates the agreement the Secretary shall consider other proposals to establish and operate a National Technical Institution for the Deaf.

Section 904 amends title I of the Education of the Deaf Act of 1986 (20 U.S.C. 4301 et seq.) by adding at the end a new section 121 creating Cultural Experiences Grants. The section authorizes the Secretary to award competitive grants or contracts with eligible entities to enrich the lives of deaf and hard-of-hearing children and adults; increase public understanding of deafness and the artistic and intellectual achievements of deaf and hard-of-hearing persons; and promote the integration of hearing, deaf, and hard-of-hearing persons through shared cultural, educational, and social experiences. Funds are authorized “as may be necessary” to carry out this section for fiscal year 2008 and each of the succeeding fiscal years.

Section 905. Audit

Section 905 limits the requirements of annual independent financial and compliance audit of the relevant institution of higher education to cover only the activities of the National Technical Institute for the Deaf, and clarified that such audit shall be conducted on a fiscal year cycle.

Section 906. Reports

Section 906 excludes preparatory programs from those programs about which the University must report enrollment, graduation, and post-graduation employment information. Changes the date of the University’s requirement to report the differences in disposition of individuals from minority backgrounds with those students from non-minority backgrounds from the date of graduation or completion of their studies to 1 year after graduation or completion. Limits the requirements of the report as compared to current law.

Section 907. Monitoring, evaluation, and reporting

Section 907 removes reference to the Department of Education Organization Act when stating that the Secretary should submit an annual report to Congress on the University’s monitoring and evaluation activities of and legislative recommendations regarding the University’s programs, activities and administrative operations. Changes period of authorization of appropriations under this section to fiscal years 2008 through 2013.

Section 909 extends the authorization of appropriations for fiscal years 2008 through 2013.

Section 910. Oversight and effect of agreements

Section 910 updates correct names of committees where relevant.

Section 911. International students

Section 911 establishes that preparatory students no longer count toward the University's and NTID's respective enrollment caps of international students; nor do international students residing abroad and participating in distance learning courses through NTID or the University. This section also states that U.S. citizens who apply for distance learning courses shall not be denied participation because of the participation of international students, and such distance education international students will not be charged a tuition surcharge. Postsecondary international students from a non-developing country enrolled at the University or NTID shall continue to pay a 100-percent tuition surcharge. The section reduces the surcharge paid by postsecondary international students from a developing country enrolled at the University or NTID from 100 percent to 50 percent. It also requires the University and NTID to develop a sliding scale model for tuition surcharge reduction for international students, from both developing and non-developing countries, that can demonstrate financial need. The section also defines "developing country" for the purposes of this section.

Section 912. Research priorities

Section 912 updates correct names of committees where relevant.

Section 913. Authorization of Appropriations

Section 913 extends the authorization of appropriations for fiscal year 2008 through 2013.

Part B—United States Institute of Peace Act

Part D—Indian Education

SUBPART 1—TRIBAL COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Section 941. Reauthorization of the Tribally Controlled College or University Assistance Act of 1978

Section 941 defines “National Indian Organization” to mean an organization that is nationally based, represents a substantial Indian constituency and has expertise in the fields of tribally controlled colleges and university and Indian higher education. “Indian Student” means a student who is a member of an Indian tribe or a biological child of a member of an Indian tribe, living or deceased.

In a continuing education program, eligible credits shall be determined as one credit for every 10 contact hours in a quarter system, or 15 contact hours in the case of an institution with a semester system. These hours must be completed in an organized continuing education experience with responsible sponsorship, capable direction and qualified instruction, as described by the International Association for Continuing Education and Training. No more than 10 percent of the Indian student count of a tribally controlled college or university shall receive such credits. The section also strikes the prohibition on credit hours earned by an Indian student not making satisfactory progress toward a degree or certificate being taken into account.

To be eligible for grant assistance under this Act, a tribally controlled college or university must be accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association, or must be making reasonable progress toward accreditation according to such an agency or association.

The Secretary shall require that contracts for technical assistance be awarded to an organization designated by the tribally controlled college or university to be assisted.

The Secretary shall grant to each tribally controlled college or university with an approved application an amount equal to the product of multiplying the Indian student count at such college or university during the academic year preceding the academic year and $8,000, with the latter adjusted annually for inflation.

For technical assistance contracts under this section, authorizes $3.2 million for fiscal year 2008 and 5 succeeding years. Authorize such sums as shall be necessary for fiscal year 2008 and the succeeding 5 years for grants to tribally controlled colleges or universities and the renovation program and construction of new facilities under this title.

Changes authorized funding level of grants for the establishment and support of tribal economic development and education institutes from $2,000,000 per fiscal year to such sums as may be necessary. Authorizes such funding for fiscal year 2008 and the succeeding 5 years.

Section 941(j) adds at the end of the Tribally Controlled College or University Assistance Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. 1801, et seq.) by adding at the end a new subtitle V on Tribally Controlled Postsecondary Career and Technical Institutions.

The term "tribally controlled postsecondary career and technical institution" aligns with the definition of the term in the Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act.

Subject to the availability of appropriations, for fiscal year 2008 and each fiscal year thereafter, the Secretary shall provide funding to the United Tribes Technical College and the Navajo Technical College to operate postsecondary career and technical programs for Indian students, so long as the Secretary determines that those institutions meet the definition of a "tribally controlled postsecondary career and technical institution" defined herein.

States that this funding shall be provided in a lump sum payment for each applicable fiscal year. States that, for fiscal year 2009 and each fiscal year thereafter, the Secretary shall distribute an amount equal to the greater of either the appropriated amount for fiscal year 2006 or the appropriated amount for fiscal year 2008.

If, for any fiscal year, the authorized amount exceeds the higher of the amount of fiscal year 2006 or fiscal year 2008, the Secretary shall distribute a portion of the excess amount to each institution according to each school's proportion of the aggregate Indian student count of the two institutions the prior academic year.

States that funds made available under this title shall be subject to the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act. A selected institution may elect to receive funds in accordance with an agreement between the institution and the Secretary if the agreement exists on the date of enactment of the Higher Education Amendments of 2007. Eligibility for, or receipt of, assistance under this title shall not preclude the eligibility of the institution to receive Federal financial assistance under any program of the Higher Education Act, any program under the Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act of 2006, or any other program that provides a benefit for institutions of higher education, community colleges or postsecondary educational institutions.

There are authorized to be appropriated for this new subsection such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2008 and 5 succeeding fiscal years. This is the final portion of the new Subsection V of the Tribally Controlled College or University Assistance Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. 1801, et seq.).

Subject to the availability of appropriations, the Secretary shall make grants to provide support for the education and training of Indian students to institutions that are not receiving Federal assistance as of the date on which the grant is provided under Title I of the Tribally Controlled College or University Assistance Act of 1978 or the Navajo Community College Act.

The short title of the Tribally Controlled College or University Assistance Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. 1801 note; Public Law 95-471) is changed to the “Tribally Controlled Colleges and Universities Assistance Act of 1978,” and clarifies that any reference in law to the previous short title shall be considered a reference to the amended Act.

SUBPART 2—NAVAJO HIGHER EDUCATION

Section 945. Short title

Section 945 states that this subpart is entitled the “Navajo Nation Higher Education Act of 2006.”

Section 946. Reauthorization of Navajo Community College Act

Section 946 amends the purpose of the act so the purpose to assist the Navajo Nation in providing education to tribe members through a community college established by the tribe, known as Diné College.

This section also amends the Navajo Community College Act to require the Secretary to study the academic facilities needs of Diné College and report to Congress no later than October 31, 2010. Funds to carry out this section may be drawn from general administrative appropriations to the Secretary.

This section also authorizes such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2008 and the succeeding 5 fiscal years for construction activities, including construction of buildings, water and sewer facilities, roads, information technology and telecommunications infrastructure, classrooms, and external structures. Such sums as are necessary shall also be appropriated to pay the cost of maintenance of the college, major capital improvements, mandatory payments, supplemental student services, and to improve and expand the college by providing higher education programs, career and technical education, activities relating to the preservation and protection of the Navajo language, philosophy and culture, employment and training opportunities, economic development and community outreach, and a safe learning, working and living environment.

[(a) COMMON FINANCIAL AID FORM DEVELOPMENT AND PROCESSING.—

[(1) SINGLE FORM REQUIRED.—The Secretary, in cooperation with representatives of agencies and organizations involved in student financial assistance, shall produce, distribute, and process free of charge a common financial reporting form to be used to determine the need and eligibility of a student for financial assistance under parts A through E of this title (other than under subpart 4 of part A). The Secretary shall include on the form developed under this subsection such data items as the Secretary determines are appropriate for inclusion. Such items shall be selected in consultation with States to assist in the awarding of State financial assistance. In no case shall the number of such data items be less than the number included on the form on the date of enactment of the Higher Education Amendments of 1998. Such form shall satisfy the requirements of section 401(d) of this title.

[(2) CHARGES TO STUDENTS AND PARENTS FOR USE OF FORM PROHIBITED.—The common financial reporting form prescribed by the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be produced, distributed, and processed by the Secretary and no parent or student shall be charged a fee for the collection, processing, or delivery of financial aid through the use of such form. The need and eligibility of a student for financial assistance under parts A through E of this title (other than under subpart 4 of part A) may only be determined by using the form developed by the Secretary pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection. No student may receive assistance under parts A through E of this title (other than under subpart 4 of part A), except by use of the form developed by the Secretary pursuant to this section. No data collected on a form for which a fee is charged shall be used to complete the form prescribed under paragraph (1).

[(3) DISTRIBUTION OF DATA.—Institutions of higher education, guaranty agencies, and States shall receive, without charge, the data collected by the Secretary using the form developed pursuant to this section for the purposes of processing loan applications and determining need and eligibility for institutional and State financial aid awards. pursuant to this section. The Secretary shall include in each such contract a requirement that—

[(i) any charges by the contractor to the student or parent or additional data items required by a State or institution for any purpose (regardless of the method of collection) shall be reasonable and shall not exceed the marginal cost of collecting, processing, and delivering such additional data, taking into account any payment received by the contractor to produce, distribute, and process the common financial reporting form prescribed by the Secretary pursuant to paragraph (1); and

[(ii) the contractor will require any person or entity to whom the contractor provides such additional data to agree not to collect from any student or parent any charge that would not be permitted under this subparagraph for any such additional data.

[(B) To the extent practicable, the Secretary shall ensure that at least one contractor, or a portion of one contract, under this paragraph will serve graduate and professional students.

[(E) All approved contractors shall be required to adhere to all editing, processing, and reporting requirements established by the Secretary to ensure consistency.

[(F) No approved contractor shall enter into exclusive arrangements with guarantors, lenders, secondary markets, or institutions of higher education for the purpose of reselling or sharing of data collected for the multiple data entry process. assistance, including private computer software providers, shall develop an electronic version of the form described in paragraph (1). As permitted by the Secretary, such an electronic version shall not require a signature to be collected at the time such version is submitted, if a signature is subsequently submitted by the applicant. The Secretary shall prescribe such version not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of the Higher Education Amendments of 1998.

(A) DISCRETION OF STUDENT FINANCIAL AID ADMINISTRATORS.—A financial aid administrator at an institution of higher education participating in a demonstration program under this subsection may use the discretion provided under section 479A as necessary in awarding financial aid to students participating in the demonstration program.

(B) WAIVERS.—The Secretary is authorized to waive, for an institution participating in the demonstration program, any requirements under the title, or regulations prescribed under this title, that would make the demonstration program unworkable, except that the Secretary shall not waive any provisions with respect to the maximum award amounts for grants and loans under this title.

(7) OUTREACH.—The Secretary shall make appropriate efforts in order to notify States, institutions of higher education, and secondary schools of the demonstration program.

(8) EVALUATION.—The Secretary shall conduct a rigorous evaluation of the demonstration program to measure the program's benefits and adverse effects, as the benefits and effects relate to the purpose of the program described in paragraph (1). In conducting the evaluation, the Secretary shall—

(A) identify whether receiving financial aid awards or estimates, as applicable, 1 year prior to the year in which the student plans to enroll in an institution of higher education, has a positive impact on the higher education aspirations and plans of such student;

(B) measure the extent to which using a student's income information from the year that is 2 years prior to the student's planned enrollment date had an impact on the ability of States and institutions to make financial aid awards and commitments;

(C) determine what operational changes would be required to implement the program on a larger scale;

(D) identify any changes to Federal law that would be necessary to implement the program on a permanent basis; and

(E) identify the benefits and adverse effects of providing early awards or estimates on program costs, program operations, program integrity, award amounts, distribution, and delivery of aid.

(9) CONSULTATION.—The Secretary shall consult, as appropriate, with the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance established under section 491 on the design, implementation, and evaluation of the demonstration program.

(f) USE OF IRS DATA AND REDUCED INCOME AND ASSET INFORMATION TO DETERMINE ELIGIBILITY FOR STUDENT FINANCIAL AID.—

(1) FORMATION OF STUDY GROUP.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of the Higher Education Amendments of 2007, the Comptroller General of the United States and the Secretary of Education shall convene a study group whose members shall include the Secretary of the Treasury, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Director of the Congressional Budget Office, and such other individuals as the Comptroller General and Secretary of Education may designate.

(2) STUDY REQUIRED.—The Comptroller General and the Secretary, in consultation with the study group convened under paragraph (1), shall design and conduct a study to identify and evaluate the means of simplifying the process of applying for Federal financial aid available under this title. The study shall focus on developing alternative approaches for calculating the expected family contribution that use substantially less income and asset data than the methodology currently used, as of the time of the study, for determining the expected family contribution.

(3) OBJECTIVES OF STUDY.—The objectives of the study required under paragraph (2) are—

(A) to shorten the FAFSA and make it easier and less time-consuming to complete, thereby increasing higher education access for low-income students;

(B) to examine the feasibility, and evaluate the costs and benefits, of using income data from the Internal Revenue Service to pre-populate the electronic version of the FAFSA;

(C) to determine ways in which to provide reliable information on the amount of Federal grant aid and financial assistance a student can expect to receive, assuming constant income, 2 to 3 years before the student's enrollment; and

(D) to simplify the process for determining eligibility for student financial aid without causing significant redistribution of Federal grants and subsidized loans under this title.

(4) REQUIRES SUBJECTS OF STUDY.—The study required under paragraph (2) shall consider—

(A) how the expected family contribution of a student could be calculated using substantially less income and asset information than the approach currently used, as of the time of the study, to calculate the expected family contribution without causing significant redistribution of Federal grants and subsidized loans under this title, State aid, or institutional aid, or change in the composition of the group of recipients of such aid, which alternative approaches for calculating the expected family contribution shall, to the extent practicable—

(i) rely mainly, in the case of students and parents who file income tax returns, on information available on the 1040, 1040EZ, and 1040A; and

(ii) include formulas for adjusting income or asset information to produce similar results to the existing approach with less data;

(B) how the Internal Revenue Service can provide income and other data needed to compute an expected family contribution for taxpayers and dependents of taxpayers to the Secretary of Education, and when in the application cycle the data can be made available;

(C) whether data provided by the Internal Revenue could be used to—

(i) prepopulate the electronic version of the FAFSA with student and parent taxpayer data; or

(ii) generate an expected family contribution without additional action on the part of the student and taxpayer;

(D) the extent to which the use of income data from 2 years prior to a student's planned enrollment date would change the family contribution computed in accordance with part F, and potential adjustments to the need analysis formula that would minimize the change;

(E) the extent to which States and institutions would accept the data provided by the Internal Revenue Service to prepopulate the electronic version of the FAFSA in determining the distribution of State and institutional student financial aid funds;

(F) the changes to the electronic version of the FAFSA and verification processes that would be needed or could be made if Internal Revenue Service data were used to prepopulate such electronic version;

(G) the data elements currently collected, as of the time of the study, on the FAFSA that are needed to determine eligibility for student aid, or to administer Federal student financial aid programs, but are not needed to compute an expected family contribution, such as whether information regarding the student's citizenship or permanent residency status, registration for selective service, or driver's license number could be reduced without adverse effects;

(H) additional steps that can be taken to simplify the financial aid application process for students who (or, in the case of dependent students, whose parents) are not required to file an income tax return for the prior taxable year;

(I) information on the State need for and usage of the full array of income, asset, and other information currently collected, as of the time of the study, on the FAFSA, including analyses of—

(i) what data are currently used by States to determine eligibility for State student financial aid, and whether the data are used for merit or need-based aid;

(ii) the extent to which the full array of income and asset information currently collected on the FAFSA play an important role in the awarding of need-based State financial aid, and whether the State could use income and asset information that was more limited to support determinations of eligibility for such State aid programs;

(iii) whether data are required by State law, State regulations, or policy directives;

(iv) what State official has the authority to advise the Department on what the State requires to calculate need-based State student financial aid;

(v) the extent to which any State-specific information requirements could be met by completion of a State application linked to the electronic version of the FAFSA; and

(vi) whether the State can use, as of the time of the study, or could use, a student's expected family contribution based on data from 2 years prior to the student's planned enrollment date and a calculation with reduced data elements and, if not, what additional information would be needed or what changes would be required; and

(J) information on institutional needs, including the extent to which institutions of higher education are already using supplemental forms to collect additional data from students and their families to determine eligibility for institutional funds.

(5) USE OF DATA FROM THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE TO PREPOPULATE FAFSA FORMS.—After the study required under this subsection has been completed, the Secretary may use Internal Revenue Service data to prepopulate the electronic version of the FAFSA if the Secretary, in a joint decision with the Secretary of Treasury, determines that such use will not significantly negatively impact students, institutions of higher education, States, or the Federal Government based on each of the following criteria:

(A) Program costs.

(B) Redistributive effects on students.

(C) Accuracy of aid determinations.

(D) Reduction of burden to the FAFSA filers.

(E) Whether all States and institutions that currently accept the Federal aid formula accept the use of data from 2 years prior to the date of a student's planned enrollment in an institution of higher education to award Federal, State, and institutional aid, and as a result will not require students to complete any additional forms to receive this aid.

(6) CONSULTATION.—The Secretary shall consult with the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance established under section 491 as appropriate in carrying out this subsection.

(7) REPORT.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of the Higher Education Amendments of 2007, the Comptroller General and the Secretary shall prepare and submit a report on the results of the study required under this subsection to the authorizing committees.

PART D—GRANTS TO STATES FOR WORKPLACE AND COMMUNITY TRANSITION TRAINING FOR INCARCER-ATED YOUTH OFFENDERS

SEC. 821. [20 U.S.C. 1151] GRANTS TO STATES FOR WORKPLACE AND COMMUNITY TRANSITION TRAINING FOR INCARCERATED YOUTH OFFENDERS.

[(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

[(1) Over 150,000 youth offenders age 21 and younger are incarcerated in the Nation's jails, juvenile facilities, and prisons.

[(2) Most youth offenders who are incarcerated have been sentenced as first-time adult felons.

[(3) Approximately 75 percent of youth offenders are high school dropouts who lack basic literacy and life skills, have little or no job experience, and lack marketable skills.

[(4) The average incarcerated youth has attended school only through grade 10.

[(5) Most of these youths can be diverted from a life of crime into productive citizenship with available educational, vocational, work skills, and related service programs.

[(6) If not involved with educational programs while incarcerated, almost all of these youths will return to a life of crime upon release.

[(7) The average length of sentence for a youth offender is about 3 years. Time spent in prison provides a unique opportunity for education and training.

[(8) Even with quality education and training provided during incarceration, a period of intense supervision, support, and counseling is needed upon release to ensure effective reintegration of youth offenders into society.

[(9) Research consistently shows that the vast majority of incarcerated youths will not return to the public schools to complete their education.

[(10) There is a need for alternative educational opportunities during incarceration and after release.

[(b) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this part, the term “youth offender” means a male or female offender under the age of 25, who is incarcerated in a State prison, including a prerelease facility.

[(c) GRANT PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Education (in this section referred to as the “Secretary”) shall establish a program in accordance with this section to provide grants to the State correctional education agencies in the States, from allocations for the States under subsection (i), to assist and encourage incarcerated youths to acquire functional literacy, life, and job skills, through the pursuit of a postsecondary education certificate, or an associate of arts or bachelor's degree while in prison, and employment counseling and other related services which start during incarceration and continue through prerelease and while on parole.

[(d) APPLICATION.—To be eligible for a grant under this section, a State correctional education agency shall submit to the Secretary a proposal for a youth offender program that—

[(1) identifies the scope of the problem, including the number of incarcerated youths in need of postsecondary education and vocational training;

[(2) lists the accredited public or private educational institution or institutions that will provide postsecondary educational services;

[(3) lists the cooperating agencies, public and private, or businesses that will provide related services, such as counseling in the areas of career development, substance abuse, health, and parenting skills;

[(4) describes the evaluation methods and performance measures that the State correctional education agency will employ, which methods and measures—

[(A) shall be appropriate to meet the goals and objectives of the proposal; and

[(B) shall include measures of—

[(i) program completion;

[(ii) student academic and vocational skill attainment;

[(iii) success in job placement and retention; and

[(iv) recidivism;

[(5) describes how the proposed programs are to be integrated with existing State correctional education programs (such as adult education, graduate education degree programs, and vocational training) and State industry programs;

[(6) addresses the educational needs of youth offenders who are in alternative programs (such as boot camps); and

[(7) describes how students will be selected so that only youth offenders eligible under subsection (f) will be enrolled in postsecondary programs.

[(e) PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS.—Each State correctional education agency receiving a grant under this section shall—

[(1) integrate activities carried out under the grant with the objectives and activities of the school-to-work programs of such State, including—

[(A) work experience or apprenticeship programs;

[(B) transitional worksite job training for vocational education students that is related to the occupational goals of such students and closely linked to classroom and laboratory instruction;

[(C) placement services in occupations that the students are preparing to enter;

[(D) employment-based learning programs; and

[(E) programs that address State and local labor shortages;

[(2) annually report to the Secretary and the Attorney General on the results of the evaluations conducted using the methods and performance measures contained in the proposal; and

[(3) provide to each State for each student eligible under subsection (f) not more than $1,500 annually for tuition, books, and essential materials, and not more than $300 annually for related services such as career development, substance abuse counseling, parenting skills training, and health education, for each eligible incarcerated youth.

[(f) STUDENT ELIGIBILITY.—A youth offender shall be eligible for participation in a program receiving a grant under this section if the youth offender—

[(1) is eligible to be released within 5 years (including a youth offender who is eligible for parole within such time); and
 [(2) is 25 years of age or younger.

[(g) LENGTH OF PARTICIPATION.—A State correctional education agency receiving a grant under this section shall provide educational and related services to each participating youth offender for a period not to exceed 5 years, 1 year of which may be devoted to study in a graduate education degree program or to remedial education services for students who have obtained a secondary school diploma or its recognized equivalent. Educational and related services shall start during the period of incarceration in prison or prerelease and may continue during the period of parole.

[(h) EDUCATION DELIVERY SYSTEMS.—State correctional education agencies and cooperating institutions shall, to the extent practicable, use high-tech applications in developing programs to meet the requirements and goals of this section.

[(i) ALLOCATION OF FUNDS.—From the funds appropriated pursuant to subsection (j) for each fiscal year, the Secretary shall allot to each State an amount that bears the same relationship to such funds as the total number of students eligible under subsection (f) in such State bears to the total number of such students in all States.

[(j) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $17,000,000 for fiscal year 1999 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.]
